More than eight in every ten (81.3 per cent.) males ten years of age and over in the United States in 1910 were engaged in gainful occupations, according to the figures presented in the Report on Occupations issued by the Director of the Census. In the tabulation of occupations for this report all gainful workers were distributed in the following five age periods: Ten to thirteen years, fourteen to fifteen, sixteen to twenty, twenty-one to forty-four (including age unknown), and forty-five years and over. In the lowest age period, ten to thirteen years, the proportion of males gainfully occupied was one in six (16.6 per cent.); in the next age period, fourteen to fifteen, the proportion more than doubled, being over two in each five (41.4 per cent.); and in the age period sixteen to twenty the proportion increased to almost four in five (79.2 per cent.). The proportion was highest for the age period twenty-one to forty-four years (including persons of unknown age). In this age period 96.7 per cent. of the males were gainfully occupied; or stated otherwise, only 3.3 men out of every 100 in this age group were without gainful occupation in 1910. In the highest age period, forty-five years and over, the proportion of males gainfully occupied was 85.9 per cent.

The proportion of all males ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations was slightly larger in 1910 than in 1900, but this increase was confined to two age periods, sixteen to twenty and twenty-one to forty-four. In each of the other age periods the proportion of gainful workers was smaller in 1910 than in 1900, the decrease being greatest for the age period fourteen to fifteen.

Of the females ten years of age and over, 23.4 per cent. were engaged in gainful occupations in 1910. The proportion was 8 per cent. in the age period ten to thirteen; 19.8 per cent. in the age period fourteen to fifteen; 39.9 per cent. in the age period sixteen to twenty; 26.3 per cent. in the age period twenty-one to forty-four; and 15.7 per cent. in the age period forty-five years and over. The large proportion of the females sixteen to twenty years of age engaged in gainful occupations is accounted for by the fact that in this age period all the females are old enough to work, and matrimony has had little effect in decreasing the number of workers.

There was a marked increase from 1900 to 1910 in the proportion of all females ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations, or from 18.8 to 23.4 per cent. In each age period also the proportion of the gainful workers was considerably larger in 1910 than in 1900.

COLOR OR RACE OF WORKERS.

Of the 30,091,564 gainfully occupied males in the United States in 1910, 14,855,825 were native whites of native parentage, 5,285,811 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 6,588,711 foreign-born whites, 3,178,554 negroes, and 182,663 Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other. The proportion which the gainfully occupied males formed of all males ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was, for native whites of native parentage, 78.5 per cent.; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 76.5 per cent.; foreign-born whites, 90 per cent.; negroes, 87.4 per cent; and Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other, 80.8 per cent.

Native white males of native parentage formed 49.4 per cent. of the male gainful workers, as compared with 51.1 per cent. of all males ten years of age and over; while the corresponding percentages for native white males of foreign or mixed parentage were 17.6, as compared with 18.7 per cent; for foreign-born white males, 21.9, as compared with 19.8 per cent.; and for negro males, 10.6, as compared with 9.8 per cent.

Of the 8,075,772 gainfully occupied females, 3,098,639 were native whites of native parentage, 1,722,279 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 1,222,791 foreign-born whites, 2,013,981 negroes, and 18,082 Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other. The proportion which the gainfully occupied females formed of all females ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was, for native whites of native parentage, 17.1 per cent.; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 24.6 per cent.; foreign-born whites, 21.7 per cent.; negroes, 54.7 per cent; and Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other, 17.6 per cent.

Native white females of native parentage formed 38.4 per cent. of the female gainful workers, as compared with 52.5 per cent. of all females ten years of age and over; while the corresponding percentages for native white females of foreign or mixed parentage were 21.3, as compared with 20.3 per cent.; for foreign-born white females, 15.1, as compared with 16.3 per cent; and for negro females, 24.9, as compared with 10.7 per cent.

CHILD WORKERS.

There were 1,990,225 children of both sexes, ten to fifteen years of age, engaged in gainful occupations in 1910, or 18.4 per cent. of the total number of children of that age group. The males numbered 1,353,139, and the females 637,086. In 1900 1,750,178, or 18.2 per cent. of the children ten to fifteen years of age were engaged in gainful occupations; and in 1880 1,118,356, or 16.8 per cent., of them.

The increase from 1900 to 1910 in the number, and hence in the proportion, of all children ten to fifteen years of age engaged in gainful occupations was confined to children engaged in agricultural pursuits, where the increase was 369,283, or 34.8 per cent., for both sexes: 166,394, or 19.5 per cent., for the males; and 202,889, or 97.9 per cent., for the females. There was a marked decrease from 1900 to 1910 in the number of children ten to fifteen years of age engaged in non-agricultural pursuits. This decrease was 129,236, or 18.8 per cent., for both sexes; 77,666, or 19 per cent., for the males and 51,570, or 18.5 per cent., for the females.

KNOWLEDGE OF CONSULAR LAW NEEDED IN TRADE WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

(Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bulletin, September 23, 1915.)

An understanding of the main principles of the customs and consular regulations of the United States affecting imports and exports will enable the American exporter to look at the question of the rules prevailing in other countries from the foreign point of view, and to avoid the tendency to consider every foreign consular regulation as mere red tape and imposition, in the view of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, which has made a close study of the problems to be solved by those engaged in selling American goods.

It has been found, for instance, that the exporter to Latin-American countries is apt to grumble considerably at having to fill out the many details on his consular invoice, but is often unaware that just as many, if not more details are required by the United States in American consular invoices

It is pointed out that one of the main requisites for a good all-round export man is a thorough knowledge of such regulations, especially those affecting the Republics of Central and South America. In order thoroughly to grasp these regulations, the student should analyze the purpose for which they are promulgated. He will find that the main objects are two, in all countries. The fees exacted for consular certification are largely for the upkeep of the consulates in the various cities and for the remuneration of the consular officers. The bulk of the regulations, however, are made and enforced in order to comply with and carry out the import customs requirements of the countries of destination, each country naturally having its own customs laws and provisions.

In advocating a mastery of American requirements as preliminary to a proper understanding of those of foreign lands, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce mentions a few of the details which have been found to be of importance. Any brief statement, however, must of necessity be a kind of bibliography to be studied by the commercial student at his leisure, and to be enlarged upon by him according to the particular subject that may really be of interest to him.

For all goods imported into the United States amounting to $100 or more, there must be taken out a consular invoice, which must be certified by the United States Consul at the point of sale, manufacture, or shipment of the merchandise. The fee for each certification is $2.50. Three copies of the consular invoice are usually made out. The original copy is retained by the Consul for his files, a duplicate is given to the exporter, stamped with the official seal of the Consul and bearing the revenue stamp of $2.50; a triplicate is forwarded by the Consul to the Collector of Customs at the port to which the goods are consigned, and sometimes a quadruplicate is given to the shipper as an extra file copy.

There are two forms of consular invoices—one a blue form for showing when goods have been purchased outright and are the property of the consignee, and a white form issued when the goods are sent to the United States on consignment and are still the property of the shipper.

On arrival in the American port the shipment has to be entered within forty-eight hours of the official entry of the vessel at the Custom House. Goods not entered within forty-eight hours are sent to the general order warehouse as unclaimed, often entailing heavy storage and cartage expenses.

Several kinds of entries can be made. If goods are free of duty or if they are needed for immediate consumption, an import or consumption entry is made. If they are not needed immediately a warehouse entry is made, and goods are stored in warehouse, to be withdrawn at a later date in one or more package lots. Parts of packages cannot be withdrawn from bond.

Another entry is an I. T. (immediate transportation) entry, which means that goods are shipped through to another city of the United States in bond (in sealed cars), and that the required entry will be made by the ultimate consumer or his agent in that city.

Forms or blanks approved by the Treasury Department must be used in clearing merchandise. When properly filled out by the importer or his representative, they are filed with the consular invoice and bill of lading in the Custom House, and duty is assessed at the appropriate rates, gauged from the invoice description. A portion of the consignment is designated by the Collector's representative for examination by the appraiser, and the balance of the shipment is delivered to the importer. If the appraiser finds that the goods are correct in value and invoice description, and there are no other facts known to the authorities which lead them to doubt the correctness of the invoice in general, the entire consignment is considered as released and the importer secures a delivery permit for the portion retained for examination.

Should the appraiser desire to examine any other cases than those preliminarily examined, he orders the additional cases to the appraiser's warehouse, under the conditions of a bond given by the importer at the time of entry.

In the matter of merchandise which the importer wishes placed in Government bonded warehouse, the same form as to examination is followed, the difference being that the duty is not paid until the importer desires to secure actual delivery, and he then files what is known as a "duty paid without entry." In the case of such a warehouse entry, a bond is given by the importer and his agents guaranteeing that the goods warehoused will be withdrawn from bond and duty paid on them or that they will be exported within three years from date of entry.

Duties paid at time of entry are considered a deposit only and the entire entry is subject to review and liquidation, which is made after the appraiser has taken action on the invoice. Appeals from the action of the appraiser are of two kinds—one an appeal from his valuation, the other from the duty suggested by him. These appeals are heard by a Board of General Appraisers, and in certain cases by the United States Court of Customs Appeals at Washington.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAWS OF STATES AND TERRITORIES.

(Report of Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor.)

In order to facilitate the study and comparison of the Compensation laws of the various States, they are analyzed in the following pages according to a uniform outline designed to show clearly the most important features of the several plans.

ALASKA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 29, 1915; in effect July 28, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, arising out of and in course of employment, not due to the employee's wilful intention to injure himself or another, or to his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Mining operations in which five or more persons are employed, unless election to the contrary is made (includes development and construction work, stamp and roller mills, reduction work and processes, coke ovens, etc.).

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered, contractors and sub-contractors excluded. Public employment: Not included.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) If married, $3,000 to widow, $600 additional to each child under sixteen years of age, and to dependent parent or parents if any; if no widow, $3,000 to any minor orphans, and $600 additional to any under sixteen; no total to exceed $6,000.

(b) If unmarried, and dependent parent or parents, $1,200 to each.

(c) If no dependents, funeral expenses not to exceed $150, and other expenses, if any, to same amount.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Total permanent, $3,600 to workman alone; $1,200 additional if wife is living; $600 additional for each child under sixteen; total not to exceed $6,000. If no wife or children, $600 to each dependent parent.

(b) Total temporary disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for not over six months.

(c) Partial permanent disability, fixed sums for specified injuries, varying with conjugal condition and number of children.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Readjustment must be made if within two years an injury develops or proves to be such as to warrant a different award from any previously made.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Attachment may be had pending result of action, or employer may deposit cash or bond with court. Payments are exempt from execution.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—By courts, either with or without jury trial.

ARIZONA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 8, 1912; in effect September 1, 1912; new act May 13, 1913; in effect October 1, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All accidental injuries causing disability of at least two weeks, or death, arising out of and in the course of the employment, caused in whole, or in part, or contributed to, by a necessary risk or danger of, or inherent in the nature of the employment, or by failure of the employer or his agents to exercise due care or to comply with any law affecting the employment.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All especially dangerous employments, including the construction, operation and maintenance of steam and street railroads, using or working near explosives, building work using iron or steel frames or hoists, derricks, or ladders or scaffolds twenty or more feet above ground; telegraph, telephone or other electrical work; work in mines, quarries, tunnels, subways, etc.; all mills, shops and factories using power machinery. Industries declared especially dangerous are specified in law. Elective as to other industries.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered. Public employment: No provision.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a lump sum equal to 2,400 times one-half the daily wages or earnings of the deceased employee, but not to exceed $4,000. Payments to children cease on reaching the age of eighteen years.

(b) If no dependents, the reasonable expenses of medical attendance and burial of deceased employee.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total disability, 50 per cent. of the employee's semi-monthly earnings during the time he is unable to work at any gainful occupation.

(b) For partial disability, a semi-monthly payment equal to one-half the wage decrease.

(c) The total amount of payments for total or partial disability caused by a single injury not to exceed $4,000.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Examinations as to the nature of injury and degree of incapacity, etc., may be required by either party at intervals of not less than three months.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure provided the liability for compensation is not less than the compensation fixed by law.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—A judgment for compensation issued by a court is collectible without relief from valuation or appraisement laws and has the same preferential claim as is allowed by law for unpaid wages or personal services.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes may be settled by (a) written agreement between the parties, (b) arbitration, or (c) by reference to the Attorney-General of the State, in case of failure or refusal to agree by any of the modes above provided, then by a civil action at law.

CALIFORNIA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 8, 1911; in effect September 1, 1911; new act May 26, 1913; in effect January 1, 1914; amended, chapters 541, 607, 662, acts of 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, and not the result of the intoxication or wilful misconduct of the injured employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All excepting agriculture and domestic service.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person in the service of an employer for hire, including aliens, apprentices and members of employer's family who perform labor, excepting casual laborers. Public employment: Persons employed by the State and its political subdivisions (except unsalaried deputies appointed for their own convenience), and by all public corporations.

COMPENSATION IN CASE OF DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, three times the annual earnings of the deceased employee; not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, payable at least monthly in instalments equal to 65 per cent. of the wages. Payments to children cease on reaching the age of eighteen years, unless mentally or physically incapacitated for earning a living.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, such proportion of the above as corresponds to the ratio between the earnings of the deceased and his contribution to their support.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of burial, not exceeding $100.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:
(a) Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital treatment required during the first ninety days after the injury, or longer if the commission directs.
(b) For temporary total disability, 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings during such disability.
(c) For temporary partial disability, 65 per cent. of weekly loss of wages during such disability.
(d) The aggregate amount of benefits for a single injury causing temporary disability is limited to three times the annual earnings of the injured person, with a maximum benefit period of 240 weeks.
(e) For permanent disability, 55 per cent. of average weekly earnings, for periods varying from forty to 240 weeks, according to the degree of disability. After the expiration of 240 weeks a further benefit varying from 10 to 40 per cent. of the weekly earnings is payable during the remainder of life, when the degree of disability reaches or exceeds 70 per cent.

In case of permanent incapacity or death, a lump sum may be substituted for benefits, such lump sum to equal the present value of the benefits computed at 6 per cent.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Decisions and awards may be reviewed at any time during the first 245 weeks, after legal notice received.

INSURANCE—A State insurance fund is created under State control for the purpose of insuring employers against liability. Employers may effect insurance for liability for accident with any insurance company. Municipalities are required to insure in the State fund, unless the risk is refused.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—A claim for injury or death of an employee or any award shall have the same preference over other unsecured debts as is given by law to claims for wages, but not so as to impair a lien of a previous award.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the State Industrial Accident Commission, subject to a limited review by the courts.

COLORADO.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 10, 1915; in effect August 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries caused by accident arising out of and in course of employment, not intentionally self-inflicted or intentionally inflicted by another, and causing death within two years or disability for more than three weeks.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except interstate commerce and domestic and agricultural labor in which four or more persons are employed in which employers elect to come under the act; others may elect, but lose no defences if they do not. Public service under State, municipalities, school or irrigation districts, etc.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person in the service of another under any contra t of hire, express or implied, casual employees excepted. Public employees: All under any appointment or contract of hire; elective officials excluded.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:
(a) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for six years, $8 maximum, total not to exceed $2,500 nor to be less than $1,000. If death occurs from any cause during receipt of disability benefits, any unaccrued and unpaid remainder goes to dependents.
(b) If only partial dependents survive, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $8 maximum, for such part of six years as the commission may determine, total not to exceed $2,500. If death occurs from any cause during the receipt of disability benefits, partial dependents shall receive not more than four times the amount contributed by the deceased during his last year of employment, the aggregate of disability and death benefits not to exceed $2,500.
(c) If no dependents, $100 funeral expenses.
(d) Payments to widow or dependent widower cease on death or remarriage; to children, on reaching the age of eighteen, unless physically incapacitated from earning.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:
(a) Medical and surgical assistance for first thirty days, not more than $100 in value.
(b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages during continuance, $5 minimum, $8 maximum; full wages if less than $5.
(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wage decrease, $8 maximum; total not to exceed $2,080.
(d) Special schedule for specified injuries, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for periods ranging from four to 208 weeks.

Payments may be commuted to a lump sum after six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be changed within fifteen days after making on discovery of mistake, and may be appealed from within sixty days.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund, stock or mutual company, or proof of financial ability to make payments is required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurers are primarily liable to a workman or his beneficiaries entitled to benefits; notice to employer is notice to insurer; insolvency of employer does not release insurer. Claims are not assignable, and payments are exempt from attachment or execution.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the Industrial Commission, with limited appeal to courts.

CONNECTICUT.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—May 29, 1913; in effect January 1, 1914; amended, chapter 288, Acts of 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All injuries arising out of and in the course of employment, disability of more than ten days, or death, except when injury is caused by wilful and serious misconduct of the injured employee, or by his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries in which five or more persons are employed, in absence of contrary election by employer.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees of employers accepting the act, in absence of contrary election, outworkers and casual employees excepted. Public employment: Employees of the State and any public corporation within the State using the services of another for pay.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:
(a) $100 for burial expenses.
(b) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the earnings of the deceased employee.
(c) If only partial dependents survive, a weekly compensation, determined according to the measure of dependence, not exceeding one-half the earnings of the deceased employee.
(d) Compensation shall in no case be more than $10 or less than $5 weekly, and shall not continue longer than 312 weeks.

A widow's or widower's dependence ceases with remarriage, and a child's upon reaching eighteen years of age, unless physically or mentally incapacitated.

If a widow or dependent widower remarries or dies during the term of benefit payments, subsequent payments go to other dependents, if any.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:
(a) Medical and surgical aid and hospital service during such time as needed.
(b) For total disability, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the employee's earnings, not more than $10 or less than $5 weekly, or for longer than 520 weeks.

(c) For partial disability, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the wage loss, but not more than $10 per week, or for longer than 312 weeks. For specified injuries causing permanent partial disability, one-half the average weekly earnings for fixed periods in lieu of all other payments.

Lump sum payments may be approved by the commissioner, provided they equal the value of the compensations.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Review may be had upon request of either party, whenever it shall appear to the compensation commissioner that the incapacity or the measure of dependence has changed.

INSURANCE—Approved schemes may be substituted provided the benefits are equivalent to those provided by law. Insurance may be taken in approved stock or mutual companies or associations.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Employer must furnish the insurance commissioner satisfactory proof of his solvency and financial ability to pay awards, file satisfactory security with the insurance commissioner, or insure in approved stock or mutual companies or associations.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are to be settled by the compensation commissioners. Appeals from findings and awards of any commissioner may be made to the Superior Court of the county without cost to either party.

HAWAII.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 28, 1915; in effect July 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident arising out of and in course of employment, causing disability for more than fourteen days or death within two years, and not due to the employee's intention to injure himself or another or to his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All public and all industrial employment.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons under contract of employment or apprenticeship, other than casual employees, whose pay does not exceed $36 per week. Public employment: All except elective officials and employees who receive salaries in excess of $1,800 per year.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 funeral expenses if death occurs within six months after the injury.

(b) 40 per cent. of average weekly wages to widow or dependent widower alone, 50 per cent. if one or two dependent children, 60 per cent. if three or more; 30 per cent. to one or two orphans, 10 per cent. additional for each child in excess of two, total not to exceed 50 per cent. If no consort or child, but other dependents, 25 to 40 per cent.

(c) Payments to widow cease on death or remarriage, and to widower on termination of disability or remarriage; to child on reaching age of sixteen, unless incapable of self-support, when they may continue to eighteen; to other beneficiaries, on termination of disability; no payments except to children to continue longer than 312 weeks. Basic wages not less than $5 nor more than $36 weekly.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services for first fourteen days, not exceeding $50 in amount.

(b) For total disability, 60 per cent. of weekly wages, $3 minimum, $18 maximum, for not longer than 312 weeks; total not to exceed $5,000. If wages are less than $3, full wages will be paid unless disability is permanent, when $3 will be paid.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of wage decrease, $12 maximum, not over 312 weeks, total not to exceed $5,000; fixed awards for specified injuries.

Payments may be commuted to one or more lump sums in any case.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Agreements and awards may be reviewed at any time, not oftener than once in six months.

INSURANCE—Private employers must carry insurance, secure guarantee insurance, deposit security, or furnish proof of financial ability to make payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Payments are preferred claims, the same as wage debts. Employees have direct recourse to insuring company; insolvency of employer does not release insurer.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Industrial accident boards for each county; appeals to courts.

ILLINOIS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 10, 1911; in effect May 1, 1912. New act, June 28, 1913; in effect July 1, 1913; amended June 28 (p. 400), 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing permanent disfigurement, disability of over six working days, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—The building trades; construction, excavating and electrical work; transportation; mining and quarrying; work with or about explosives, molten metals, injurious gases or vapors, or corrosive acids, and all enterprises in which the law requires protective devices, provided the employer elects. Other employers may elect, but forfeit no defences if they do not. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees. Public employment: All persons employed by the State, county, municipality, etc., except officials.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests on the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent or to lineal heirs to whose support the employee had contributed within four years, a sum equal to four years' earnings, not less than $1,650 nor more than $3,500.

(b) If only dependent collateral heirs survive, such a percentage of the above sum as the support rendered during the last two years was of the earnings of the deceased.

(c) If no dependents, a burial benefit not exceeding $150.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and surgical aid for not over eight weeks, not over $200 in value.

(b) For total disability, beginning with eighth day (second day of permanent), a weekly sum equal to one-half the employee's earnings, $6 minimum, $12 maximum, during disability or until payments equal a death benefit; thereafter, if the disability is permanent, a sum annually equal to 8 per cent. of a death benefit, but not less than $10 per month.

(c) For permanent partial disability, one-half the loss of earning capacity, not more than $12 per week.

(d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.), a benefit of 50 per cent. of weekly wages for fixed periods.

(e) For serious and permanent disfigurement, not causing incapacity and not otherwise compensated, a sum not exceeding one-fourth the death benefits.

No payments are to extend beyond eight years, except in case of permanent total incapacity.

Lump sum payments for either death or disability may be substituted by the Industrial Board for periodic payments.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Medical examination may be had not oftener than every four weeks. The Industrial Board may, on request, review instalment payments within eighteen months after the award or agreement thereon.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure or maintain a benefit system, but may not reduce his liability under the act.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of insolvency, awards constitute liens upon all property of the employer within the county, paramount to all other claims, except wages, taxes, mortgages, or trust deeds.

Employers must furnish proof of ability to pay, or give security, insure, or make other provision for security of payment. The rights of an insolvent employer to insurance indemnities are subrogated to injured employees.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the Industrial Board through an arbitrator or arbitration committee, subject to review by the board. Questions of law may be reviewed by the courts.

INDIANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 8, 1915; in effect September 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than two weeks, or death by accident arising out of and in course of employment, not due to wilful misconduct, intention to injure self, intoxication, or wilful failure or refusal to use safety appliance or perform duty required by statute.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except interstate and foreign commerce, for which Federal laws make provision, and domestic and agricultural labor, unless employer make contrary election; compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees and contractors' employees engaged upon the subject matter of the contract; casual employees are excepted. Public employment: All employees.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 for funeral expenses, if death from the injury occurs within 300 weeks.

(b) 50 per cent. of weekly wages to persons wholly dependent; to those partially dependent, amounts proportionate to decedent's contributions to their support. The term of payment is limited to 300 weeks from the receipt of the injury.

(c) Payments cease on remarriage of widow or dependent widower, or on children attaining the age of eighteen years, unless mentally or physically disabled for earning. Wages are to be considered as not above $24 nor less than $10 weekly, no total to exceed $5,000.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and hospital services for first thirty days, and longer at option of employer; employee must accept unless otherwise ordered by Industrial Board.

(b) For total disability, 55 per cent. of wages for not more than 500 weeks.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of wage loss for not more than 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries, 55 per cent. of wages for designated periods ranging from 15 to 200 weeks

Wage basis and total amounts are limited as for death benefits.

Any payments may be commuted to a lump sum after twenty-six weeks.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be viewed at any time by Industrial Board on its own motion or the request of either party, but without retroactive effect.

INSURANCE—Required unless satisfactory proof of financial ability to meet payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Contracts of insurance must inure directly to the benefit of the person entitled to payments under an award. Payments have same preference and priority as unpaid wages, and are exempt from claims of creditors.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the Industrial Board, with appeal to courts on questions of law.

IOWA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 18, 1913; in effect (a) establishing industrial commission and providing for insurance of employees, July 4, 1913; (b) compensation features, July 1, 1914.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All personal injuries arising out of and in the course of the employment causing disability of more than two weeks, or death; except when caused by the injured employee's wilful intention to injure himself or another, or by the intoxication of the employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries except agriculture, in absence of contrary election by employer. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered in absence of contrary election, except clerks not subjected to the hazards of the industry and casual employees. Public employment: All employees of the State and its subdivisions.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire burden is on employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Reasonable expenses of the employee's last sickness and burial, not to exceed $100.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to 50 per cent. of the wages of the deceased employee, but not more than $10 nor less than $5 per week, for 300 weeks.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, such a proportion of the above as the amounts contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bear to his annual earnings.

(d) If the employee was a minor whose earnings were received by the parent, a sum to the parent equal to two-thirds of the amount provided for persons wholly dependent.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services and supplies for first two weeks, not exceeding $100.

(b) For total temporary disability 50 per cent. of wages, not more than $10 nor less than $5 (unless wages are less than $5, then full wages), for not more than 300 weeks.

(c) For total permanent disability, the same compensation as for temporary disability, to be paid for a period of not more than 400 weeks.

(d) For partial permanent disability (specified maimings), 50 per cent. of average weekly wages for fixed periods.

Lump sum payments may be substituted on approval of the court.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Payments may be reviewed by the Industrial Commissioner at the request of either party.

INSURANCE—Employers may insure in approved companies or mutual associations, or contract with employees to maintain approved scheme in lieu of the compensation provided by law, provided there is no diminution of benefits.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Employers must insure in approved companies or mutual associations, or furnish satisfactory proof of financial ability to make payments, or deposit security with the State Insurance Department. In case of insolvency of the insurer, a claim for compensation becomes a first lien, and in case of legal incapacity of insured to receive the amount due, the insurer must settle directly with the beneficiary.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes may be settled by arbitration.

KANSAS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 14, 1911; in effect January 1, 1912; amended March 10, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries by accident arising out of and in the course of employment not due to intoxication or deliberate intention of injured employee, or caused by his wilful failure to use safeguards provided by statute or furnished by employer, causing incapacity to earn full wages for at least two weeks, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Railways, factories, quarries, electrical, building or engineering work, laundries, natural gas plants, county and municipal work, employments requiring the use of dangerous, explosive or inflammable materials, if employing five or more persons; and mines without reference to the number of employees, in absence of contrary election; employers of less than five persons may also elect.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including apprentices, but excluding casual employees. Public employment: Workmen on county and municipal work.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a sum equal to three years' earnings of the deceased employee, not less than $1,200 nor more than $3,600. For non-resident alien beneficiaries (except in Canada) the maximum is $750.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum proportionate to the injury to such dependents.

(c) If no dependents are left, a reasonable expense for medical attendance and burial, not exceeding $100. Compensation ceases upon the marriage of any dependent, or when a minor, not physically or mentally incapable of wage earning, shall become eighteen years of age.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total incapacity, payments during incapacity after the second week, equal to 50 per cent. of earnings, but not less than $6 nor more than $15 per week.

(b) For partial incapacity, payments during incapacity, after the second week, not less than 25 nor more than 50 per cent. of earnings, not less than $3 nor more than $12 per week, except in case of minors earning less than $10 per week, in which case the compensation shall not be less than 75 per cent. of the earnings. No payments for total or partial disability shall extend over more than eight years. After six months, lump sum payments may be substituted, as agreed upon or determined by the court.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Any award may be modified at any time by agreement. After one year either party may demand a revision. Employees must submit to medical examination at reasonable periods to determine their physical condition.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure in any approved insurance scheme which provides compensation not less favorable than is provided in this act.

SECURITY OF PAYMENT—Lump sums awarded by the court may be secured by order of the court by a good and sufficient bond when there is doubt of security of payment. If the employer was insured, the insurer shall be subrogated to the rights and duties of the employer.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes not settled by agreement may be referred to arbitrators, subject to an appeal to courts.

KENTUCKY.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 23, 1916; in effect August 1, 1916.

INJURIES COMPENSATED — Personal injuries by accident arising out of and in course of employment, causing incapacity for more than two weeks, or death, not self-inflicted, or due to intoxication or wilful misconduct. Results of pre-existing diseases are not included.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except domestic service and farm labor where five or more persons are employed; excepted industries may become subject to the act by joint application by employers and employees.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in establishments coming under the act, if the employees elect. Public employment: All employees of municipalities coming under the act, if the employees elect.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Reasonable burial expenses, not to exceed $75.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, 65 per cent. of the average weekly earnings, not more than $12 nor less than $5 per week, for 335 weeks, the total not to exceed $4,000.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, a proportion of the amount for total dependency, determined by the degree of dependence.

(d) If no dependents, $100 payable to the personal representative.

Payments to a widow or widower cease on remarriage and to a child on reaching the age of 16, unless incapacitated for wage earning.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, surgical, and hospital aid for 90 days, unless another period is fixed by the board, the cost not to exceed $100.

(b) For total disability, 65 per cent. of average weekly wages for eight years, not more than $12 nor less than $5, total not to exceed $5,000.

(c) For partial disability, 65 per cent. of the weekly wage loss, not to exceed $12, for not more than 335 weeks, total not to exceed $4,000.

Compensation periods are fixed for specified injuries.

Lump sum awards may be made after six months, if approved by the board.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Review may be had on the request of either party or on the motion of the board, changing or revoking any previous order.

INSURANCE—Employers accepting the act must insure in a stock or mutual company or the State Employees' Insurance Association, or give proof of financial ability to pay compensation direct.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance policies must provide for direct liability to the beneficiaries. Self-insurers must furnish bond or other security. Benefits have the same priority as wage debts and are not subject to assignment or attachment.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the Workmen's Compensation Board, or a member thereof, or a referee appointed by it; limited appeals to courts.

LOUISIANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 18, 1914; in effect January 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident arising out of and in course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death within one year, and not due to wilful intention to injure, to intoxication, to deliberate failure to use safeguards, or to deliberate breach of safety laws.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Hazardous trades, businesses or occupations in absence of contrary election; extensive list, and others may be so adjudged or brought within the act by voluntary agreement. Compulsory as to employees of the State and its municipalities and public boards.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person performing services arising out of and incidental to his employer's trade, business or occupation, if the same is within the act. Public employment: Every person in the service of the State, etc., except officials.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 expenses of last sickness and burial.

(b) To widow or dependent widower alone, 25 per cent. of weekly wages, 40 per cent. if one child, and 50 per cent. if two or more. If one child alone, 25 per cent., 40 per cent. for two, and 50 per cent. for three or more.

For one dependent parent, 25 per cent.; for two, 50 per cent.; if one brother or sister, 25 per cent., and 10 per cent. additional for each other. The total in no case may exceed 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $3 minimum payment, $10 maximum, for not over 300 weeks. Payment to any beneficiary ceases on death or marriage, to children on reaching the age of eighteen, unless mentally or physically incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital service, not to exceed $100 in value.

(b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $3 minimum, $10 maximum, for not more than 400 weeks.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss, not over $10, for not more than 400 weeks.

(d) Fixed schedule for specified injuries, for periods from 10 to 150 weeks. Payments in any case may be commuted to a lump sum on agreement of the parties and approved by the courts.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Judgments may be modified at any time by agreement of the parties and approval by the courts; or after one year, they may be reviewed by the court on application of either party.

INSURANCE—Not required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Policy of insurance must give claimants right to direct payment regardless of the default or bankruptcy of the employer. Compensation payments have the same preference as wage debts.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by Judges of the courts in simple, summary procedure.

MAINE.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 1, 1915; in effect January 1, 1916.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury sustained in course of employment, causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, not due to wilful intention to injure himself or another, and not due to intoxication unless fact or habit of intoxication was known or cognizable to employer.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except agricultural and domestic labor, and seamen in interstate or foreign commerce, in which more than five persons are employed, if employer elects. Abrogation of defences does not affect cutting, hauling, driving or rafting of logs.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons in industries covered, casual employees excepted. Public employment: Employees of State, cities and counties, and of towns accepting the provisions of the act, other than official.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—All on employer. If employees contribute to substitute scheme, additional proportionate benefits must be paid.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for 300 weeks, $4 minimum, $10 maximum.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, amounts proportionate to their degree of dependency, for 300 weeks.

(c) If only one wholly dependent and more than one partly dependent person survives, payments are to be divided according to the relative extent of dependency.

(d) If no dependents, not above $200 expenses of last sickness and burial. Payments to children cease at age of eighteen unless mentally or physically incapacitated for earning a living.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services during first two weeks, not over $30 in value, unless by agreement or order of commission a larger amount is provided for.

(b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of the wages for not more than 500 weeks, $4 minimum, $10 maximum, total not to exceed $3,000.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wage loss, not over $10, for not more than 300 weeks. For specified injuries causing permanent partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wages for various fixed periods, then compensation on basis of wage loss, if any, for not more than 300 weeks in all.

Lump sum payments may be approved by the commission after weekly payments for not less than six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Agreements or awards may be reviewed at the instance of either party at any time within two years.

INSURANCE—Insurance in approved companies is required unless the employer gives satisfactory proof of solvency and makes deposit or bond to secure payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance as above. Claims have same preference over unsecured debts as do wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are to be settled by the Industrial Accident Commission, with appeals to courts on questions of law.

MARYLAND.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 16, 1914; in effect November 1, 1914.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Accidental personal injury arising out of and in course of employment, not due to wilful intention or intoxication, and causing disability for more than two weeks or death within two years.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Extra hazardous (enumerated list); others by joint election of employers and employees. Farm and domestic labor, country blacksmiths and wheelwrights are excluded.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All in industries covered, except casual employees and those receiving more than $2,000 annually. Public employment: Workmen employed for wages in extra-hazardous work, unless the municipality makes other equal or better provision.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Funeral expenses not over $75.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for eight years; not more than $4,250 nor less than $1,000.

(c) To persons partly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for such portion of eight years as the commission may fix, the amount not to exceed $3,000.

(d) If no dependents, funeral expenses only.

(e) Payments to widow close on remarriage, and to children on reaching the age of sixteen years, unless mentally or physically incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, surgical, etc., expenses, not above $150 in value.

(b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages, $5 minimum, $12 maximum, for not over eight years; total not to exceed $5,000. If wages are less than $5, full wages will be paid.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wage loss, $12 maximum, total not over $3,000; specific periods for specified maimings.

Where the injured employee is a learner, with prospect of increase of wages, this fact may be considered in fixing awards.

Payments may, in the discretion of the commission, be made in part or in whole in lump sums.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The commission may modify its findings and orders at any time for justifiable cause.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund, stock or mutual company, or proof of financial ability, is required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Policies must permit action by commission to secure payments to any person entitled. Payments may not be assigned, nor are they subject to execution or attachment.

MASSACHUSETTS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—July 28, 1911; in effect July 1, 1912; amended chapters 571, 1912; 48, 448, 568, 696, 746, 1913; 338, 708, 1914; 123, 275, 314, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing incapacity for two weeks, or death, unless the injury is due to the serious and wilful misconduct of the injured employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries if the employer so elects.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, except masters of vessels and seamen engaged in interstate or foreign commerce and casual employees. Public employment: The State shall, and any county, city, town or district having power of taxation and accepting the act may compensate its laborers, workmen, and mechanics.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to two-thirds the average weekly wages of the deceased employee, but not less than $4 nor more than $10, for a period of 500 weeks, the total not to exceed $4,000.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum proportionate to the portion of earnings contributed to their support by the deceased employee.

(c) If no dependents the reasonable expense of last sickness and burial, not to exceed $200.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services, and medicines as needed, for the first two weeks after injury.

(b) For total disability, a sum equal to two-thirds the average weekly wages, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, not exceeding 500 weeks nor $4,000 in amount.

(c) For partial disability, two-thirds the wage loss, but not to exceed $10 per week, and for not longer than 500 weeks.

(d) In specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), two-thirds the weekly wages, not exceeding $10 nor less than $4 per week, for fixed periods, in addition to other compensation.

Lump-sum payments may be substituted in whole or part, after payments for injury or death have been made for not less than six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Either party may demand a revision of payment at any time. Employees must submit to medical examination to determine their physical condition when requested by the employer.

INSURANCE—Employer must become a subscriber of the State Employees' Insurance Association or insure in some authorized liability insurance company.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—All risks must be insured in approved companies.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTE—On request of either party, the Industrial Accident Board calls for a committee of arbitration, whose decision is subject to review by the Industrial Accident Board.

MICHIGAN.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 20, 1912; in effect September 1, 1912; amended chapters 50, 79, 156, 259, 1913; 104, 153, 170, 171, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries causing incapacity to earn full wages for a period of two weeks, or death, arising out of and in the course of employment, unless such injuries resulted from intentional and wilful misconduct of the injured person.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Compulsory as to the State and its municipalities, and each incorporated public board and commission authorized to hold property and to sue and be sued. All industries having one or more persons in service under contract of hire if the employer elects.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, except casual employees. Public employment: All employees except officials of the State or of a municipality.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to one-half the deceased workman's earnings, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week for a period of 300 weeks.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, such proportion of the above as the amount of previous contributions bears to such earnings.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of the last sickness and burial, not exceeding $200.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services for the first three weeks.

(b) For total incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the earnings, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, nor for a period longer than 500 weeks from the date of the injury, and not exceeding $4,000.

(c) For partial incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the wage loss, but not more than $10 per week, and for not longer than 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries (mutilation, etc.) 50 per cent. of average weekly earnings for fixed periods.

(e) Payments begin with the fifteenth day after the injury, but if the disability continues for eight weeks or longer compensation is computed from the date of injury.

After six months lump sums may be substituted for weekly payments.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Weekly payments may be reviewed by the Industrial Accident Board at the request of either party. An injured employee must submit to medical examination when requested.

INSURANCE—Employer must furnish proof of financial ability to pay the required compensation, or insure in an authorized employers' liability company, or in an employers' insurance association organized under State laws, or become a member of a State insurance fund administered by the State Commissioner of Insurance.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of insolvency, claims constitute a first lien upon all property of the employer. Employers must furnish proof of financial ability to pay compensation, or insure in approved companies or with the State.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Either party may request the Industrial Accident Board to appoint a committee of arbitration, whose decisions are subject to review by the board. The Supreme Court may review questions of law.

MINNESOTA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 24, 1913; in effect October 1, 1913; amended, chapters 193, 209, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, unless intentionally caused, or due to the intoxication of the injured person.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All excepting common carriers by steam railroad and farm and domestic service, in the absence of contrary election by employers.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, in the absence of contrary election, casual employees excepted. Public employment: All persons in the service of a county, city, town, village, or school district, excluding public officials elected or appointed for regular terms.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Cost rests upon the employer.

(a) $100 funeral expenses.

(b) To a widow alone, 35 per cent. of monthly wages of deceased, increasing to 60 per cent. if four or more children; to a dependent husband alone, 25 per cent.; to a dependent orphan, 40 per cent., with 10 per cent. additional for each additional orphan, with a maximum of 60 per cent.; to the dependent parent or parents, if no dependent widow, widower, or children, 30 per cent. if one parent and 40 per cent. if both survive; if none of the foregoing, but a brother, sister, grandparent, mother-in-law, or father-in-law is wholly dependent, if but one such relative, 25 per cent., or if more than one, 30 per cent., divided equally.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, that proportion of benefits provided for actual dependents which contributions bore to wages earned.

(d) When no dependents are left, expense of last sickness and burial not exceeding $100, in addition to medical and hospital services provided in case of disability.

Payments continue for not more than 300 weeks, and cease when a minor child reaches the age of eighteen, unless physically or mentally incapacitated from earning, and upon the death or marriage of other dependents, unless otherwise specified.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and surgical treatment, not exceeding 90 days nor $100 in value, unless ordered in exceptional cases, when $200 is the limit.

(b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of wages.

(c) For temporary partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss.

(d) For specified permanent partial disability (mutilations, etc.), 50 per cent. of the earnings for fixed periods.

Payment for death or disability may not be less than $6.50 nor more than $11 per week, unless the wages were less than $6.50, when the amount of wages is paid. Payments may not extend beyond 300 weeks, except for permanent total disability, when the maximum is 400 weeks, with payments of not more than $6.50 per week thereafter for 150 weeks, the total not to exceed $5,000.

Lump sums may be substituted for periodical payments, but in case of compensation for death, permanent total disability, or certain maimings the consent of the court must be obtained.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—After six months from the date of an award either party may apply to the court for revision. The employee must submit to medical examination when requested.

INSURANCE—Employers may insure in any authorized company, stock or mutual, or maintain co-operative schemes, assuming other and greater risks, and other classes of industrial insurance.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insured workmen have an equitable lien upon any policy becoming due, and in case of the employer's incapacity the insurer shall make payment directly to them. Claims to compensation have the same preference against the assets of the employer as unpaid wages.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Either party may submit a claim to the Judge of the District Court, who shall determine such dispute in a summary manner, subject to review by the Supreme Court as to questions of law.

MONTANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 8, 1915; in effect July 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in course of employment, resulting from some fortuitous event, causing death or disability of more than two weeks' duration.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—"All inherently hazardous works and occupations," including manufactures, construction work, transportation and repair of the means thereof, and any hazardous occupation or work not enumerated, in which employers elect, but not including agricultural, domestic or casual labor.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons other than independent contractors, employed in the industries covered, whether as manual laborers or otherwise, except casual employees. Public employment: All employees in the industries covered.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—All on employer, except that contributions may be arranged for hospital fund.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $75 for funeral expenses, if death occurs within six months of injury.

(b) To beneficiaries (widow, widower, child or children under 16, or invalid child above 16) 50 per cent. of wages of the deceased if residents of the United States, if not, 25 per cent., unless otherwise required by treaty. To major dependents (father or mother) in case there are no beneficiaries, 40 per cent. To minor dependents (brothers or sisters actually dependent), if no beneficiary or major dependent, 30 per cent. Non-resident alien dependents receive nothing unless required by treaty, nor do beneficiaries if citizens of a Government excluding citizens of the United States from equal benefits under compensation laws. Term of payments may not exceed 400 weeks, $10 maximum, $6 minimum; if wages less than $6, then full wages. Payments cease on remarriage of widow or widower, or when child, brother or sister reaches the age of sixteen, unless an invalid.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and hospital services during first two weeks after happening of injury, not over $50 in value, unless there is a hospital contract.

(b) For total temporary disability, 50 per cent. of wages during disability, $10 maximum, $6 minimum, unless wages are less than $6, when full wages will be paid, for not more than 300 weeks.

(c) For total permanent disability, same scale as above for 400 weeks, then $5 per week, while disability continues.

(d) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss, wages and benefits not to exceed $10 nor fall below $6 in amount, unless wages at time of injury were less than $6; payments to continue not more than 150 weeks for permanent cases, and 50 weeks where disability is temporary.

(e) For maimings, compensation of same scale and limits as in (b) for terms ranging from 3 to 200 weeks.

Periodical payments may in any case be converted in whole or part to lump sums.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Decisions and awards may be rescinded or amended at any time by the Industrial Accident Board for good cause.

INSURANCE—The employer may carry his own risk on a showing of financial ability; security may be required for probable liabilities and must be given when a continuing payment is ascertained. Insurance may be carried in any company authorized to do business in the State, or the employer may contribute to a State fund.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of bankruptcy, etc., liabilities under this act are a first lien upon any deposit made by an employer, and if this is not sufficient, then on any property of the employer or insurer within the State, and shall be prorated with other lienable claims.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Proceedings to determine disputes under the act must be instituted before the board and not elsewhere; limited appeal to courts.

NEBRASKA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 21, 1913; in effect July 17, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury causing disability for more than fourteen days, or death, caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, except accident caused by or resulting in any degree from wilful negligence or intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries where five or more persons are employed by the employer in the regular trade, business or occupation of the employer, except domestic service, agriculture and interstate or foreign commerce, in the absence of contrary election. Exempt employees may make an affirmative election.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, but excluding casual employees and home workers. Public employment: All persons employed by the State, or any Government agency created by the State, not having been elected or appointed for a regular term.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) In addition to any other benefits, a reasonable amount not exceeding $100 to cover expenses of last sickness and burial.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the employee's wages, but not less than $5 nor more than $10 per week, during dependency, but not exceeding 350 weeks; if the wages of the deceased were less than $5 per week, then full wages are to be paid as compensation.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, a proportion of the above corresponding to the relation the contribution of the deceased to their support bore to his wages. Compensation to children ceases when they reach the age of sixteen years, unless they are physically or mentally incapacitated from earning.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and hospital services during the first twenty-one days, not exceeding $200 in value.

(b) For total disability, one-half of the weekly wages, but not less than $5 or more than $10 per week for 300 weeks; thereafter while disability lasts 40 per cent. of such wages, but not less than $4 or more than $8 per week: Provided, however, if weekly wages are less than the minimum, compensation to amount of full wages is to be paid.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of loss of earning capacity, but not exceeding $10 per week, nor exceeding 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), 50 per cent. of wages for fixed periods with the same limits as to amounts as above. Payments begin with the twenty-second day, but if disability continues eight weeks or longer, compensation is computed from the date of injury.

Lump sums may be substituted for periodic payments, but if for death or permanent disability, the approval of the court must be obtained.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Benefits running for a period of six months or longer may be revised at any time by agreement of the parties, or after six months by application to a court.

INSURANCE—An employer may insure his liability for compensation in any authorized stock or mutual insurance company.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of the insolvency of an insured employer, claimants are subrogated to the rights as against the company which the employer would have had if he had paid the claim. Compensation rights and awards have the same preference against the assets of the employer as unpaid wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Questions may be submitted to arbitration by mutual consent, or either party may submit a claim to the District Court of county to be heard and determined as a cause in equity, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court.

(a) $100 for funeral expenses.

(b) To a widow or dependent widower alone, 30 per cent. of wages or deceased, 10 per cent. additional for each child under eighteen; dependent orphans under eighteen receive 15 per cent. each, and dependent parents, brothers or sisters receive 15 per cent. each; aggregate payments in no case to exceed 66 2-3 per cent.

(c) Payments to widow or widower cease on death, or remarriage, or when dependence of widower ceases, with two years' compensation on remarriage; payments to children, brothers and sisters cease at eighteen, and to parents when dependence ceases. In computing the above benefits no wages in excess of $100 monthly are considered.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and surgical treatment and hospital services for sixty days, costs to be approved by the commission.

(b) For total disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of wages during continuance.

(c) For partial disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of wage loss; for specified permanent partial disabilities (mutilations, etc.), 66 2-3 per cent. of wages for fixed periods; separate provision for disfigurements. The foregoing payments may not be less than $5 nor more than $15 per week, except for certain maimings the maximum may be $20.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be reviewed at any time, and ended or increased or decreased within the limits fixed.

INSURANCE—Employer must give proof of financial ability to make payments (deposit of securities may be required), or must insure in State fund or mutual or stock company.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance must be made to inure directly to the benefit of claimants; insolvency of employer does not release insurance company. Payments have same preference as unpaid wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the State Industrial Commission, with limited appeals to courts.

OHIO.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 15, 1911; in effect January 1, 1912; amended pp. 72, 396, 1913; 193, 1914; 508, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All injuries not self-inflicted received in the course of employment causing disability beyond one week, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries employing five or more persons regularly in the same business; also establishments with less than five workmen if the employer elects to pay the premiums provided by this act.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, excluding casual workers, but including aliens and minors lawfully employed. Public employment: Persons in the service of the State, or its political subdivisions, excepting the officials of the State or municipal governments, and policemen and firemen in cities where pension funds are established and maintained by municipal authority.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Burial expenses not to exceed $150.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, 66⅔ per cent. of the average weekly earnings of the deceased workman for six years after the date of the injury, not less than $1,500 nor more than $3,750.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, a proportionate sum to continue for all or such portion of the period of six years as the Industrial Commission may determine in each case, not exceeding a maximum of $3,750.

(d) If no dependents, medical and hospital services not exceeding $200 in value, and burial expenses as above.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, hospital, etc., services, not to exceed $200.

(b) For total temporary disability, a weekly payment of 66⅔ per cent. of average weekly wages, during disability, not less than $5 nor more than $12 per week, but not for longer than six years, nor exceeding $3,750.

(c) For total permanent disability, a weekly payment as above continuing until death.

(d) For partial disability, 66⅔ per cent. of loss of earning capacity during the continuance thereof, but not exceeding $12 per week or a total of $3,750.

(e) In certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), compensation of 66⅔ per cent. of wages for fixed periods, with the same maximum and minimum limitations as noted above. In all cases, if wages are less than prescribed minimum, then total wages are paid as compensation; an expected increase in wages may be given consideration.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The Industrial Commission may from time to time make such modification or change in its former findings of fact as it deems necessary.

INSURANCE—The law creates a State insurance fund, under control of an Industrial Commission. Other schemes are permitted, provided benefits equal to those provided by the State insurance fund are guaranteed employees at the employer's cost.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance is under State control. Claims for compensation under this law have the same preference against the assets of the employer as are or may be allowed by law on judgments rendered for claims for taxes.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—The commission hears and determines all cases within its jurisdiction, limited right of appeal to the civil courts being reserved to the claimant.

OKLAHOMA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 22, 1915; in effect September 1, 1915.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industrial establishments in which more than ten persons are employed, and commerce as far as permissible under Federal laws, domestic and casual labor excepted, unless election to the contrary is made. Public service under municipalities which elect compensation system.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All under contract with or in service of an employer, domestic and casual employees and those receiving more than $1,500 excepted. Public employees: All except those elected by popular vote or receiving in excess of $1,500 annually.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $75 for funeral expenses if death occurs within two years.

(b) 33 1-3 per cent. of weekly wages to dependent widow or widower, 40 per cent. if there be one or two children, and 45 per cent. if more than two; if no parent; 25 per cent. to one or two children, 10 per cent. additional for each child in excess of two, total not to exceed 40 per cent.; if no consort or child under eighteen, and dependent parent, grandparent, or grandchild, 15 to 25 per cent. of wages.

(c) Payments to widow cease on death or remarriage; to widower on remarriage or cessation of dependency; to children on reaching age of eighteen unless incapable of self-support, in no case to exceed 260 weeks or $3,500 in amount; payments to other classes of beneficiaries end in 208 weeks at most. Basic wages are not less than $5 nor more than $25 weekly.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and hospital services for first fourteen days, not to exceed $75.

(b) For total disability 50 per cent. of weekly wages for twenty-six weeks if temporary, 260 if permanent, subject to extension for fifty-two weeks, $3 minimum, $12.50 maximum, total not to exceed $4,000. If wages are less than $3, full wages will be paid unless disability is permanent, when $3 will be paid.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of wage decrease, maximum $10, for not more than five years.

(d) For certain specified injuries, 50 per cent. of weekly wages, but not more than $10, for designated periods ranging from eight to 170 weeks.

Payments may be commuted to one or more lump sums in any case.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be reviewed on application at any time, but not oftener than once in six months.

INSURANCE—Required unless deposit of security is made, or satisfactory proof of financial responsibility.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Employees may have direct recourse to insuring company; insolvency of employer does not release insurer; compensation rights are preferred claims.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by an Industrial Accident Board, with appeal to courts.

WASHINGTON.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 14, 1911; in effect October 1, 1911; amended, chapters 138, 1913; 188, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries causing disability of 5 per cent., or death, to a person, whether received upon the premises or at the plant or in the course of employment while away from the establishment, except injuries brought about intentionally.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All extra-hazardous employment, including mills, factories and workshops where machinery is used; blast furnaces, mines, quarries and wharves; engineering work; logging, lumbering and shipbuilding; building trades; telegraph, telephone, electric light or power plants or lines; steamboats, tugs and ferries; railroads, except as governed by Federal statute; State, county and municipal undertakings involving extra hazardous work in which persons are employed for wages.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered by the act; any working employer or salaried employee on the payroll at a rate not greater than the average named in such payroll. Public employment: All employees in industries covered by the act.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The entire burden rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Expenses of burial not exceeding $75.

(b) To widow or invalid widower, a monthly payment of $20; to each child under sixteen, $5 per month, the total not to exceed $35.

(c) If no parent survives, a monthly payment of $10 to each child under sixteen years of age, the total not to exceed $35.

(d) To other dependents, if none of the above survive, a monthly payment to each equal to 50 per cent. of the average amount previously contributed to the dependent, the total not to exceed $20.

(e) To the parent or parents of an unmarried minor a monthly payment of $20 until the time he would have been twenty-one. In case of dependence, payments to parents of minors are governed by (d). Payments to a widow or widower continue until death or remarriage, and to a child until reaching the age of sixteen years. If a widow remarries she receives a lump sum of $240.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For permanent total disability, payments as follows: (1) If unmarried at time of the accident, $20 per month; (2) if with a wife or invalid husband, but no child under sixteen years of age, $25 a month; if the husband is not an invalid, $15 per month; (3) if married, or a widow or widower with a child or children under sixteen years, $5 a month additional for each child, the total not to exceed $35.

(b) For total temporary disability, payments as for permanent total disability during disability, increased by 50 per cent. for first six months, but in no case to exceed 60 per cent. of monthly wages.

(c) For temporary partial disability, the payment as for total disability continues in proportion to the loss of earning power, provided this shall exceed 5 per cent.

(d) For permanent partial disability, a lump sum not to exceed $1,500; if the injured person is a minor the parents receive an additional sum equal to 10 per cent. of the award to the injured person. Monthly payments may be converted into lump sum payments in case of death or permanent total disability.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Revision may be had upon application of the beneficiary or upon the motion of the department.

INSURANCE—Insurance is required in a State accident fund.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Accident fund under State control.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—By Industrial Insurance Department, whose decisions are subject to review by the Superior Court, from which appeal lies as in other civil cases.

WEST VIRGINIA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—February 22, 1913; in effect October 1, 1913; amended February 20 and May 21, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All personal injuries not the result of wilful misconduct or intoxication of the injured employee, or self-inflicted, causing incapacity for more than one week or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except domestic or agricultural labor, if the employer becomes a member of the State insurance fund.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered, including aliens, except persons casually employed, and the officers of corporations. Public employment: No provision.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Employer, 90 per cent.; employees, 10 per cent.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Reasonable funeral expenses not to exceed $75.

(b) To the widow or invalid widower, $20 per month and $5 per month additional for each child under the age of legal employment, the total not to exceed $35 per month.

(c) To orphan child or children, $10 each per month until the age of fifteen, total not to exceed $30 per month.

(d) To other persons wholly dependent, if no widow, invalid widower, or child under the age of legal employment is left, 50 per cent. of the average monthly support received from the deceased during the preceding year, not exceeding $20 per month, for six years.

(e) If the deceased was a single minor, to a dependent parent, 50 per cent. of the earnings, not to exceed $6 per week, until the time when he would have become twenty-one.

(f) If only partial dependents survive, a compensation computed as in (d), with the same maximum.

Payments to a widow or widower cease on remarriage, and to children on reaching the age of fifteen years. If widow or invalid widower remarry within two years of death of employee, to be paid 20 per cent. of balance of ten years' benefits.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, nurse, and hospital services, not exceeding $150 ($300 in special cases).

(b) For temporary partial disability, during such disability, 50 per cent. of loss of his earning capacity, not more than $10 per week nor exceeding twenty-six weeks, except that for certain ununited fractures, etc., the period may be fifty-two weeks.

(c) For permanent partial disability, 50 per cent. of wages for periods varying with degree of disability (from 10 to 70 per cent.), periods ranging from thirty to 210 weeks; from 70 to 85 per cent. disability, 40 per cent. of wages for life.

(d) For permanent total disability (85 per cent. or above), 50 per cent. of the average weekly wages, during life.

Lump-sum payments may be substituted for periodic payments in case of either injury or death. Payments under (c) and (d), $4 minimum, $8 maximum.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be modified at any time.

INSURANCE—Insurance is effected through a State fund under the control of the compensation commissioner, or employers of approved ability may carry own risks, giving bond for performance of requirements not less than those of the law, without contributions from their employees.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Payments may be made only to beneficiaries, and are exempt from claims of creditors or attachment or execution.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the commissioner; limited appeal to the Supreme Court.

WISCONSIN.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—May 3, 1911; in effect same date; amended, chapters 599, 707, 772, 1913; 121, 241, 316, 369, 378, 462, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident causing disability of at least one week, or death, while performing service growing out of and incidental to the employment, not intentionally self-inflicted.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All, if the employer elects. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees except casual, including aliens, in the absence of contrary election. Public employment: All employees of the State or its political subdivisions.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a sum equal to four years' earnings, but which when added to any prior compensation for permanent total disability shall not exceed six years' earnings.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum not to exceed four times the amount provided for their support during the preceding year.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of burial, not exceeding $100. All payments are to be made in weekly instalments equal to 65 per cent. of the average weekly earnings. Dependence of children ceases at eighteen, unless physically or mentally incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, surgical, and hospital treatment for not exceeding ninety days, or the reasonable expenses therefor.

(b) For total disability, 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings during such disability, but if the injured person requires the assistance of a nurse, then 100 per cent. of earnings for first ninety days of disability.

(c) For partial disability, 65 per cent. of loss of earning power.

(d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.), a sum equal to 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings for fixed periods.

(e) For serious permanent disfigurement, a lump sum may be allowed, not exceeding $750. In case of temporary or partial disability the aggregate compensation for a single injury shall not exceed four years' earnings, and for permanent disability six years' earnings, nor may the disability period exceed fifteen years from the date of the accident. Lump sum payments may be substituted at any time after six months from the date of injury.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The commission may modify or change its order or award within ten days if a mistake is discovered; or a review by the court may be had on appeal within twenty days. The commission may call for a medical examination at any time it deems necessary.

INSURANCE—Insurance in approved companies is permitted, but the liability of the employer may not be reduced.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—The employer must give proof of financial ability or insure risks. Claims for compensation are preferred above other unsecured debts thereafter contracted.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the Industrial Commission, subject to a limited review by the courts.

WYOMING.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—February 27, 1915; in effect April 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than ten days or death, as a result of employment and not due to the culpable negligence of the injured employee or to the wilful act of a third person due to reasons personal to such employee or because of his employment.

INDUSTRIES COVERED — Extra hazardous (enumerated list), in which five or more workmen are employed, interstate railroads excepted; public employments and use of explosives and work ten or more feet above ground included, without reference to number of employees.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $50 for funeral expenses, unless other arrangements exist under agreement.

(b) Lump-sum payments of $1,000 to widow or invalid widower, and additional sum, equal to $60 per year, until the age of sixteen is reached for each child under the age of sixteen, the total for children not to exceed $1,000. If there are dependent parents and no spouse and no child under sixteen, a sum equal to 50 per cent. of one year's contribution, not exceeding $500.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total permanent disability, lump sum of $1,000 if single, $1,200 if wife or invalid husband, and a sum equal to $60 per year for each child under sixteen until age of sixteen is reached, the total for children not to exceed $1,800. If disability is temporary, $15 per month if single, $20 if married, and $5 monthly for each child under sixteen, the total monthly payment not to exceed $35 and the aggregate not to exceed the amount payable if the disability were permanent.

(b) For permanent partial disability, fixed lump sums for specified injuries, others in proportion.

No provision is made for medical or surgical aid; all payments are lump sums, except for total temporary disability.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—No provision.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance under State control; payments not assignable or subject to execution, attachment, etc.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the district courts of the counties, with appeal to the Supreme Court of the State.

UNITED STATES.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—Sept. 7, 1916; in effect same date.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injuries sustained while in the performance of duty, not due to intoxication, wilful misconduct or intention to bring about injury, causing death or disability for more than three days.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All civilian employments of the United States Government, and the Panama Railroad.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—All civil employees of the United States, and of the Panama Railroad Company.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 burial expenses, and transportation of body of residents of the United States dying away from home, if relatives desire it.

(b) To widow or dependent widower alone, 35 per cent. of the monthly wages of deceased, with 10 per cent. additional for each child, the total not to exceed 66 2-3 per cent.

(c) If no parent survives, 25 per cent. to one child, and 10 per cent. additional for each additional child, the total not to exceed 66 2-3 per cent.

(d) To dependent parents of deceased, 25 per cent. if one, 40 per cent. if both are dependent; if there is a widow, widower or child the parents' rights are subordinate, and the total awards may not exceed 66 2-3 per cent.

(e) Other dependent relatives receive benefits in smaller amounts subject to the claims of the foregoing relatives.

Payments to a widow or dependent widower terminate on their death or remarriage; to a child on marriage, reaching the age of 18, or if over 18 and incapable of self-support, on becoming capable of self-support; payments to other beneficiaries are subject to the above limitations, but may in no case continue beyond 8 years.

All payments are subject to a maximum of $66.67 per month and to a minimum of $33.33, unless the actual earnings are less than that amount, when the compensation shall equal the earnings.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital services and supplies.

(b) For total disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of the monthly pay during the continuance of such disability.

(c) For partial disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of the difference in wage-earning capacity due to such disability.

Payments are subject to the same maximum and minimum amounts as in case of death.

Payments on account of death or permanent disability may be commuted to a lump sum.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be reviewed at any time, either on request or by the commission on its own motion.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Compensation is paid from special compensation fund.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—The United States Employees' Compensation Commission decides all questions arising under the act.

AGRICULTURAL RANK OF STATES.

(Report of Bureau of Census, February 13, 1914.)

The general report on the census on agriculture of the Thirteenth Census discloses some interesting facts regarding the crops of the country and the relative rank of the States in regard to the value of all farm crops according to farm values.

Eleven of the leading crops in 1909 showed a total aggregate value of $4,813,281,000, or approximately 90 per cent. of the total value of all the crops of the United States, which amounted to $5,487,161,000. Of these eleven leading crops corn was the most valuable, followed by hay and forage, cotton, wheat, oats, vegetables (of all kinds), forest products on farms (timber, lumber, etc.), potatoes, tobacco, barley and apples, in the order named. The value of the corn crop alone was $1,438,554,000; that of cotton, $703,619,000; that of wheat, $657,657,000; that of vegetables, $216,257,000; that of tobacco, $104,304,000.

The relative rank of the first nine States in regard to value of crops showed that Illinois led with a total valuation for all farm crops of $372,000,000; Iowa was second with $315,000,000; Texas third with $298,000,000, followed by Ohio with $230,000,000; Georgia, $227,000,000; Missouri, $221,000,000; Kansas, $215,000,000; New York, $209,000,000, and Indiana, $204,000,000.

The State of Illinois ranked first in its production of corn, followed by Iowa and Missouri in the order named. New York ranked first in the production of hay and forage, followed by Iowa and Wisconsin. Texas ranked first in the production of cotton, followed by Georgia and Mississippi. North Dakota was first in the production of wheat, followed by Kansas and Minnesota. Illinois was first in the production of oats, followed by Iowa and Minnesota. New York led in the production of vegetables and Ohio was second. North Carolina ranked first in the production of forest products on farms (timber, lumber, etc.), followed by New York and Virginia. New York was first in the production of potatoes, with Pennsylvania second and Maine third. Kentucky ranked first in the production of tobacco; North Carolina second and Virginia third. Minnesota ranked first in the production of barley, followed by California and Wisconsin. New York also ranked first in the production of apples, with Michigan second and Pennsylvania third.

A summary of the relative rank of the States in these eleven leading farm crops shows that New York ranked first in four; Illinois first in two, with Texas, North Dakota, North Carolina, Kentucky and Minnesota ranking first in one each. Iowa ranked second in three of these abovementioned crops, with Georgia, Kansas, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, California and Michigan ranking second in one each. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Virginia each ranked third in two of these crops, with Missouri, Mississippi, Pennsylvania and Maine third in one each.

RANK OF COUNTIES BY VALUE OF CROPS.

(Report of Bureau of Census, March 25, 1914.)

Los Angeles County, Cal., took the first rank as regards value of crops of all the 2,950 counties of the United States, according to the final report on the census of agriculture, 1910. Lancaster County, Pa., ranked second as regards value of the production of crops; McLean County, Ill., was third; Whitman County, Wash., fourth; Livingston County, Ill., fifth; Iroquois County, Ill., sixth; La Salle Courty, Ill., seventh, and Aroostook County, Me., eighth.

The valuation (at the farm) of the crops raised in Los Angeles County, Cal., according to the census, was $14,720,900; Lancaster County, Pa., $13,059,600; McLean County, Ill., $12,811,500; Whitman County, Wash., $12,540,700; Livingston County, Ill., $11,377,300; Iroquois County, Ill., $10,607,800; La Salle County, Ill., $10,222,200, and Aroostook County, Me., $10,151,000. The total valuation of the crops raised in these eight counties was $95,491,000, or about 2 per cent. of the total valuation of all crops raised in the United States, which was $5,487,161,000.

The principal crops raised in Los Angeles County in the order of their value were fruits, etc., hay and forage, live stock, dairy products, etc., and vegetables; of Lancaster County Pa., corn, wheat and oats, and live stock and dairy products; of McLean County Ill.; Whitman County, Wash.; Livingston County, Ill., and La Salle County, Ill., corn, wheat, oats and cereals, and of Aroostook County, Me., potatoes and vegetables. The principal crops of the United States, in the order of their value, were the cereals, corn, wheat, oats, etc., hay and forage, and cotton.

Some interesting data are presented by the figures for the value per acre and per capita of the crops raised in these eight banner counties of the United States. The figures for Los Angeles County show that the total value of the crops raised there averaged $35 per acre and $29 per capita (the city of Los Angeles with a population of 320,000, being within Los Angeles County, is the chief reason for the low rate per capita); for Lancaster County, Pa., $28 per acre and $78 per capita; for McLean County, Ill., $18 per acre and $188 per capita; Whitman County, Wash., $14 per acre and $377 per capita; Livingston County, Ill., $18 per acre and $281 per capita; Iroquois County, Ill., $16 per acre and $298 per capita; La Salle County, Ill., $17 per acre and $113 per capita, and Aroostook County, Me., $23 per acre and $136 per capita. The corresponding crop value figures (at the farm) for the United States for the same year were $16 per acre and $60 per capita.

Wool of Classes I. and II. are used for the manufacture of cloths, dress goods, and similar fabrics. Domestic wools are of these two classes. Class III. wools are used principally in the carpet manufacture and are practically not grown in the United States. The domestic wool shown in the above table is the quantity in its greasy state as shorn from the sheep and includes 28,800,000 pounds of pulled wool. Fleece wool is wool shorn from living sheep. Pulled wool is wool removed from the skin of slaughtered animals.

Reduced to the scoured condition fit for use in manufacture, the annual production, both fleece and pulled, and total value based on the price in Boston in October of each year for the years 1904-1915, inclusive, are as follows:

THE MORRIS PLAN.

The Morris Plan of industrial loans and investments—named for its originator, Arthur J. Morris—has been in operation in Norfolk, Va., since March, 1910, and to-day is operated in about thirty other cities throughout the country. Loans are usually made in the amount of $50 or multiples thereof. They are based on character and earning capacity, and are secured only by the borrower's note indorsed by two co-makers. If a loan is granted a small fee is charged toward the cost of investigation, and the note is discounted at the legal rate of interest. At the same time the borrower subscribes for one or more of the lending company's certificates of investment for an amount equal to his loan, and in purchase thereof pays $1.00 a week for fifty weeks on each $50 borrowed. At the end of the year he can cash in his certificate and with the money thus obtained redeem his note. To encourage the habit of saving, Morris Plan companies sell certificates of investment, either for cash or on the instalment plan, to others than borrowers. These certificates begin to bear interest at 4 per cent. when twenty-five payments have been made, and at 5 per cent. when they are full paid. Holders of interest-bearing certificates can borrow on them, without indorsements or other securities, an amount equal to the total payments they have made in purchase of the certificates.

At the close of the year 1916 over $25,500,000 had been lent to about 200,000 borrowers on the Morris Plan in sums averaging less than $128. The subscribed capital of Morris Plan companies exceeds $7,000,000. The largest auxiliary institution is the Morris Plan Company of New York (Equitable Building, 120 Broadway), of which Henry R. Towne is President.

These companies are organized throughout the United States by the Industrial Finance Corporation (52 William Street, New York), which has a subscribed capital of $3,700,000. Officers—Clark Williams, President; Arthur J. Morris Vice-President; Charles H. Sabin, Treasurer; Joseph B. Gilder, Secretary.

THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT.

(RURAL CREDITS BILL.)

AN Act to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgage, to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositaries and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the short title of this Act shall be "The Federal Farm Loan Act." Its administration shall be under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board hereinafter created.

DEFINITIONS.

SEC. 2. That wherever the term "first mortgage" is used in this Act it shall be held to include such classes of first liens on farm lands as shall be approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board, and the credit instruments secured thereby. The term "farm loan bonds" shall be held to include all bonds secured by collateral deposited with a farm loan registrar under the terms of this Act; they shall be distinguished by the addition of the words "Federal," or "joint stock," as the case may be.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN BOARD.

SEC. 3. That there shall be established at the seat of government in the Department of the Treasury a bureau charged with the execution of this Act and of all Acts amendatory thereof, to be known as the Federal Farm Loan Bureau, under the general supervision of a Federal Farm Loan Board.

Said Federal Farm Loan Board shall consist of five members, including the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall be a member and chairman ex officio, and four members to be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Of the four members to be appointed by the President, not more than two shall be appointed from one political party, and all four of said members shall be citizens of the United States and shall devote their entire time to the business of the Federal Farm Loan Board; they shall receive an annual salary of $10,000 payable monthly, together with actual necessary travelling expenses.

One of the members to be appointed by the President shall be designated by him to serve two years, one for four years, one for six years, and one for eight years, and thereafter each member so appointed shall serve for a term of eight years, unless sooner removed for cause by the President. One of the members shall be designated by the President as the Farm Loan Commissioner, who shall be the active executive officer of said board.

No member of the Federal Farm Loan Board shall, during his continuance in office, be an officer or director of any other institution, association, or partnership engaged in banking, or in the business of making land mortgage loans or selling land mortgages. Before entering upon his duties as a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board each member shall certify under oath to the President that he is eligible under this section.

The President shall have the power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to fill any vacancy occurring in the membership of the Federal Farm Loan Board; if such vacancy shall be filled during the recess of the Senate a commission shall be granted which shall expire at the end of the next session.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall appoint a farm loan registrar in each land bank district to receive applications for issues of farm loan bonds and to perform such other services as are prescribed by this Act. It shall also appoint one or more land bank appraisers for each land bank district and as many land bank examiners as it shall deem necessary. Farm loan registrars, land bank appraisers, and land bank examiners appointed under this section shall be public officials and shall, during their continuance in office, have no connection with or interest in any other institution, association, or partnership engaged in banking or in the business of making land mortgage loans or selling land mortgages: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to persons employed by the board temporarily to do special work.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall annually make a full report of its operations to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, who shall cause the same to be printed for the information of the Congress.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall from time to time require examinations and reports of condition of all land banks established under the provisions of this Act and shall publish consolidated statements of the results thereof. It shall cause to be made appraisals of farm lands as provided by this Act, and shall prepare and publish amortization tables which shall be used by national farm loan associations and land banks organized under this Act.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall prescribe a form for the statement of condition of national farm loan associations and land banks under its supervision, which shall be filled out quarterly by each such association or bank and transmitted to said board.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS.

SEC. 4. That as soon as practicable the Federal Farm Loan Board shall divide the continental United States, excluding Alaska, into twelve districts, which shall be known as Federal land bank districts, and may be designated by number. Said districts shall be apportioned with due regard to the farm loan needs of the country, but no such district shall contain a fractional part of any State. The boundaries thereof may be readjusted from time to time in the discretion of said board.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall establish in each Federal land bank district a Federal land bank, with its principal office located in such city within the district as said board shall designate. Each Federal land bank shall include in its title the name of the city in which it is located. Subject to the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, any Federal land bank may establish branches within the land bank district.

Each Federal land bank shall be temporarily managed by five directors appointed by the Federal Farm Loan Board. Said directors shall be citizens of the United States and residents of the district. They shall each give a surety bond, the premium on which shall be paid from the funds of the bank. They shall receive such compensation as the Federal Farm Loan Board shall fix. They shall choose from their number, by majority vote, a president, a vice president, a secretary and a treasurer. They are further authorized and empowered to employ such attorneys, experts, assistants, clerks, laborers, and other employés as they may deem necessary, and to fix their compensation, subject to the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Said temporary directors shall, under their hands, forthwith make an organization certificate, which shall specifically state:

First. The name assumed by such bank.

Second. The district within which its operations are to be carried on, and the particular city in which its principal office is to be located.

Third. The amount of capital stock and the number of shares into which the same is to be divided: Provided. That every Federal land bank organized under this Act shall by its articles of association permit an increase of its capital stock from time to time for the purpose of providing for the issue of shares to national farm loan associations and stockholders who may secure loans through agents of Federal land banks in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Fourth. The fact that the certificate is made to enable such persons to avail themselves of the advantages of this Act. The organization certificate shall be acknowledged before a judge or clerk of some court of record or notary public, and shall be, together with the acknowledgment thereof, authenticated by the seal of such court or notary, transmitted to the Farm Loan Commissioner, who shall record and carefully preserve the same in his office, where it shall be at all times open to public inspection.

The Federal Farm Loan Board is authorized to direct such changes in or additions to any such organization certificate, not inconsistent with this Act, as it may deem necessary or expedient.

Upon duly making and filing such organization certificate the bank shall become, as from the date of the execution of its organization certificate, a body corporate, and as such, and in the name designated in the organization certificate, it shall have power—

1st.—To adopt and use a corporate seal. 2d.—To have succession until it is dissolved by Act of Congress or under the provisions of this Act. 3d.—To make contracts. 4th.—To sue and be sued, complain, interplead, and defend, in any court of law or equity, as fully as natural persons. 5th.—To elect or appoint directors, and by its board of directors to elect a president and a vice president, appoint a secretary and a treasurer and other officers and employés, define their duties, require bonds of them, and fix the penalty thereof; by action of its board of directors dismiss such officers and employés, or any of them, at pleasure and appoint others to fill their places. 6th.—To prescribe, by its board of directors, subject to the supervision and regulation of the Federal Farm Loan Board, by-laws not inconsistent with law, regulating the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected, its officers elected or appointed, its property transferred, its general business conducted, and the privileges granted to it by law exercised and enjoyed. 7th.—To exercise, by its board of directors or duly authorized officers or agents, subject to law, all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business herein described.

After the subscriptions to stock in any Federal land bank by national farm loan associations, hereinafter authorized, shall have reached the sum of $100,000, the officers and directors of said land bank shall be chosen as herein provided and shall, upon becoming duly qualified, take over the management of said land bank from the temporary officers selected under this section.

The board of directors of every Federal land bank shall be selected as hereinafter specified and shall consist of nine members, each holding office for three years. Six of said directors shall be known as local directors, and shall be chosen by and be representative of national farm loan associations; and the remaining three directors shall be known as district directors, and shall be appointed by the Federal Farm Loan Board and represent the public interest.

At least two months before each election the Farm Loan Commissioner shall notify each national farm loan association in writing that such election is to be held, giving the number of directors to be elected for its district, and requesting each association to nominate one candidate for each director to be elected. Within ten days of the receipt of such notice each association shall forward its nominations to said Farm Loan Commissioner. Said Commissioner shall prepare a list of candidates for local directors consisting of the twenty persons securing the highest number of votes from national farm loan associations making such nominations.

At least one month before said election said Farm Loan Commissioner shall mail to each national farm loan association the list of candidates. The directors of each national farm loan association shall cast the vote of said association for as many candidates on said list as there are vacancies to be filled, and shall forward said vote to the Farm Loan Commissioner within ten days after said list of candidates is received by them. The candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall be elected as local directors. In case of a tie the Farm Loan Commissioner shall determine the choice.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall designate one of the district directors to serve for three years and to act as chairman of the board of directors. It shall designate one of said directors to serve for a term of two years and one to serve for a term of one year. After the first appointments each district director shall be appointed for a term of three years.

At the first regular meeting of the board of directors of each Federal land bank it shall be the duty of the local directors to designate two of the local directors whose term of office shall expire in one year from the date of such meeting, two whose term of office shall expire in two years from said date, and two whose term of office shall expire in three years from said date. Thereafter every local director of a Federal land bank chosen as hereinbefore provided shall hold office for a term of three years. Vacancies that may occur in the board of directors shall be filled for the unexpired term in the manner provided for the original selection of such directors.

Directors of Federal land banks shall have been for at least two years residents of the district for which they are appointed or elected, and at least one district director shall be experienced in practical farming and actually engaged at the time of his appointment in farming operations within the district. No director of a Federal land bank shall, during his continuance in office, act as an officer, director, or employé of any other institution, association, or partnership engaged in banking or in the business of making or selling land mortgage loans.

Directors of Federal land banks shall receive, in addition to any compensation otherwise provided, a reasonable allowance for necessary expenses in attending meetings of their respective boards, to be paid by the respective Federal land banks. Any compensation that may be provided by boards of directors of Federal land banks for directors, officers, or employés shall be subject to the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

CAPITAL STOCK OF FEDERAL LAND BANKS.

SEC. 5. That every Federal land bank shall have, before beginning business, a subscribed capital of not less than $750,000. The Federal Farm Loan Board is authorized to prescribe the times and conditions of the payment of subscriptions to capital stock, to reject any subscription in its discretion, and to require subscribers to furnish adequate security for the payment thereof.

The capital stock of each Federal land bank shall be divided into shares of $5 each, and may be subscribed for and held by any individual, firm, or corporation, or by the Government of any State or of the United States.

Stock held by national farm loan associations shall not be transferred or hypothecated, and the certificates therefor shall so state.

Stock owned by the Government of the United States in Federal land banks shall receive no dividends, but all other stock shall share in dividend distributions without preference. Each national farm loan association and the Government of the United States shall be entitled to one vote for each share of stock held by it in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders, and no other shareholder shall be permitted to vote. Stock owned by the United States shall be voted by the Farm Loan Commissioner, as directed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

It shall be the duty of the Federal Farm Loan Board, as soon as practicable after the passage of this Act, to open books of subscription for the capital stock of a Federal land bank in each Federal land bank district. If within thirty days after the opening of said books any part of the minimum capitalization of $750,000 herein prescribed for Federal land banks shall remain unsubscribed, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to subscribe the balance thereof on behalf of the United States, said subscription to be subject to call in whole or in part by the board of directors of said land bank upon thirty days' notice with the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to take out shares corresponding to the unsubscribed balance as called, and to pay for the same out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Thereafter no stock shall be issued except as hereinafter provided.

After the subscriptions to capital stock by national farm loan associations shall amount to $750,000 in any Federal land bank, said bank shall apply semi-annually to the payment and retirement of the shares of stock which were issued to represent the subscriptions to the original capital twenty-five per centum of all sums thereafter subscribed to capital stock until all such original capital stock is retired at par.

At least twenty-five per centum of that part of the capital of any Federal land bank for which stock is outstanding in the name of national farm loan associations shall be held in quick assets, and may consist of cash in the vaults of said land bank, or in deposits in member banks of the Federal reserve system, or in readily marketable securities which are approved under rules and regulations of the Federal Farm Loan Board: Provided, That not less than five per centum of such capital shall be invested in United States Government bonds.

GOVERNMENT DEPOSITARIES.

SEC. 6. That all Federal land banks and joint stock land banks organized under this Act when designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositaries of public money, except receipts from customs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by said Secretary and they may also be employed as financial agents of the Government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties, as depositaries of public money and financial agents of the Government, as may be required of them. And the Secretary of the Treasury shall require of the Federal land banks and joint stock land banks thus designated satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds or otherwise, for the safekeeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the Government. No Government funds deposited under the provisions of this section shall be invested in mortgage loans or farm loan bonds.

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

SEC. 7. That corporations, to be known as national farm loan associations, may be organized by persons desiring to borrow money on farm mortgage security under the terms of this Act. Such persons shall enter into articles of association which shall specify in general terms the object for which the association is formed and the territory within which its operations are to be carried on, and which may contain any other provision, not inconsistent with law, which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of its business and the conduct of its affairs. Said articles shall be signed by the persons uniting to form the association, and a copy thereof shall be forwarded to the Federal land bank for the district, to be filed and preserved in its office.

Every national farm loan association shall elect, in the manner prescribed for the election of directors of national banking associations, a board of not less than five directors, who shall hold office for the same period as directors of national banking associations. It shall be the duty of said board of directors to choose in such manner as they may prefer a secretary-treasurer, who shall receive such compensation as said board of directors shall determine. The board of directors shall elect a president, a vice president, and a loan committee of three members.

The directors and all officers except the secretary-treasurer shall serve without compensation, unless the payment of salaries to them shall be approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board. All officers and directors except the secretary-treasurer shall, during their term of office, be bona fide residents of the territory within which the association is authorized to do business, and shall be shareholders of the association.

It shall be the duty of the secretary-treasurer of every national farm loan association to act as custodian of its funds and to deposit the same in such bank as the board of directors may designate, to pay over to borrowers all sums received for their account from the Federal land bank upon first mortgage as in this Act prescribed, and to meet all other obligations of the association, subject to the orders of the board of directors and in accordance with the by-laws of the association. It shall be the duty of the secretary-treasurer, acting under the direction of the national farm loan association, to collect, receipt for, and transmit to the Federal land bank payments of interest, amortization instalments, or principal arising out of loans made through the association. He shall be the custodian of the securities, records, papers, certificates of stock, and all documents relating to or bearing upon the conduct of the affairs of the association. He shall furnish a suitable surety bond to be prescribed and approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board for the proper performance of the duties imposed upon him under this Act, which shall cover prompt collection and transmission of funds. He shall make a quarterly report to the Federal Farm Loan Board upon forms to be provided for that purpose. Upon request from said board said secretary-treasurer shall furnish information regarding the condition of the national farm loan association for which he is acting, and he shall carry out all duly authorized orders of said board. He shall assure himself from time to time that the loans made through the national farm loan association of which he is an officer are applied to the purposes set forth in the application of the borrower as approved, and shall forthwith report to the land bank of the district any failure of any borrower to comply with the terms of his application or mortgage. He shall also ascertain and report to said bank the amount of any delinquent taxes on land mortgaged to said bank and the name of the delinquent.

The reasonable expenses of the secretary-treasurer, the loan committee, and other officers and agents of national farm loan associations, and the salary of the secretary-treasurer, shall be paid from the general funds of the association, and the board of directors is authorized to set aside such sums as it shall deem requisite for that purpose and for other expenses of said association. When no such funds are available, the board of directors may levy an assessment on members in proportion to the amount of stock held by each, which may be repaid as soon as funds are available, or it may secure an advance from the Federal land bank of the district, to be repaid, with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum, from dividends belonging to said association. Said Federal land bank is hereby authorized to make such advance and to deduct such repayment.

Ten or more natural persons who are the owners, or about to become the owners, of farm land qualified as security for a mortgage loan under section twelve of this Act, may unite to form a national farm loan association. They shall organize subject to the requirements and the conditions specified in this section and in section four of this Act, so far as the same may be applicable: Provided, That the board of directors may consist of five members only, and instead of a secretary and a treasurer there shall be a secretary-treasurer, who need not be a shareholder of the association.

When the articles of association are forwarded to the Federal land bank of the district as provided in this section, they shall be accompanied by the written report of the loan committee as required in section ten of this Act, and by an affidavit stating that each of the subscribers is the owner, or is about to become the owner, of farm land qualified under section twelve of this Act as the basis of a mortgage loan; that the loan desired by each person is not more than $10,000, nor less than $100, and that the aggregate of the desired loans is not less than $20,000; that said affidavit is accompanied by a subscription to stock in the Federal land bank equal to five per centum of the aggregate sum desired on mortgage loans; and that a temporary organization of said association has been formed by the election of a board of directors, a loan committee, and a secretary-treasurer who subscribes to said affidavit, giving his residence and post-office address.

Upon receipt of such articles of association, with the accompanying affidavit and stock subscription, the directors of said Federal land bank shall send an appraiser to investigate the solvency and character of the applicants and the value of their lands, and shall then determine whether in their judgment a charter should be granted to such association. They shall forward such articles of association and the accompanying affidavit to the Federal Farm Loan Board with their recommendation. If said recommendation is unfavorable, the charter shall be refused.

If said recommendation is favorable, the Federal Farm Loan Board shall thereupon grant a charter to the applicants therefor, designating the territory in which such association may make loans, and shall forward said charter to said applicants through said Federal land bank: Provided, That said Federal Farm Loan Board may for good cause shown in any case refuse to grant a charter.

Upon receipt of its charter such national farm loan association shall be authorized and empowered to receive from the Federal land bank of the district sums to be loaned to its members under the terms and conditions of this Act.

Whenever any national farm loan association shall desire to secure for any member a loan on first mortgage from the Federal land bank of its district it shall subscribe for capital stock of said land bank to the amount of five per centum of such loan, such subscription to be paid in cash upon the granting of the loan by said land bank. Such capital stock shall be held by said land bank as collateral security for the payment of said loan, but said association shall be paid any dividends accruing and payable on said capital stock while it is outstanding. Such stock may, in the discretion of the directors, and with the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, be paid off at par and retired, and it shall be so paid off and retired upon full payment of the mortgage loan. In such case the national farm loan association shall pay off at par and retire the corresponding shares of its stock which were issued when said land bank stock was issued. The capital stock of a Federal land bank shall not be reduced to an amount less than five per centum of the principal of the outstanding farm loan bonds issued by it.

CAPITAL STOCK OF NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

SEC. 8. That the shares in national farm loan associations shall be of the par value of $5 each.

Every shareholder shall be entitled to one vote on each share of stock held by him at all elections of directors and in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders: Provided, That the maximum number of votes which may be cast by any one shareholder shall be twenty.

No persons but borrowers on farm land mortgages shall be members or shareholders of national farm loan associations. Any person desiring to borrow on farm land mortgage through a national farm loan association shall make application for membership and shall subscribe for shares of stock in such farm loan association to an amount equal to five per centum of the face of the desired loan, said subscription to be paid in cash upon the granting of the loan. If the application for membership is accepted and the loan is granted, the applicant shall, upon full payment therefor, become the owner of one share of capital stock in said loan association for each $100 of the face of his loan, or any major fractional part thereof. Said capital stock shall be paid off at par and retired upon full payment of said loan. Said capital stock shall be held by said association as collateral security for the payment of said loan, but said borrower shall be paid any dividends accruing and payable on said capital stock while it is outstanding.

Every national farm loan association formed under this Act shall by its articles of association provide for an increase of its capital stock from time to time for the purpose of securing additional loans for its members and providing for the issue of shares to borrowers in accordance with the provisions of this Act. Such increases shall be included in the quarterly reports to the Federal Farm Loan Board.

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS—SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 9. That any person whose application for membership is accepted by a national farm loan association shall be entitled to borrow money on farm land mortgage upon filing his application in accordance with section eight and otherwise complying with the terms of this Act whenever the Federal land bank of the district has funds available for that purpose, unless said land bank or the Federal Farm Loan Board shall, in its discretion, otherwise determine.

Any person desiring to secure a loan through a national farm loan association under the provisions of this Act may, at his option, borrow from the Federal land bank through such association the sum necessary to pay for shares of stock subscribed for by him in the national farm loan association, such sum to be made a part of the face of the loan and paid off in amortization payments: Provided, however, That such addition to the loan shall not be permitted to increase said loan above the limitation imposed in subsection fifth of section twelve.

Subject to rules and regulations prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board, any national farm loan association shall be entitled to retain as a commission from each interest payment on any loan indorsed by it an amount to be determined by said board not to exceed one-eighth of one per centum semi-annually upon the unpaid principal of said loan, any amounts so retained as commissions to be deducted from dividends payable to such farm loan association by the Federal land bank, and to make application to the land bank of the district for loans not exceeding in the aggregate one-fourth of its total stock holdings in said land bank. The Federal land banks shall have power to make such loans to associations applying therefor and to charge interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum.

Shareholders of every national farm loan association shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such association to the extent of the amount of stock owned by them at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount paid in and represented by their shares.

After a charter has been granted to a national farm loan association, any natural person who is the owner, or about to become the owner, of farm land qualified under section twelve of this Act as the basis of a mortgage loan, and who desires to borrow on a mortgage of such farm land, may become a member of the association by a two-thirds vote of the directors upon subscribing for one share of the capital stock of such association for each $100 of the face of his proposed loan or any major fractional part thereof. He shall at the same time file with the secretary-treasurer his application for a mortgage loan, giving the particulars required by section twelve of this Act.

APPRAISAL.

SEC. 10. That whenever an application for a mortgage loan is made to a national farm loan association, it shall be first referred to the loan committee provided for in section seven of this Act. Said loan committee shall examine the land which is offered as security for the desired loan and shall make a detailed written report signed by all three members, giving the appraisal of said land as determined by them, and such other information as may be required by rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board. No loan shall be approved by the directors unless said loan committee agrees upon a favorable report.

The written report of said loan committee shall be submitted to the Federal land bank, together with the application for the loan, and the directors of said land bank shall examine said written report when they pass upon the loan application which it accompanies, but they shall not be bound by said appraisal.

Before any mortgage loan is made by any Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, it shall refer the application and written report of the loan committee to one or more of the land bank appraisers appointed under the authority of section three of this Act, and such appraiser or appraisers shall investigate and make a written report upon the land offered as security for said loan. No such loan shall be made by said land bank unless said written report is favorable.

Forms for appraisal reports for farm loan associations and land banks shall be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Land bank appraisers shall make such examinations and appraisals and conduct such investigations, concerning farm loan bonds and first mortgages, as the Federal Farm Loan Board shall direct.

No borrower under this Act shall be eligible as an appraiser under this section, but borrowers may act as members of a loan committee in any case where they are not personally interested in the loan under consideration. When any member of a loan committee or of a board of directors is interested, directly or indirectly, in a loan, a majority of the board of directors of any national farm loan association shall appoint a substitute to act in his place in passing upon such loan.

POWERS OF NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

SEC. 11. That every national farm loan association shall have power:

First. To indorse, and thereby become liable for the payment of, mortgages taken from its shareholders by the Federal land bank of its district.

Second. To receive from the Federal land bank of its district funds advanced by said land bank, and to deliver said funds to its shareholders on receipt of first mortgages qualified under section twelve of this Act.

Third. To acquire and dispose of such property, real or personal, as may be necessary or convenient for the transaction of its business.

Fourth. To issue certificates against deposits of current funds bearing interest for not longer than one year at not to exceed four per centum per annum after six days from date, convertible into farm loan bonds when presented at the Federal land bank of the district in the amount of $25 or any multiple thereof. Such deposits, when received, shall be forthwith transmitted to said land bank, and be invested by it in the purchase of farm loan bonds issued by a Federal land bank or in first mortgages as defined by this Act.

RESTRICTIONS ON LOANS BASED ON FIRST MORTGAGES.

SEC. 12. That no Federal land bank organized under this Act shall make loans except upon the following terms and conditions:

First. Said loans shall be secured by duly recorded first mortgages on farm land within the land bank district in which the bank is situated.

Second. Every such mortgage shall contain an agreement providing for the repayment of the loan on an amortization plan by means of a fixed number of annual or semi-annual instalments sufficient to cover, first, a charge on the loan, at a rate not exceeding the interest rate in the last series of farm loan bonds issued by the land bank making the loan; second, a charge for administration and profits at a rate not exceeding one per centum per annum on the unpaid principal, said two rates combined constituting the interest rate on the mortgage; and, third, such amounts to be applied on the principal as will extinguish the debt within an agreed period, not less than five years nor more than forty years: Provided, That after five years from the date upon which a loan is made additional payments in sums of $25 or any multiple thereof for the reduction of the principal, or the payment of the entire principal, may be made on any regular instalment date under the rules and regulations of the Federal Farm Loan Board: And provided further, That before the first issue of farm loan bonds by any land bank the interest rate on mortgages may be determined in the discretion of said land bank subject to the provisions and limitations of this Act.

Third. No loan on mortgage shall be made under this Act at a rate of interest exceeding six per centum per annum, exclusive of amortization payments.

Fourth. Such loans may be made for the following purposes and for no other: (a) To provide for the purchase of land for agricultural uses. (b) To provide for the purchase of equipment, fertilizers and live stock necessary for the proper and reasonable operation of the mortgaged farm; the term "equipment" to be defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board. (c) To provide buildings and for the improvement of farm lands; the term "improvement" to be defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board. (d) To liquidate indebtedness of the owner of the land mortgaged, existing at the time of the organization of the first national farm loan association established in or for the county in which the land mortgaged is situated, or indebtedness subsequently incurred for purposes mentioned in this section.

Fifth. No such loan shall exceed fifty per centum of the value of the land mortgaged and twenty per centum of the value of the permanent insured improvements thereon, said value to be ascertained by appraisal, as provided in section ten of this Act. In making said appraisal the value of the land for agricultural purposes shall be the basis of appraisal and the earning power of said land shall be a principal factor.

A reappraisal may be permitted at any time in the discretion of the Federal land bank, and such additional loan may be granted as such reappraisal will warrant under the provisions of this paragraph. Whenever the amount of the loan applied for exceeds the amount that may be loaned under the appraisal as herein limited, such loan may be granted to the amount permitted under the terms of this paragraph without requiring a new application or appraisal.

Sixth. No such loan shall be made to any person who is not at the time, or shortly to become, engaged in the cultivation of the farm mortgaged. In case of the sale of the mortgaged land, the Federal land bank may permit said mortgage and the stock interests of the vendor to be assumed by the purchaser. In case of the death of the mortgagor, his heir or heirs, or his legal representative or representatives, shall have the option, within sixty days of such death, to assume the mortgage and stock interests of the deceased.

Seventh. The amount of loans to any one borrower shall in no case exceed a maximum of $10,000, nor shall any loan be for a less sum than $100.

Eighth. Every applicant for a loan under the terms of this Act shall make application on a form to be prescribed for that purpose by the Federal Farm Loan Board, and such applicant shall state the objects to which the proceeds of said loan are to be applied, and shall afford such other information as may be required.

Ninth. Every borrower shall pay simple interest on defaulted payments at the rate of eight per centum per annum, and by express covenant in his mortgage deed shall undertake to pay when due all taxes, liens, judgments, or assessments which may be lawfully assessed against the land mortgaged. Taxes, liens, judgments, or assessments not paid when due, and paid by the mortgagee, shall become a part of the mortgage debt and shall bear simple interest at the rate of eight per centum per annum. Every borrower shall undertake to keep insured to the satisfaction of the Federal Farm Loan Board all buildings the value of which was a factor in determining the amount of the loan. Insurance shall be made payable to the mortgagee as its interest may appear at time of loss, and, at the option of the mortgagor and subject to general regulations of the Federal Farm Loan Board, sums so received may be used to pay for reconstruction of the buildings destroyed.

Tenth. Every borrower who shall be granted a loan under the provisions of this Act shall enter into an agreement, in form and under conditions to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board, that if the whole or any portion of his loan shall be expended for purposes other than those specified in his original application, or if the borrower shall be in default in respect to any condition or covenant of the mortgage, the whole of said loan shall, at the option of the mortgagee, become due and payable forthwith: Provided, That the borrower may use part of said loan to pay for his stock in the farm loan association, and the land bank holding such mortgage may permit said loan to be used for any purpose specified in subsection fourth of this section.

Eleventh. That no loan or the mortgage securing the same shall be impaired or invalidated by reason of the exercise of any power by any Federal land bank or national farm loan association in excess of the powers herein granted or any limitations thereon.

Funds transmitted to farm loan associations by Federal land banks to be loaned to its members shall be in current funds, or farm loan bonds, at the option of the borrower.

POWERS OF FEDERAL LAND BANKS.

SEC. 13. That every Federal land bank shall have power, subject to the limitations and requirements of this Act—

First. To issue, subject to the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, and to sell farm loan bonds of the kinds authorized in this Act, to buy the same for its own account, and to retire the same at or before maturity.

Second. To invest such funds as may be in its possession in the purchase of qualified first mortgages on farm lands situated within the Federal land bank district within which it is organized or for which it is acting.

Third. To receive and to deposit in trust with the farm loan registrar for the district, to be by him held as collateral security for farm loan bonds, first mortgages upon farm land qualified under section twelve of this Act, and to empower national farm loan associations, or duly authorized agents, to collect and immediately pay over to said land banks the dues, interest, amortization instalments and other sums payable under the terms, conditions, and covenants of the mortgages and of the bonds secured thereby.

Fourth. To acquire and dispose of—(a) Such property, real or personal, as may be necessary or convenient for the transaction of its business, which, however, may be in part leased to others for revenue purposes. (b) Parcels of land acquired in satisfaction of debts or purchased at sales under judgments, decrees, or mortgages held by it. But no such bank shall hold title and possession of any real estate purchased or acquired to secure any debt due to it, for a longer period than five years, except with the special approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board in writing.

Fifth. To deposit its securities, and its current funds subject to check, with any member bank of the Federal Reserve System, and to receive interest on the same as may be agreed.

Sixth. To accept deposits of securities or of current funds from national farm loan associations holding its shares, but to pay no interest on such deposits.

Seventh. To borrow money, to give security therefore, and to pay interest thereon.

Eighth. To buy and sell United States bonds.

Ninth. To charge applicants for loans and borrowers, under rules and regulations promulgated by the Federal Farm Loan Board, reasonable fees not exceeding the actual cost of appraisal and determination of title. Legal fees and recording charges imposed by law in the State where the land to be mortgaged is located may also be included in the preliminary costs of negotiating mortgage loans. The borrower may pay such fees and charges or he may arrange with the Federal land bank making the loan to advance the same, in which case said expenses shall be made a part of the face of the loan and paid off in amortization payments. Such addition to the loan shall not be permitted to increase said loan above the limitations provided in section twelve.

RESTRICTIONS ON FEDERAL LAND BANKS.

SEC. 14. That no Federal land bank shall have power—

First to accept deposits of current funds payable upon demand except from its own stockholders, or to transact any banking or other business not expressly authorized by the provisions of this Act.

Second. To loan on first mortgage except through national farm loan associations as provided in section seven and section eight of this Act, or through agents as provided in section fifteen.

Third. To accept any mortgages on real estate except first mortgages created subject to all limitations imposed by section twelve of this Act, and those taken as additional security for existing loans.

Fourth. To issue or obligate itself for outstanding farm loan bonds in excess of twenty times the amount of its capital and surplus, or to receive from any national farm loan association additional mortgages when the principal remaining unpaid upon mortgages already received from such association shall exceed twenty times the amount of its capital stock owned by such association.

Fifth. To demand or receive, under any form or pretence, any commission or charge not specifically authorized in this Act.

AGENTS OF FEDERAL LAND BANKS.

SEC. 15. That, whenever, after this Act shall have been in effect one year, it shall appear to the Federal Farm Loan Board that national farm loan associations have not been formed, and are not likely to be formed, in any locality, because of peculiar local conditions, said board may, in its discretion, authorize Federal land banks to make loans on farm lands through agents approved by said board.

Such loans shall be subject to the same conditions and restrictions as if the same were made through national farm loan associations, and each borrower shall contribute five per centum of the amount of his loan to the capital of the Federal land bank, and shall become the owner of as much capital stock of the land bank as such contribution shall warrant.

No agent other than a duly incorporated bank, trust company, mortgage company, or savings institution, chartered by the State in which it has its principal office, shall be employed under the provisions of this section.

Federal land banks may pay to such agents the actual expense of appraising the land offered as security for a loan, examining and certifying the title thereof, and making, executing, and recording the mortgage papers; and in addition may allow said agents not to exceed one-half of one per centum per annum upon the unpaid principal of said loan, such commission to be deducted from dividends payable to the borrower on his stock in the Federal land bank.

Actual expenses paid to agents under the provisions of this section shall be added to the face of the loan and paid off in amortization payments subject to the limitations provided in subsection ninth of section thirteen of this Act.

Said agents, when required by the Federal land banks, shall collect and forward to such banks without charge all interest and amortization payments on loans indorsed by them.

Any agent negotiating any such loan shall indorse the same and become liable for the payment thereof, and for any default by the mortgagor, on the same terms and under the same penalties as if the loan had been originally made by said agent as principal and sold by said agent to said land bank, but the aggregate of the unpaid principal of mortgage loans received from any such agent shall not exceed ten times its capital and surplus.

If at any time the district represented by any agent under the provisions of this section shall, in the judgment of the Federal Farm Loan Board, be adequately served by national farm loan associations, no further loans shall be negotiated therein by agents under this section.

JOINT STOCK LAND BANKS.

SEC. 16. That corporations, to be known as joint stock land banks, for carrying on the business of lending on farm mortgage security and issuing farm loan bonds, may be formed by any number of natural persons not less than ten. They shall be organized subject to the requirements and under the conditions set forth in section four of this Act, so far as the same may be applicable: Provided, That the board of directors of every joint stock land bank shall consist of not less than five members.

Shareholders of every joint stock land bank organized under this Act shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such bank to the extent of the amount of stock owned by them at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount paid in and represented by their shares.

Except as otherwise provided, joint stock land banks shall have the powers of, and be subject to all the restrictions and conditions imposed on, Federal land banks by this Act, so far as such restrictions and conditions are applicable: Provided, however, That the Government of the United States shall not purchase or subscribe for any of the capital stock of any such bank; and each shareholder of any such bank shall have the same voting privileges as holders of shares in national banking associations.

No joint stock land bank shall have power to issue or obligate itself for outstanding farm loan bonds in excess of fifteen times the amount of its capital and surplus, or to receive deposits or to transact any banking or other business not expressly authorized by the provisions of this Act.

No joint stock land bank shall be authorized to do business until capital stock to the amount of at least $250,000 has been subscribed, one-half thereof paid in cash and the balance subject to call by the board of directors, and a charter has been issued to it by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

No joint stock land bank shall issue any bonds until after the capital stock is entirely paid up.

Farm loan bonds issued by joint stock land banks shall be so engraved as to be readily distinguished in form and color from farm loan bonds issued by Federal land banks, and shall otherwise bear such distinguishing marks as the Federal Farm Loan Board shall direct.

Joint stock land banks shall not be subject to the provisions of subsection (b) of section seventeen of this Act as to interest rates on mortgage loans or farm loan bonds, nor to the provisions of subsections first, fourth, sixth, seventh, and tenth of section twelve as to restrictions on mortgage loans: Provided, however, That no loans shall be made which are not secured by first mortgages on farm lands within the State in which such joint stock land bank has its principal office, or within some one State contiguous to such State. Such joint stock land banks shall be subject to all other restrictions on mortgage loans imposed on Federal land banks in section twelve of this Act.

Joint stock land banks shall in no case charge a rate of interest on farm loans exceeding by more than one per centum the rate of interest established for the last series of farm loan bonds issued by them.

Joint stock land banks shall in no case demand or receive, under any form or pretence, any commission or charge not specifically authorized in this Act.

Each joint stock land bank organized under this Act shall have authority to issue bonds based upon mortgages taken by it in accordance with the terms of this Act. Such bonds shall be in form prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board, and it shall be stated in such bonds that such bank is organized under section sixteen of this Act, is under Federal supervision, and operates under the provisions of this Act.

POWERS OF FEDERAL FARM LOAN BOARD.

SEC. 17. That the Federal Farm Loan Board shall have power—

(a) To organize and charter Federal land banks, and to charter national farm loan associations and joint stock land banks subject to the provisions of this Act, and in its discretion to authorize them to increase their capital stock.

(b) To review and alter at its discretion the rate of interest to be charged by Federal land banks for loans made by them under the provisions of this Act, said rates to be uniform so far as practicable.

(c) To grant or refuse to Federal land banks, or joint stock land banks, authority to make any specific issue of farm loan bonds.

(d) To make rules and regulations respecting the charges made to borrowers on loans under this Act for expenses in appraisal, determination of title, and recording.

(e) To require reports and statements of condition and to make examinations of all banks or associations doing business under the provisions of this Act.

(f) To prescribe the form and terms of farm loan bonds, and the form, terms, and penal sums of all surety bonds required under this Act and of such other surety bonds as they shall deem necessary, such surety bonds to cover financial loss as well as faithful performance of duty.

(g) To require Federal land banks to pay forthwith to any Federal land bank their equitable proportion of any sums advanced by said land bank to pay the coupons of any other land bank, basing said required payments on the amount of farm loan bonds issued by each land bank and actually outstanding at the time of such requirement.

(h) To suspend or to remove for cause any district director or any registrar, appraiser, examiner or other official appointed by said board under authority of section three of this Act, the cause of such suspension or removal to be communicated forthwith in writing by the Federal Farm Loan Board to the person suspended or removed, and in case of a district director to the proper Federal land bank.

(i) To exercise general supervisory authority over the Federal land banks, the national farm loan associations, and the joint stock land banks herein provided for.

(j) To exercise such incidental powers as shall be necessary or requisite to fulfill its duties and carry out the purposes of this Act.

APPLICATIONS FOR FARM LOAN BONDS.

SEC. 18. That any Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, which shall have voted to issue farm loan bonds under this Act, shall make written application to the Federal Farm Loan Board, through the farm loan registrar of the district, for approval of such issue. With said application said land bank shall tender to said farm loan registrar as collateral security first mortgages on farm lands qualified under the provisions of section twelve, section fifteen, or section sixteen of this Act, or United States Government bonds, not less in aggregate amount than the sum of the bonds proposed to be issued. Said bank shall furnish with such mortgages a schedule containing a description thereof and such further information as may be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Upon receipt of such application said farm loan registrar shall verify said schedule and shall transmit said application and said schedule to the Federal Farm Loan Board, giving such further information pertaining thereto as he may possess. The Federal Farm Loan Board shall forthwith cause to be made such investigation and appraisement of the securities tendered as it shall deem wise, and it shall grant in whole or in part, or reject entirely, such application.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall promptly transmit its decision as to any issue of farm loan bonds to the land bank applying for the same and to the farm loan registrar of the district. Said registrar shall furnish in writing, such information regarding any issue of farm loan bonds as the Federal Farm Loan Board may at any time require.

No issue of farm loan bonds shall be authorized unless the Federal Farm Loan Board shall approve such issue in writing.

ISSUE OF FARM LOAN BONDS.

SEC. 19. That whenever any farm loan registrar shall receive from the Federal Farm Loan Board notice that it has approved any issue of farm loan bonds under the provisions of section eighteen he shall forthwith take such steps as may be necessary, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, to insure the prompt execution of said bonds and the delivery of the same to the land bank applying therefor.

Whenever the Federal Farm Loan Board shall reject entirely any application for an issue of farm loan bonds, the first mortgages and bonds tendered to the farm loan registrar as collateral security therefor shall be forthwith returned to said land bank by him.

Whenever the Federal Farm Loan Board shall approve an issue of farm loan bonds, the farm loan registrar having the custody of the first mortgages and bonds tendered as collateral security for such issue of bonds shall retain in his custody those first mortgages and bonds which are to be held as collateral security, and shall return to the bank owning the same any of said mortgages and bonds which are not to be held by him as collateral security. The land bank which is to issue said farm loan bonds shall transfer to said registrar, by assignment, in trust, all first mortgages and bonds which are to be held by said registrar as collateral security, said assignment providing for the right of redemption at any time by payment as provided in this Act and reserving the right of substitution of other mortgages qualified under sections twelve, fifteen, and sixteen of this Act. Said mortgages and bonds shall be deposited in such deposit vault or bank as the Federal Farm Loan Board shall approve, subject to the control of said registrar and in his name as trustee for the bank issuing the farm loan bonds and for the prospective holders of said farm loan bonds.

No mortgage will be accepted by a farm loan registrar from a land bank as part of an offering to secure an issue of farm loan bonds, either originally or by substitution, except first mortgages made subject to the conditions prescribed in said sections twelve, fifteen, and sixteen.

It shall be the duty of each farm loan registrar to see that the farm loan bonds delivered by him and outstanding do not exceed the amount of collateral security pledged therefor. Such registrar may in his discretion, temporarily accept, in place of mortgages withdrawn, United States Government bonds or cash.

The Federal Farm Loan Board may, at any time, call upon any land bank for additional security to protect the bonds issued by it.

FORM OF FARM LOAN BONDS.

SEC. 20. That bonds provided for in this Act shall be issued in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000; they shall run for specified minimum and maximum periods, subject to payment and retirement, at the option of the land bank, at any time after five years from the date of their issue. They shall have interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually, and shall be issued in series of not less than $50,000, the amount and terms to be fixed by the Federal Farm Loan Board. They shall bear a rate of interest not to exceed five per centum per annum.

The Federal Farm Loan Board shall prescribe rules and regulations concerning the circumstances and manner in which farm loan bonds shall be paid and retired under the provisions of this Act.

Farm loan bonds shall be delivered through the registrar of the district to the bank applying for the same.

In order to furnish farm loan bonds for delivery at the Federal land banks and joint stock land banks, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to prepare suitable bonds in such form, subject to the provisions of this Act, as the Federal Farm Loan Board may approve, such bonds when prepared to be held in the Treasury subject to delivery upon order of the Federal Farm Loan Board. The engraved plates, dies, bed-pieces, and so forth, executed in connection therewith shall remain in the custody of the Secretary of the Treasury. Any expenses incurred in the preparation, custody, and delivery of such farm loan bonds shall be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury from any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated: Provided, however, That the Secretary shall be reimbursed for such expenditures by the Federal Farm Loan Board through assessment upon the farm land banks in proportion to the work executed. They may be exchanged into registered bonds of any amount, and re-exchanged into coupon bonds, at the option of the holder, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS OF FARM LOAN BONDS.

SEC. 21. That each land bank shall be bound in all respects by the acts of its officers in signing and issuing farm loan bonds, and by the acts of the Federal Farm Loan Board in authorizing their issue.

Every Federal land bank issuing farm loan bonds shall be primarily liable therefor, and shall also be liable, upon presentation of farm loan bond coupons, for interest payments due upon any farm loan bonds issued by other Federal land banks and remaining unpaid in consequence of the default of such other land banks; and every such bank shall likewise be liable for such portion of the principal of farm loan bonds so issued as shall not be paid after the assets of any such other land banks shall have been liquidated and distributed: Provided, That such losses, if any, either of interest or of principal, shall be assessed by the Federal Farm Loan Board against solvent land banks liable therefor in proportion to the amount of farm loan bonds which each may have outstanding at the time of such assessment.

Every Federal land bank shall by appropriate action of its board of directors, duly recorded in its minutes, obligate itself to become liable on farm loan bonds as provided in this section.

Every farm loan bond issued by a Federal land bank shall be signed by its president and attested by its secretary, and shall contain in the face therof a certificate signed by the Farm Loan Commissioner to the effect that it is issued under the authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, has the approval in form and issue of the Federal Farm Loan Board, and is legal and regular in all repects; that it is not taxable by National, State, municipal, or local authority; that it is issued against collateral security of United States Government bonds, or indorsed first mortgages on farm lands, at least equal in amount to the bonds issued; and that all Federal land banks are liable for the payment of each bond.

APPLICATION OF AMORTIZATION AND INTEREST PAYMENTS.

SEC. 22. That whenever any Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, shall receive any interest, amortization or other payments upon any first mortgage or bond pledged as collateral security for the issue of farm loan bonds, it shall forthwith notify the farm loan registrar of the items so received. Said registrar shall forthwith cause such payment to be duly credited upon the mortgage entitled to such credit. Whenever any such mortgage is paid in full, said registrar shall cause the same to be cancelled and delivered to the proper land bank, which shall promptly satisfy and discharge the lien of record and transmit such cancelled mortgage to the original maker thereof, or his heirs, administrators, executors, or assigns.

Upon written application by any Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, to the farm loan registrar, it may be permitted, in the discretion of said registrar, to withdraw any mortgages or bonds pledged as collateral security under this Act, and to substitute therefor other similar mortgages or United States Government bonds not less in amount than the mortgages or bonds desired to be withdrawn.

Whenever any farm loan bonds or coupons or interest payments of such bonds, are due under their terms, they shall be payable at the land bank by which they were issued, in gold or lawful money, and upon payment shall be duly cancelled by said bank. At the discretion of the Federal Farm Loan Board, payment of any farm loan bond or coupon or interest payment may, however, be authorized to be made at any Federal land bank, any joint stock land bank, or any other bank, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

When any land bank shall surrender to the proper farm loan registrar any farm loan bonds of any series cancelled or uncancelled, said land bank shall be entitled to withdraw first mortgages and bonds pledged as collateral security for any of said series of farm loan bonds to an amount equal to the farm loan bonds so surrendered, and it shall be the duty of said registrar to permit and direct the delivery of such mortgages and bonds to such land bank.

Interest payments on hypothecated first mortgages shall be at the disposal of the land bank pledging the same, and shall be available for the payment of coupons and the interest of farm loan bonds as they become due.

Whenever any bond matures, or the interest on any registered bond is due, or the coupon on any coupon bond matures, and the same shall be presented for payment as provided in this Act, the full face value thereof shall be paid to the holder.

Amortization and other payments on the principal of first mortgages held by a farm loan registrar as collateral security for the issue of farm loan bonds shall constitute a trust fund in the hands of the Federal land bank or joint stock land bank receiving the same, and shall be applied or employed as follows:

In the case of a Federal land bank—

(a) To pay off farm loan bonds issued by said bank as they mature.

(b) To purchase at or below par farm loan bonds issued by said bank or by any other Federal land bank.

(c) To loan on first mortgages on farm lands within the land bank district, qualified under this Act as collateral security for an issue of farm loan bonds.

(d) To purchase United States Government bonds.

In the case of a joint stock land bank—

(a) To pay off farm loan bonds issued by said bank as they mature.

(b) To purchase at or below par farm loan bonds.

(c) To loan on first mortgages qualified under section sixteen of this Act.

(d) To purchase United States Government bonds.

The farm loan bonds, first mortgages, United States Government bonds, or cash constituting the trust fund aforesaid, shall be forthwith deposited with the farm loan registrar as substituted collateral security in place of the sums paid on the principal of indorsed mortgages held by him in trust.

Every Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, shall notify the farm loan registrar of the disposition of all payments made on the principal of mortgages held as collateral security for an issue of farm loan bonds, and said registrar is authorized, at his discretion, to order any of such payments, or the proceeds thereof, wherever deposited or however invested, to be immediately transferred to his account as trustee aforesaid.

RESERVES AND DIVIDENDS OF LAND BANKS.

SEC. 23. That every Federal land bank, and every joint stock land bank, shall semi-annually carry to reserve account twenty-five per centum of its net earnings until said reserve account shall show a credit balance equal to twenty per centum of the outstanding capital stock of said land bank. Whenever said reserve shall have been impaired, said balance of twenty per centum shall be fully restored before any dividends are paid. After said reserve has reached the sum of twenty per centum of the outstanding capital stock, five per centum of the net earnings shall be annually added thereto. For the period of two years from the date when any default occurs in the payment of the interest, amortization instalments, or principal on any first mortgage, by both mortgagor and indorser, the amount so defaulted shall be carried to a suspense account, and at the end of the two-year period specified, unless collected, shall be debited to reserve account.

After deducting the twenty-five per centum or the five per centum hereinbefore directed to be deducted for credit to reserve account, any Federal land bank or joint stock land bank may declare a dividend to shareholders of the whole or any part of the balance of its net earnings. The reserves of land banks shall be invested in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

RESERVE AND DIVIDENDS OF NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

SEC. 24. That every national farm loan association shall, out of its net earnings, semi-annually carry to reserve account a sum not less than ten per centum of such net earnings until said reserve account shall show a credit balance equal to twenty per centum of the outstanding capital stock of said association.

Whenever said reserve shall have been impaired, said credit balance of twenty per centum shall be fully restored before any dividends are paid. After said reserve has reached said sum of twenty per centum, two per centum of the net earnings shall be annually added thereto.

After deducting the ten per centum or the two per centum hereinbefore directed to be credited to reserve account, said association may, at its discretion, declare a dividend to shareholders of the whole or any part of the balance of said net earnings.

The reserves of farm loan associations shall be invested in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Whenever any farm loan association shall be voluntarily liquidated a sum equal to its reserve account as herein required shall be paid to and become the property of the Federal land bank in which such loan association may be a shareholder.

DEFAULTED LOANS.

SEC. 25. That if there shall be default under the terms of any indorsed first mortgage held by a Federal land bank under the provisions of this Act, the national farm loan association or agent through which said mortgage was received by said Federal land bank shall be notified of said default. Said association or agent may thereupon be required within thirty days after such notice, to make good said default, either by payment of the amount unpaid thereon in cash, or by the substitution of an equal amount of farm loan bonds issued by said land bank, with all unmatured coupons attached.

EXEMPTION FROM TAXATION.

SEC. 26. That every Federal land bank and every national farm loan association, including the capital and reserve or surplus therein and the income derived therefrom, shall be exempt from Federal, State, municipal, and local taxation, except taxes upon real estate held, purchased, or taken by said bank or association under the provisions of section eleven and section thirteen of this Act. First mortgages executed to Federal land banks, or to joint stock land banks, and farm loan bonds issued under the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed and held to be instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, and as such they and the income derived therefrom shall be exempt from Federal, State, municipal, and local taxation.

Nothing herein shall prevent the shares in any joint stock land bank from being included in the valuation of the personal property of the owner or holder of such shares, in assessing taxes imposed by authority of the State within which the bank is located; but such assessment and taxation shall be in manner and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in section fifty-two hundred and nineteen of the Revised Statutes with reference to the shares of national banking associations.

Nothing herein shall be construed to exempt the real property of Federal and joint stock land banks and national farm loan associations from either State, county, or municipal taxes, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

INVESTMENT IN FARM LOAN BONDS.

SEC. 27. That farm loan bonds issued under the provisions of this Act by Federal land banks or joint stock land banks shall be a lawful investment for all fiduciary and trust funds, and may be accepted as security for all public deposits.

Any member bank of the Federal Reserve System may buy and sell farm loan bonds issued under the authority of this Act.

Any Federal reserve bank may buy and sell farm loan bonds issued under this Act to the same extent and subject to the same limitations placed upon the purchase and sale by said banks of State, county, district, and municipal bonds under subsection (b) of section fourteen of the Federal Reserve Act approved December twenty-third, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

EXAMINATIONS.

SEC. 28. That the Federal Farm Loan Board shall appoint as many land bank examiners as in its judgment may be required to make careful examinations of the banks and associations permitted to do business under this Act.

Said examiners shall be subject to the same requirements, responsibilities and penalties as are applicable to national bank examiners under the National Bank Act, the Federal Reserve Act and other provisions of law. Whenever directed by the Federal Farm Loan Board, said examiners shall examine the condition of any national farm loan association and report the same to the Farm Loan Commissioner. They shall examine and report the condition of every Federal land bank and joint stock land bank at least twice each year.

Said examiners shall receive salaries to be fixed by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

DISSOLUTION AND APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

SEC. 29. That upon receiving satisfactory evidence that any national farm loan association has failed to meet its outstanding obligations of any description the Federal Farm Loan Board may forthwith declare such association insolvent and appoint a receiver and require of him such bond and security as it deems proper: Provided, That no national farm loan association shall be declared insolvent by said board until the total amount of defaults of current interest and amortization instalments on loans indorsed by national farm loan associations shall amount to at least $150,000 in the Federal land bank district, unless such association shall have been in default for a period of two years. Such receiver, under the direction of the Federal Farm Loan Board, shall take possession of the books, records, and assets of every description of such association, collect all debts, dues, and claims belonging to it, and, with the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, or upon the order of a court of record of competent jurisdiction, may sell or compound all bad or doubtful debts, and, on a like approval or order, may sell all the real and personal property of such association, on such terms as the Federal Farm Loan Board or said court shall direct.

Such receiver shall pay over all money so collected to the Treasurer of the United States, subject to the order of the Federal Farm Loan Board, and also make report to said board of all his acts and proceedings. The Secretary of the Treasury shall have authority to deposit at interest any money so received.

Upon default of any obligation, Federal land banks and joint stock land banks may be declared insolvent and placed in the hands of a receiver by the Federal Farm Loan Board, and proceedings shall thereupon be had in accordance with the provisions of this section regarding national farm loan associations.

If any national farm loan association shall be declared insolvent and a receiver shall be appointed therefor by the Federal Farm Loan Board, the stock held by it in the Federal land bank of its district shall be cancelled without impairment of its liability and all payments on such stock, with accrued dividends, if any, since the date of the last dividend shall be first applied to all debts of the insolvent farm loan association to the Federal land bank and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the receiver of said farm loan association: Provided, That in estimating said debts contingent liabilities incurred by national farm loan associations under the provisions of this Act on account of default of principal or interest of indorsed mortgages shall be estimated and included as a debt, and said contingent liabilities shall be determined by agreement between the receiver and the Federal land bank of the district, subject to the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, and if said receiver and said land bank cannot agree, then by the decision of the Farm Loan Commissioner, and the amount thus ascertained shall be deducted in accordance with the provisions of this section from the amount otherwise due said national farm loan association for said cancelled stock. Whenever the capital stock of a Federal land bank shall be reduced, the Board of Directors shall cause to be executed a certificate to the Federal Farm Loan Board, showing such reduction of capital stock, and, if said reduction shall be due to the insolvency of a national farm loan association, the amount repaid to such association.

No national farm loan association, Federal land bank or joint stock land bank shall go into voluntary liquidation without the written consent of the Federal Farm Loan Board, but national farm loan associations may consolidate under rules and regulations promulgated by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

STATE LEGISLATION.

SEC. 30. That it shall be the duty of the Farm Loan Commissioner to make examination of the laws of every State of the United States and to inform the Federal Farm Loan Board as rapidly as may be whether in his judgment the laws of each State relating to the conveying and recording of land titles, and the foreclosure of mortgages or other instruments securing loans, as well as providing homestead and other exemptions and granting the power to waive such exemptions as respects first mortgages, are such as to assure the holder thereof adequate safeguards against loss in the event of default on loans secured by any such mortgages.

Pending the making of such examination in the case of any State, the Federal Farm Loan Board may declare first mortgages on farm lands situated within such State ineligible as the basis for an issue of farm loan bonds; and if said examination shall show that the laws of any such State afford insufficient protection to the holder of first mortgages of the kinds provided in this Act, said Federal Farm Loan Board may declare said first mortgages on land situated in such State ineligible during the continuance of the laws in question. In making his examination of the laws of the several States and forming his conclusions thereon said Farm Loan Commissioner may call upon the office of the Attorney General of the United States for any needed legal advice or assistance, or may employ special counsel in any State where he considers such action necessary.

At the request of the Executive of any State the Federal Farm Loan Board shall prepare a statement setting forth in what respects the requirements of said board cannot be complied with under the existing laws of such State.

PENALTIES.

SEC. 31. That any applicant for a loan under this Act who shall knowingly make any false statement in his application for such loan, and any member of a loan committee or any appraiser provided for in this Act who shall wilfully overvalue any land offered as security for loans under this Act, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. Any examiner appointed under this Act who shall accept a loan or gratuity from any land bank or national farm loan association examined by him, or from any person connected with any such bank or association in any capacity, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, and may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given, and shall forever thereafter be disqualified from holding office as an examiner under the provisions of this Act. No examiner, while holding such office, shall perform any other service for compensation for any bank or banking or loan association, or for any person connected therewith in any capacity.

Any person who shall falsely make, forge, or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited, or willingly aid or assist in falsely making, forging, or counterfeiting any bond, coupon, or paper in imitation of, or purporting to be in imitation of, the bonds or coupons issued by any land bank or national farm loan association, now or hereafter authorized and acting under the laws of the United States; or any person who shall pass, utter, or publish, or attempt to pass, utter, or publish any false, forged, or counterfeited bond, coupon, or paper purporting to be issued by any such bank or association, knowing the same to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited; or whoever shall falsely alter, or cause or procure to be falsely altered, or shall willingly aid or assist in falsely altering any such bond, coupon, or paper, or shall pass, utter, or publish as true any falsely altered or spurious bond, coupon, or paper issued, or purporting to have been issued, by any such bank or association, knowing the same to be falsely altered or spurious, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both.

Other than the usual salary or director's fee paid to any officer, director, or employé of a national farm loan association, a Federal land bank, or a joint stock land bank, and other than a reasonable fee paid by such association or bank to any officer, director, attorney, or employé for services rendered, no officer, director, attorney, or employé of an association or bank organized under this Act shall be a beneficiary of or receive, directly or indirectly, any fee, commission, gift, or other consideration for or in connection with any transaction for business of such association or bank. No land bank or national farm loan association organized under this Act shall charge or receive any fee, commission, bonus, gift, or other consideration not herein specifically authorized. No examiner, public or private, shall disclose the names of borrowers to other than the proper officers of a national farm loan association or land bank without first having obtained express permission in writing from the Farm Loan Commissioner or from the board of directors of such association or bank, except when ordered to do so by a court of competent jurisdiction or by direction of the Congress of the United States, or of either House thereof, or any committee of Congress or of either House duly authorized. Any person violating any provision of this paragraph shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Any person connected in any capacity with any national farm loan association, Federal land bank, or joint stock land bank, who embezzles, abstracts, or wilfully misapplies any moneys, funds, or credits thereof, or who without authority from the directors draws any order, assigns any note, bond, draft, mortgage, judgment, or decree thereof, or who makes any false entry in any book, report, or statement of such association or land bank with intent in either case to defraud such institution or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of a national farm loan association or land bank or any agent appointed to examine into the affairs of any such association or bank, and every person who with like intent aids or abets any officer, clerk, or agent in any violation of this section, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both.

Any person who shall deceive, defraud, or impose upon, or who shall attempt to deceive, defraud, or impose upon, any person, firm, or corporation by making any false pretence or representation regarding the character, issue, security, or terms of any farm loan bond, or coupon, issued under the terms of this Act; or by falsely pretending or representing that any farm loan bond, or coupon, issued under the terms of this Act by one class of land banks is a farm loan bond, or coupon, issued by another class of banks; or by falsely pretending or representing that any farm loan bond, or coupon, issued under the terms of this Act, or anything contained in said farm loan bond, or coupon, is any thing other than, or different from, what it purports to be on the face of said bond or coupon, shall be fined not exceeding $500 or imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both.

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to direct and use the Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department to detect, arrest, and deliver into custody of the United States Marshal having jurisdiction, any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section.

GOVERNMENT DEPOSITS.

SEC. 32. That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized, in his discretion, upon the request of the Federal Farm Loan Board, to make deposits for the temporary use of any Federal land bank, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Such Federal land bank shall issue to the Secretary of the Treasury a certificate of indebtedness for any such deposit, bearing a rate of interest not to exceed the current rate charged for other Government deposits, to be secured by farm loan bonds or other collateral, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury. Any such certificate shall be redeemed and paid by such land bank at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. The aggregate of all sums so deposited by the Secretary of the Treasury shall not exceed the sum of $6,000,000 at any one time.

ORGANIZATION EXPENSES.

SEC. 33. That the sum of $100,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Federal Farm Loan Board, for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act, including the rent and equipment of necessary offices.

LIMITATION OF COURT DECISIONS.

SEC. 34. That if any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this Act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this Act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

REPEALING CLAUSE.

SEC. 35. That all Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed, and this Act shall take effect upon its passage. The right to amend, alter, or repeal this Act is hereby expressly reserved.

AMERICAN DAIRY EXPORT TRADE.

(Compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, United States Department of Commerce.)

Cheese, butter, and other butter fats are again important factors in our export trade after a long period of comparative inactivity. In the early nineties the United States was selling abroad between 20 million and 30 million pounds of butter, from 50 million to 80 million pounds of cheese, and from 5 million to 10 million pounds of imitation butter annually. In later years, however, exports of this class decreased in a marked degree, and in the fiscal year 1914 had fallen far below the quantities named. In the year just ended there was a continuation of the revival begun in 1914 in all these lines, with totals closely approximating the high levels touched in the decade from 1890 to 1900.

The large gains made by domestic dairy products and butter substitutes are well illustrated by figures published by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, in the June Summary of Foreign Commerce. Butter, varying from 3 million to 5 million pounds annually in our export trade, in 1916 went to 13 1-2 million pounds. During this period imports of butter were greatly reduced, falling from a little less than 8 million pounds in 1914 to less than 3-4 million pounds last year.

American cheese, which since 1905 fluctuated between 2 1-2 million and 17 million pounds, went to 44 million pounds in the fiscal year 1916. Here also, as in the case of butter, the trade balance was on the export side, for the year's imports of cheese in 1916 only totalled 30 million pounds, a decrease of 33 3-4 million pounds from the total for 1914.

Exports of condensed milk, usually exported in sums valued at between 1 million and 2 million dollars annually, in 1916 rose to 12 1-2 million dollars in value, the quantity (156 million pounds) being nearly 10 times that of 1914.

Imitation butter contains in addition to oleomargarine oil some butter fat. The exports of this article rose from 2 1-2 million pounds in 1914 to 5 1-2 million pounds in 1916.

England and Canada are our largest foreign markets for butter, cheese, and condensed milk. England took, in 1915, the latest fiscal year for which data are at hand, 3 1-3 million pounds of butter, out of a total export of 10 million pounds; 48 1-2 million pounds of cheese, out of a total export of 55 million pounds, and 4 million pounds of condensed milk, out of a total export of 37 million pounds. Cuba, Hayti, Panama, Australia, and Venezuela also take considerable quantities of American butter; Canada, Panama, and the West Indies are important markets for our cheese, while Cuba, Belgium, the Netherlands, China, Japan, Hongkong, Russia, Chosen, Panama, Brazil and Peru take large amounts of American condensed milk.

These exports, while important, represent a very small proportion of the annual products of the 60 million cattle on American farms, valued at more than 2 1-3 billion dollars. As long ago as 1909, the latest period covered by the National census, we produced 1,619 million pounds of butter, 321 million pounds of cheese, and 5,814 million gallons of milk, while the quantity of oleomargarine on which internal revenue tax was paid in 1914 aggregated 142 million pounds.

The barley crop of the world in 1915 (in bushels) was 1,542,972,000; oat crop, 4,783,778,000.

WORLD'S CROPS.

In September, 1916, the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy, announced its preliminary estimates of world-crop production for 1916 as follows:

Wheat, 1,526,000,000 bushels, total production in eleven countries.

Rye, 83,200,000 bushels, total production in five countries.

Barley, 476,500,000 bushels, total production in ten countries.

Oats, 1,831,200,000 bushels, total production in nine countries.

Corn, 2,870,159,000 bushels, total production in three countries as follows: United States, 2,865,000,000 bushels; Japan, 4,102,000 bushels, and Switzerland, 157,000 bushels.

Rice (rough), 18,978,700,000 pounds, total production of the United States and Japan. The crop of Japan is estimated at 17,448,700,000 pounds.

Beet sugar, 1,576,000 short tons, total production (expressed as raw sugar) in seven countries for 1915-1916, or 93 per cent. of the preceding year (1914-1915).

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION.

Organized and held annually under the direction of the National Corn Association. Association officers are: President—E. D. Funk, Shirley, Ill. First Vice-President—E. G. Montgomery, Ithaca, N. Y. Secretary and Treasurer—C. P. Bull, St. Paul. Thirty-five States are represented by Vice-Presidents.

The National Corn Exposition has been held six times. The first was in Chicago, 1907; the second and third in Omaha, Neb., in 1908 and 1909; the fourth in Columbus, Ohio, 1911; the fifth at Columbia, S. Car., 1913, and the sixth in Dallas, Tex., 1914.

The slogan of the National Corn Exposition is the "Betterment of Agriculture." The exposition is composed of three prominent factors: (1) Educational exhibits from twenty-five to thirty-five State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, demonstrating experimental work and principles and facts in agriculture. (2) Competitive exhibits from thirty or more States, selected from State contests. (3) Comprehensive and complete educational exhibits from the Federal Department of Agriculture, devoted to many phases of agricultural endeavor.

Four trophies are awarded: (1) Indiana Ten Ear Trophy, for best ten ears of corn, value $1,000. (2) Colorado Oat Trophy, for best peck of oats, value $1,500. (3) Kellog Single Ear Trophy, for best single ear, value $1,000. Farm and Fireside Wheat Trophy for best peck of wheat, $48,000 in cash premiums. Also other smaller trophies for small grains are offered as prizes. No exposition is arranged for 1917.

THE MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK.

The Merchants' Association of New York is a commercial and civic organization whose object it is "to foster the trade and welfare of New York," to develop its industries, and to protect and promote its interests. The association was founded in 1897. Headquarters, Woolworth Building, 233 Broadway. It has about 5,000 members, representing every trade, industry, and profession, doing business in all the five boroughs of the city. President—William Fellowes Morgan. Secretary—S. C. Mead.

The organization includes a Research Bureau, a Traffic Bureau, an Industrial Bureau, a Foreign Trade Bureau, a Convention Bureau, a Publicity Bureau, and a Membership Bureau. It is a membership corporation, governed by a board of twenty-four directors elected by the membership. The association has thirty-three standing committees, who make recommendations to the directors. The annual dues are $50.

COAL PRODUCTION.*

AREA of coal fields in the United States, 450,839 square miles, including 89,482 square miles supposed, but not definitely known, to contain usable coal, and 28,470 square miles in which the coal lies under cover 3,000 or more feet in thickness. Estimated available supply at close of 1913 (short tons), 3,538,506,328,300.

In regard to the coal supplies of the countries outside of the United States, the Geological Survey does not know of any official estimates, with the exception of those of Great Britain, which have been placed by the Royal Commission of Coal Supplies at approximately 180,000,000,000 short tons A statement by the Secretary of the Bituminous Coal Trade Association places the German supply at 164,344,000,000 short tons; Canada's known supplies at 100,000,000,000 short tons, Japan at 50,000,000,000 short tons Estimates in short tons for the other countries of Europe are as follows. France. 25,000,000,000: Austria-Hungary, 30,000,000,000. Belgium, 20,000,000,000. Spain. 4,000,000,000.

The same authority places the contents of the Chinese fields at 1,500,000,000,000 short tons His estimates of the areas in square miles of the countries outside of the United States are as follows China 232,500, Canada, 65,000; India, 35,000, New South Wales, 24,000. Russia, 20,000; Great Britain, 12,000; Spain. 5,500; Japan. 5,500; France, 2,500; Austria-Hungary. 1,800 Germany, 1,700; Belgium. 500; Siberia, Central Asia, and Africa 180,000

A monograph of the Coal Resources of the World was compiled by the Executive Committee of the Twelfth International Congress of Geology, which met at Toronto, Canada, August 7 to 14, 1913. The total resources are estimated at 7,397,533 million tons, of which 4,000,000 million tons are bituminous. 3,000,000 million tons brown coal, and the remainder anthracite.

The world's annual production of coal in short tons in countries approximating 1,000,000 tons or more are as follows, with the year in parentheses: United States (1914) 513,525,477, Great Britain (1914) 297,698,-617, Germany (1914) 270,594,952, Austria-Hungary (1913) 59,647,957, France (1913) 45,108,544, Russia (1913) 35,500,674, Belgium (1913) 25,196,869, Japan (1914) 21,700,572, China (1913) 15,432,200, India (1913) 18,163,856, Canada (1914) 13,597,982, New South Wales (1914) 11,644,476, Spain (1913) 4,731,647, Transvaal (1913) 5,225,036, Natal (1913) 2,898,726, New Zealand (1913) 2,115,834, Holland (1913) 2,064,608, Asiatic Russia (1910) 1,371,261, Chile (1913) 1,362,334, Queensland (1914) 1,180,805, Mexico (1912) 982,396 The total world's production in 1911 was approximately 1,310,000,000 short tons, in 1912 approximately 1,374,550,000 tons, in 1913 approximately 1,477,755,000 tons, and it is estimated that in 1914 the total decreased to about 1,345,322,000 short tons The United States in 1914 contributed 38 per cent., Great Britain 22 per cent., and Germany 20 per cent. In 1914 the United States decreased its production approximately by 56,000,000 tons, or 10 per cent., Great Britain by 24,000,000 tons, or 7 per cent. and Germany by 11,000,000 tons, or 4 per cent. Great Britain exceeded Germany's production in 1914 by 27,000,000 tons. *Owing to war nothing later available.

PRODUCTION OF COPPER, TIN, AND ZINC.

COPPER:—The following figures for world's copper in 1914 are taken from Metal Statistics, 1916, pp. 176-7, being quoted from Henry R. Merton & Co., London. All are in tons of 2,240 pounds: Africa: Cape Colony, 3,455; Namaqua, 2,300; sundries, 18,000; Argentina (Note a); Australasia, 37,000; Austria, *4,000; Bolivia, Coro-Coro, 2,700; Canada, 33,810; Chile, 35,145; Cuba, 6,525; England, *400; Germany, Mansfield, *30,000; other German (Note a); Hungary, including Serbia and Bosnia, *4,400; Italy, 1,600; Japan, 67,000; Mexico, Boleo, 11,300; other Mexican, 23,580; Newfoundland (Note a); Norway, Sulitelma, 4,725; other Norwegian, 7,125; Peru, 22,515; Russia, 31,435; Sweden, 1,000; Spain and Portugal, Rio Tinto, 21,515; Tharsis, 3,600; Mason & Barry 2,265; Sevilla, 1,435; other mines, 7,700; Turkey, *500; Venezuela, 1,030.

The copper production of the United States in 1915 was distributed as follows (smelter output, in pounds fine): Alaska, 70,695,286; Arizona, 432,467,690; California, 37,658,444; Colorado, 7,272,178; Idaho, 6,217,728; Maryland, 15,426; Michigan, 238,956,410; Missouri, 306,406; Montana, 268,263,040; Nevada, 67,757,322; New Mexico, 62,817,234; North Carolina, 33,383; Oregon, 797,471; Tennessee, 18,205,308; Texas, 38,971; Utah, 175,177,695; Vermout, 23,995; Virginia, 50,008; Washington, 903,661; Wyoming, 351,871. Total, 1,388,009,527.

TIN:—The world's tin deliveries for 1915 (consumption), as compiled by the New York Metal Exchange, were as follows (figures are long tons): London, 25,150; Continent of Europe, 17,400; Cornwall, (production), 3,800; Bolivia (shipments), 20,000; South Africa (shipments), 3,000; China (shipments), 1,800; United States, 48,750.. Total, 119,900.

SPELTER:—Owing to the disturbed conditions in Europe complete figures of world's spelter production later than 1913 cannot be given. The following fragmentary figures for the years 1914 and 1915 were obtained from consular reports, federal reports, mining journals, or any other source available. All are in tons of 2,000 pounds:

The figures represent a decrease of 8,377,400 pounds of black powder, an increase of 17,374,616 pounds of high explosives, and an increase of 1,652,091 pounds of permissibe explosives, as compared with 1914.

* Include ammonium nitrate explosives, hydrated explosives, organic nitrate explosives, and certain nitroglycerine explosives containing an excess of free water or carbon. All permissible explosives have passed certain tests of the Bureau of Mines, and are not to be regarded as permissible unless used in the manner specified by the bureau.

EMPLOYEES IN MUNITION PLANTS.

Statistics of 1906 placed the number of men in the Krupp works at 30,000. A recent work on the Krupps places the number of employés at Essen just before the war at 85,000, and states that since the declaration of hostilities the number has been increased to 100,000. In connection with the strike at the Remington Arms Company works at Bridgeport in August, 1915, the following figures were published, giving the number of men employed in the various arms and munition factories of New England at that time:

Remington Arms and Ammunition Company	16,000	Iver Johnson Arms Company	2,500
Union Metallic Cartridge Company	14,000	General Electric Company (Pittsfield)	*8,000
Winchester Repeating Arms Company	15,000	Marlin Fire Arms Company	2,000
Colt Patent Fire Arms Company	8,000	American and British Manufacturing Company	5,500
Smith & Wesson Company	4,000	J. Stevens Arms and Tool Company	4,000
Hopkins and Allen	3,000	U. S. Cartridge Company	2,000

* In addition to this number the General Electric Company has about 15,000 employés in Schenectady, N. Y., and about 22,000 elsewhere in the United States, making a total for this company of about 45,000.

FOURTH OF JULY ACCIDENTS.

The Journal of the American Medical Association has kept a record of the accidents in the United States, due annually to the celebration of Independence Day.

Year.	Killed.	Injured.	Total.	Year.	Killed.	Injured.	Total.

The decrease from 466 deaths in 1903 to 30 in 1916 was due to more intelligent methods of celebration, the most marked decrease taking place in States where the agitation for restrictive measures was strongest.

* Subject to final revision (a) From both domestic and foreign ores. (b) From all sources. Values excluded from metallic totals as the values of the antimony contained in antimonial lead are included in the antimonial lead values and the remainder under "Unspecified." (c) Product from domestic ores only. (d) Ferro-alloys include ferro-manganese, spiegeleisen, ferro-silicon, ferro-phosphorus, ferro-molybdenum, ferro-tungsten, and ferro-vanadium (e) Value, $20 671834625323 an ounce. (f) Value not included in total value (g) Exclusive of those ores from Lake Superior district running so low in manganese as to be classed with iron ore. (h) By-product in electrolytic copper refining. (i) 1914: Consists of 4,294 tons of uranium ore (carnotite), valued at $441,300, including the value of 22.3 grams of radium, not isolated, and 452 tons of vanadium in roscoelite and carnotite ores with an arbitrarily assigned value of $500,000. (j) Includes brown coal and lignite, and anthracite mined elsewhere than in Pennsylvania. (k) Exclusive of considerable production for special uses, value of which is included under "Unspecified." (l) Natural pigments: Ochre, umber, sienna, metallic paint mortar colors, and ground slate and shale Zinc-lead pigments: Sublimed blue lead, sublimed white lead, leaded zinc oxide, zinc oxide, and zinc lead. (m) Value included under Unspecified. (n) Includes 59,189 tons of stronger acid, reported as oleum, etc., not converted to 60° Baumé. (o) Includes in 1915 bismuth, cadmium sulphide, diatomaceous earth for special uses, ilmenite, lithium minerals, marls molybdenum, selenium, silica sand and sandstone (finely ground), sulphur, and an estimate of the value of miscellaneous mineral products not collected annually by the Survey.

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

President—Rev. David S. Dodge. Editor and Lecturer—Prof. A. A. Hopkins, Ph. D. Secretary—Frederick Gates. Treasurer—James C. Crawford.

The National Temperance Society and Publication House was organized in 1865 for the special work of creating and circulating sound temperance literature to promote the cause of total abstinence from all intoxicants, and to unify and concentrate the temperance and Christian sentiment of the Nation against the drink habit and the drink traffic. The headquarters of the society is at 373 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

MINERAL WATER TRADE IN UNITED STATES.

(From a report of United States Geological Survey.)

THOUGH the total value of production in 1915 exceeded that in 1914 the maximum production and value of 1911 were not equalled. There seems to be a general tendency toward increased sales of table waters, decreased sales of medicinal waters, decreased number of active springs, and greatly increased sales of a few waters. The statistics of production in the United States during the last five years, shown in the following table, indicate a gradual decline in quantity sold since 1911.

MINERAL WATERS SOLD IN THE UNITED STATES, 1911-1915.

YEAR.	Commercial Springs.	Quantity Sold.	Value.	Average Price Per Gallon.	YEAR.	Commercial Springs.	Quantity Sold.	Value.	Average Price Per Gallon.
		Gallons.		Cents.			Gallons.		Cents.

In 1915, as in 1913 and 1914, nearly half the trade in mineral waters was in the hands of a few very large producers. Five springs, as in 1913 and 1914, sold more than 1,000,000 gallons each, and 16 springs, as compared with 18 in 1914 and 20 in 1913, sold more than 500,000 gallons each. The total output of these 16 springs was 18,483,823 gallons, valued at $2,016,445. The total output of the 20 largest producers in 1915 was 20,312,142 gallons, valued at $2,087,895, as compared with an output by the 20 largest producers in 1914 of 21,356,203 gallons, valued at $1,636,316. Fifty springs in 1915 did more than $20,000 worth of business each, selling a total of 23,717,725 gallons for $3,421,153. Fifty-one springs in 1914 did more than $20,000 worth of business each, selling a total of 26,731,787 gallons for $3,050,563. Corresponding figures for 1913 are 54 springs, 28,769,596 gallons, and $3,642,964. The decrease in quantity of mineral waters sold in 1915 by the large producers is equivalent to 11 per cent. and the increase in value is equivalent to 12 per cent. These differences indicate a tendency toward increase in price during 1915. In addition to those large producers, however, there were 762 others whose sales ranged from $5 to $20,000 and whose fields of activity are general.

AMERICAN AND IMPERIAL FLUID OUNCES.

153 3-5 American fluid ounces = 160 Imperial fluid ounces.

COMPILED FROM THE CODES OR REVISED STATUTES OF THE

WITHIN the limits of the subjoined table showing the penalties prescribed by the respective States for the offences enumerated it is impossible to attain complete accuracy in comparing the several penalties, for the reason that the provisions of the several States defining these very familiar crimes are not identical. Especially is this true in regard to crimes classified in degrees, some States making but little attempt in that direction, leaving it to the discretion of the trial court to adapt the severity of the punishment to the gravity of the offence, while other States provide a minute classification into degrees, depending on the several possible circumstances attending the commission of the crime. Where no penalty is shown under a given degree of crime the State recognizes but one designation, namely, that of the crime committed.

Murder in the First Degree—in the table below—may be generally defined to be the unlawful intentional and premeditated killing of a human being, or such a killing resulting from the commission or attempt to commit one of the graver crimes such as arson, burglary, rape, or robbery.

Murder in the Second Degree is such a killing without premeditation, or resulting from the attempt to commit some lesser crime.

Manslaughter may be defined as a killing either unintentionally resulting from the careless or unlawful doing of some otherwise lawful act or from the commission of some unlawful act of comparatively trivial character, or intentionally, in the heat of passion and without premeditation.

Arson—where classified in degrees—though the number and exact definition of degrees varies greatly —is in general classified with reference to two conditions. First, the character of the building burned, whether a dwelling house or structure likely to or containing a human being; and, second, whether the crime is perpetrated by day or night. Thus the most serious offence is the burning of an inhabited dwelling by night, and the least serious, the burning of an uninhabited structure by day. Often intermediate degrees are recognized, such as burning a dwelling by day or an uninhabited building by night.

THEIR PENALTIES.

SEVERAL STATES AS AMENDED BY SUBSEQUENT LEGISLATION.

Burglary—The classification of burglary or house breaking depends on substantially the same elements as that of arson namely the building entered, whether a dwelling or other building, and whether the offence was committed by day or night.

Robbery may be generally defined as the theft of property from the person or immediate presence of the victim, accomplished by force or fear. Where degrees of robbery are recognized, the distinction is generally determined by whether the thief be armed or unarmed, though some States also distinguish the second from the first degree, where the theft is accomplished by means of threats of future rather than immediate injury.

Grand Larceny is simple theft, of property above a fixed value, generally $25 to $50—most States also classify as grand larceny, theft of property from the person of the victim irrespective of value though, of course accomplished without the force or fear which constitute the crime of robbery

Assault with intent to kill, bigamy, forgery, perjury and rape are not subdivided into degrees in the subjoined table

Where crimes are divided into several degrees it is generally within the province of the jury, in convicting to fix the degree of the crime, and in almost every case in which a crime is punishable by death or imprisonment it is the province of the jury to determine the punishment, except upon a plea of guilty, when the duty devolves upon the court.

Where the classification of a crime in a particular State does not approximately agree with the definitions given above, note is made of the fact.

NOTE—In the table below, after the figures given, "years" is understood, unless otherwise stated. Where two figures are given, separated by a dash, as 1—7, the provision should be understood as "not less than one year nor more than seven;" where a sum of money is given in the table the provision should be understood as meaning a fine of not exceeding the sum mentioned.

NATIONAL PROBATION ASSOCIATION.

Organized in 1909 as the National Probation Officers' Association; title changed to present one in 1911. The purposes of the association are to promote the more extensive and wise use of the probation and parole systems of dealing with both juvenile and adult offenders; also to encourage the adoption of the most approved methods of conducting children's courts. The association holds an annual conference each Spring at the time and place of the meetings of the National Conference of Charities and Correction. It publishes a directory of probation officers in the United States, the proceedings of its annual conferences, and other literature. From time to time it appoints special committees to study and report on particular phases of probation, parole, and juvenile court work. Supported by membership fees ($1 a year) and voluntary contributions.

President—Albert J. Sargent, Boston, Mass. Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Benj. J. West, Memphis, Tenn.; John W. Houston, Chicago, Ill.; Thomas G. Parris, Philadelphia, Pa. Secretary-Treasurer—Charles L. Chute, 58 North Pearl Street, Albany, N. Y.

* Registration area.

According to Frederick L. Hoffman, author of above table the average homicide rates per 100,000 of population for 30 representative American cities were as follows: For the years 1885-1894, 4 8; for 1895-1904, 5.0; and for 1905-1914, 8.1. The homicide rates for the 10 years ending with 1914 were as follows: For 9 Southern cities, 20.0; for 3 Pacific Coast cities 10.8; for 7 Central cities, 8 8; and for 11 Eastern cities, 5.1. The number of homicides in 1915 in some of the large cities were: Memphis, 122; New Orleans, 83; Atlanta, 64; St. Louis, 103; San Francisco 75; Chicago 211; Manhattan and the Bronx, 186; Brooklyn, 58; Boston, 37; Philadelphia, 74; Milwaukee, 14.

The average number of murders in the United States annually during the twenty years, 1885-1904 was 6,597. In 1896 the murders reached high-water mark 10 662, and in 1895 there were 10,500. For 1914 the Census Bureau reported the number of homicides in the registration area of the United States (66.8 per cent. of the total population) as 4 847 comprising 3,888 males and 959 females. The estimated number of homicides in the continental United States for 1916 is 7 450. The excessive mortality from homicide among the colored race is indicated by the following data: For the last available five-year period in New Orleans the colored rate from homicide was 65.9 per 100 000 of population as against 9.1 for the white population: in Savannah Ga. the rate was 49 4 for the colored against 13 7 for the white population, and in Charleston S C. 57 6 for the colored against 7 6 for the white population.

SUICIDES.

The suicide rate of the registration area of the United States in 1914 was 16.6 per 100,000 of population. The estimated number of suicides in the entire United States, excluding insular possessions, was 17,000 in 1916. In the United States registration area during the five years 1910-1914, there were 37,500 suicides among males and only 11,289 among females the male rate being 24.1 per 100,000 of population, and the female rate 7 7 per 100 000 of population. The percentage distribution by months is as follows: January 7 4, February 7 6; March, 8 6; April 9.1; May 9 3; June 9.3; July 8 6; August, 8.3; September, 8.4; October, 8.0; November 7 9; December 7 5. The most common means of self-destruction in 1914, according to the mortality returns of the Census Bureau were: Firearms 3,286; poisoning, 3,000; hanging or strangulation, 1 552; asphyxia 1 419; cutting or piercing instruments, 658; drowning, 619; jumping from high places, 225; crushing 89; and other means, 85.

The suicide rate of large American cities according to Frederick L. Hoffman statistician, the Prudential Insurance Company of America was 20.3 per 100.000 of population during 1915. The number of suicides in 100 American cities for the 10 years ending 1915 were 44 700; in Manhattan and Bronx, 5,208; in Brooklyn, 2,304; in Chicago 4,758; in Philadelphia 2,565; in St. Louis 2 256; and in San Francisco, 1,953. The average suicide rate per 100 000 of population for 20 leading cities for the 5 years ending with 1914 were as follows: San Francisco 46.8; St. Louis, 34.3; Los Angeles 33.3; Denver, 29 1; Seattle, 29.0; Washington, 23.2; Chicago 22 5; Detroit 21.8; Memphis, 21 5; Milwaukee, 19.9; Newark 19.9; Cleveland, 19.3; Pittsburgh 18 7; Baltimore, 18 4; New Orleans, 17 9; Philadelphia, 17.7; Cincinnati, 17.3; New York City, 16.9; Boston 16 5; Buffalo, 12.0 The average suicide rates for large foreign cities for recent years were 35.6 for Berlin; 26.5 for Paris; 15.3 for Sydney New South Wales; 11.0 for London; and 6.4 for Montevideo.

The average annual suicide rates for the more important countries during five recent years were: Switzerland, 23.4; France 22 8; German Empire 22.5; Austria, 19.2; Hungary, 18.9; Denmark, 18.5; Japan, 18.2; Sweden, 17 6; United States registration area, 16.1; Belgium 13 2; Commonwealth of Australia, 12.5; Uruguay, 12.3; Norway, 11.4; England and Wales, 9.9; The Netherlands, 6.5; Scotland, 5.6; Ireland, 3.4.

LYNCHINGS AND LEGAL EXECUTIONS.

Lynchings—The total number of lynchings in the United States from 1885 to December 31, 1915, was 3,638. In 1916 to November 1 there were 55 lynchings, of which 54 were in the South and one in the North. Fifty-two were males and 3 females. Of the lynched, 48 were negroes, 6 whites, and 1 Mexican. The offences for which they were lynched were: Murder 23, accessory to murder 11, rape 5, attempted rape 7, murderous assault 3, burglary 2, theft 1, attempted murder 1, rape and murder 1, race prejudice 1 The States in which these lynchings occurred and the number in each State were as follows: Alabama 1, Arkansas 5, Florida 9, Georgia 14, Kansas 1 Kentucky 2, Louisiana 2, Mississippi 2, Missouri 1 North Carolina 2, Oklahoma 4, South Carolina 1, Tennessee 3, Texas 7.

Legal Executions—In 1908 to November 15 there were 92; in 1909 107; in 1910, 104; in 1911, 61; in 1912 to November 15, 128; in 1913 to November 12, 81; in 1914, 74; in 1915 to October 11, 94; in 1916 to November 1, 107, of which 61 were in the South and 46 in the North; 58 were whites, 39 negroes, 9 Mexicans, and 1 Chinaman; all were males. The crimes for which they were executed were: Murder 98, rape 8, burglary 1. The States in which the executions in 1916 to November 1 took place, and the number in each, were as follows: Alabama 3, Arizona 4, Arkansas 1, California 7 Colorado 1, Connecticut 3, Florida 1, Georgia 7, Indiana 3, Kentucky 1, Massachusetts 1, Maryland 2, Mississippi 3, Missouri 2, North Carolina 7, New Hampshire 2, New Jersey 1, New Mexico 6, New York 13 Pennsylvania 11, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 1, Texas 12, Utah 1, Virginia 4, West Virginia 3, Wyoming 3.

According to the records kept by the Division of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there have been during the first six months of 1916 25 lynchings. This is 9 less than the number, 34, for the same period last year. Of those lynched 23 were negroes and 2 were whites. In the first six months of 1915 there were 24 negroes and 10 whites lynched. Five, or one-fifth of those put to death, were charged with rape. Other causes of lynchings were: Slapping a boy, brushing against a girl on the street, insult, charged with attempting to assist son accused of murder to escape, robbing store, killing officers of the law, and murder. Eight, or almost one-third of the total lynchings occurred in the State of Georgia.

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR JUDICIAL SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

The American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes was formed in 1910 for the purpose of promoting the establishment of a judicial tribunal which would perform for the nations of the civilized world a similar service to that which is given by ordinary courts to individuals, and of encouraging recourse to such a tribunal after its establishment.

During this period annual conferences have been held, the printed proceedings of which have been a valuable acquisition to libraries and to all interested in the development of judicial settlement and of international law; men of distinguished ability and unquestioned influence contributed the papers, some of which have been voluntarily translated into French, German, Italian, and Spanish.

Quarterly pamphlets, each containing an appropriate monograph by some acknowledged authority on subjects tending to advance the purpose of the society, have been issued, not only to members, but to a carefully selected list of 30,000 names, including the leading law schools and universities throughout the world.

A copy of all publications is sent to the foreign office of every nation and to the heads of foreign legations in Washington.

There is a widespread and growing interest in the work of the society; hardly a day passes without requests, not only from America but from many parts of the world for copies of the pamphlets, which are always sent free of charge. The officers and Executive Committee are much gratified at the interest awakened by their efforts, but are obliged to issue an earnest appeal for contributing members in order to continue the work on the present scale.

The object of the founders of the society was to give it a large following, and so there were three classes of membership established (life, sustaining, and annual), with equal privileges, leaving each member to determine what he would give, and in order that it might be beyond the reach of none, the subscription for annual membership was fixed at one dollar. At the same time, in order to obtain a more adequate income, a sustaining membership at ten dollars a year was established.

President—Theodore Marburg, Baltimore Md. Vice-President—Elihu Root, New York. Secretary—James B. Scott, Washington, D. C. Assistant Secretary—Tunstall Smith, The Preston, Baltimore, Md. Treasurer—J. G. Schmidlapp, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Life membership, $100; sustaining membership, $10 a year; annual membership, $1 a year.

EXTRACTS FROM THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY ACT OF JULY 1, 1898, AS AMENDED BY SUBSEQUENT ACTS.

SEC. 4. WHO MAY BECOME BANKRUPTS.—(a) Any person who owes debts, except a corporation, shall be entitled to the benefits of this act as a voluntary bankrupt.

(b) Any natural person, except a wage-earner, or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil, any unincorporated company, and any corporation engaged principally in manufacturing, trading, printing, publishing, mining, or mercantile pursuits, owing debts to the amount of one thousand dollars or over, may be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt upon default or an impartial trial, and shall be subject to the provisions and entitled to the benefits of this act. Private bankers, but no national banks or banks incorporated under State or Territorial laws, may be adjudged involuntary bankrupts.

The bankruptcy of a corporation shall not release its officers, directors, or stockholders, as such, from any liability under the laws of a State or Territory or of the United States.

SEC. 7. DUTIES OF BANKRUPTS.—(a) The bankrupt shall (1) attend the first meeting of his creditors, if directed by the court or a Judge thereof to do so, and the hearing upon his application for a discharge, if filed; (2) comply with all lawful orders of the court; (3) examine the correctness of all proofs of claims filed against his estate; (4) execute and deliver such papers as shall be ordered by the court; (5) execute to his trustee transfers of all his property in foreign countries; (6) immediately inform his trustee of any attempt, by his creditors or other persons, to evade the provisions of this act, coming to his knowledge; (7) in case of any person having to his knowledge proved a false claim against his estate, disclose that fact immediately to his trustee; (8) prepare, make oath to, and file in court within ten days, unless further time is granted, after the adjudication if an involuntary bankrupt, and with the petition if a voluntary bankrupt, a schedule of his property, showing the amount and kind of property, the location thereof, its money value in detail, and a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known (if unknown that fact to be stated), the amount due each of them, the consideration thereof, the security held by them, if any, and a claim for such exemptions as he may be entitled to, all in triplicate, one copy of each for the clerk, one for the referee, and one for the trustee; and (9) when present at the first meeting of his creditors, and at such other times as the court shall order, submit to an examination concerning the conducting of his business, the cause of his bankruptcy, his dealings with his creditors and other persons, the amount, kind, and whereabouts of his property, and, in addition, all matters which may affect the administration and settlement of his estate; but no testimony given by him shall be offered in evidence against him in any criminal proceedings Provided, however, that he shall not be required to attend a meeting of his creditors, or at or for an examination at a place more than one hundred and fifty miles distant from his home or principal place of business, or to examine claims except when presented to him, unless ordered by the court, or a Judge thereof, for cause shown, and the bankrupt shall be paid his actual expenses from the estate when examined or required to attend at any place other than the city, town, or village of his residence.

SEC. 24. Original jurisdiction in district courts.

"SEC. 130. The Circuit Courts of Appeals shall have the appellate and supervisory jurisdiction conferred upon them by the act entitled 'An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States,' approved July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and all laws amendatory thereof, and shall exercise the same in the manner therein prescribed.'

SEC. 252 states the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court conferred upon it by the Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898.

SEC. 4, Act of January 28, 1915, as follows:

"That the judgments and decrees of the Circuit Courts of Appeals in all proceedings and cases arising under the Bankruptcy Act and in all controversies arising in such proceedings and cases shall be final, save only that it shall be competent for the Supreme Court to require by certiorari, upon the petition of any party thereto, that the proceeding, case, or controversy be certified to it for review and determination, with the same power and authority as if taken to that court by appeal or writ of error; but certiorari shall not be allowed in any such proceeding, case, or controversy unless the petition therefor is presented to the Supreme Court within three months from the date of such judgment or decree."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE LAWS—Continued.

(a) Marriage confers right to contract for necessaries. Female retains exclusive control of her separate property. (b) In Delaware there is no provision in the law fixing a minimum age below which marriage cannot be contracted even by parental consent, so that so far as the statutory law is concerned male minors under twenty-one and female minors under eighteen may be married with parental consent, no matter how young they be. (c) Except for necessaries and contracts made by infant under authority of statute, as contracts under license to trade, bond of infant executor, contracts of apprenticeship in accordance with statute relating thereto. (d) Infants' contracts for necessaries are binding. (e) Either party may disavow a marriage contracted under sixteen years of age, on arriving at that age. (f) Under section 16 of the New York Domestic Relations Law, when the man is under twenty-one or the woman under eighteen the recording officer must require the written consent from both parents. Section 7 of the same law provides that a marriage is voidable if either party is under the age of legal consent, which is eighteen years. Section 1742 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that a woman may bring an action to annul a marriage where, at the time she was married under the age of sixteen and has not cohabited with the spouse since she attained the age of sixteen years. Section 1743 of the code provides that a marriage may be annulled either as to the male or the female where at the time of the marriage they had not reached the age of legal consent. (g) In Pennsylvania persons of either sex who have not attained legal age, or twenty-one years, may obtain a marriage license upon the written consent of parents or legal guardians of such minor. The marital contract is a civil contract. It can be made at any age, but if a promise of marriage is made by a minor, whether male or female, under twenty-one years of age, it may be repudiated when the minor attains majority. Contracts made by minors cannot be enforced at law unless the minor when he attains his or her majority assumes the prior obligation. (h) A minor may contract for necessities. (j) No limit. (k) If husband an adult, in certain cases, generally 21 years, however. (m) Full contractual rights.

DIVORCE STATISTICS.

The Bureau of the Census issued in 1909 a report of the results of a compilation of statistics of divorces of married people granted by the courts in the United States for a period of forty years; being from 1867 to 1906, both years inclusive, and which are shown in 1912 ALMANAC, pages 197-199. For comparison with foreign countries see 1914 ALMANAC, page 277.

FROM 1910 CENSUS REPORT.

The number of divorced persons in the United States when the census was taken in 1910 was 156,176 men and 185,101 women—0.3 per cent. of the total male population and 0.4 per cent. of the total female population. There were fourteen boys and thirty-three girls less than fifteen years old who were divorced.

The statistics of the number of divorced persons fifteen years old and over in New York State are: Men—Native white of native parentage, 3,784; native white of foreign or mixed parentage, 1,692; foreign-born white, 1,775; negro, 164; total, 7,436. Women—Native white of native parentage, 4,950; native white of foreign or mixed parentage, 2,347; foreign-born white, 2,609; negro, 292; total, 10,227. The total figures for the males include 18 divorced Indians, 2 Chinamen and 1 Japanese; those for females include 28 divorced Indians and 1 Japanese.

THE PROCREATION COMMISSION.

This commission, created by an act of the Legislature of New York State, is to examine into the mental and physical condition and the record and family history of the feeble-minded, epileptic, criminal and other defective inmates confined in the State hospitals, reformatories, charitable and penal institutions; and if in the judgment of the majority of the board procreation by any such person would produce children with an inherited tendency to crime, insanity, feeble-mindedness, idiocy, or imbecility, and there is no probability of an improvement in their condition, then the board shall appoint one of their number to perform such operation for the prevention of procreation that shall be decided to be most effective All orders made under this law are subject to review by the Supreme Court.

The board, as appointed by Governor Dix, consists of Dr. Charles H Andrews Buffalo, N. Y., Chairman; Dr. L. Thomson, Glens Falls, N. Y., Secretary; Dr. Wm. J. Wansboro, Albany, N. Y.

THE EUGENICS RECORD OFFICE.

The purposes of this office are to serve eugenical interests in the capacity of repository and clearing house; to build up an analytical index of the traits of American families; to study the forces controlling and the hereditary consequences of marriage matings, differential fecundity, survival and migration; to investigate the manner of inheritance of specific human traits; to advise concerning the eugenical fitness of proposed marriages; to train field workers to gather data of eugenical import; to maintain a limited field force actually engaged in gathering data for eugenical studies; to co-operate with other institutions and with persons concerned with eugenical study; to encourage new centres of eugenical research and education; to publish the results of researches and to aid in the dissemination of eugenical truths.

The Eugenics Record Office was organized in October, 1910, by Charles B. Davenport with funds provided by Mrs. E. H. Harriman, who has remained the principal patron of the work. It has also received generous support from John D. Rockefeller.

Chairman—Alexander Graham Bell. Resident Director—Charles B. Davenport. Superintendent—H. H. Laughlin. Address, Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.

NEW YORK STATE PROBATION COMMISSION.

The State Probation Commission, created by Chapter 430, Laws of 1907, consists of seven members. Four are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years each; one is appointed by the State Board of Charities from among its members, one is appointed by the State Commission of Prisons from among its members; and the State Commissioner of Education is a member ex-officio. Commissioners serve without compensation, but are entitled to necessary travelling expenses.

The duties of the commission are to exercise general supervision over the work of probation officers and to keep informed as to their work; to collect and publish statistical and other information as to the operations of the probation system; to inquire from time to time into the conduct and efficiency of probation officers, and when advisable to conduct a formal investigation of the work of any probation officer; to make recommendations and to secure the effective application of the probation system and the enforcement of the probation law in all parts of the State. The commission makes an annual report to the Legislature showing its proceedings and the results of the probation system as administered in the various localities in the State, and making suggestions and recommendations. The commission in the discharge of its duties has access to all offices and records of probation officers, and may direct formal investigation of the work of any probation officer.

President—Homer Folks, New York. Vice-President—Frank E. Wade, Buffalo. Secretary—Charles L. Chute. The commission has its office at Albany.

ADMINISTRATION OF DECEASED PERSONS' ESTATES.

INHERITANCE TAX LAWS.

THE following is a synopsis of several of the laws of the various States affecting the administration of the estate of a deceased person:

1. Who to Administer.—(a) If the deceased leaves a will, the duty of administration falls upon the executor. If no executor is named, or in the event of the death or refusal of the executor to act, the Court will grant administration under the will to some suitable person, generally selected from those most largely interested under the provisions of the will, such as the residuary legatees, if any. (b) If the deceased died intestate, letters of administration are granted to the following persons in practically all the States:

First—To the surviving husband or widow.
Second—To one or more of the next of kin entitled to share in the estate.
Third—If none of the above consent to act, to one of the creditors of the estate, except in localities where there is provided by law a Public Administrator, who is preferred to creditors.

In practically all the States an administrator is required to give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in double the value of the estate to be administered.

In most of the States, if so provided by the will, no bond is required of an executor, except that in some States an executor is required to give a bond to cover the probable amount of the debts of the estate, and in practically all the States, in the discretion of the Court, for cause shown, an executor may be required to give a bond.

2. Claims of Creditors.—The procedure in the several States in presenting creditors' claims against the estate varies very considerably. In the majority of the States the executor or administrator is required promptly to give public notice to creditors to present their claims to him, and the creditors are required so to present their claims supported by an affidavit that the same are justly due and owing from the estate, above any offsets or counter claims, within a period limited generally to six months or a year. The law of each State should be consulted for more specific details. Most of the States direct a final closing of the estate by the executor or administrator within a year or eighteen months after his appointment, though the time limit may be extended by the Probate Court if conditions require it.

3. The following table contains an analysis of the laws of the several States, covering:

(1) The inheritance or succession tax upon property received either by intestate laws, last will, or by gift or transfer, designed to take effect at death, excepting legacies for religious, charitable or educational purposes, which are tax exempt in most of the States. In the great majority of the States no distinction as to tax is made between real estate and personal property.

(2) The various classes of estate obligations given priority over other claims in case of the insolvency of the estate.

By act of Congress, effective September 8, 1916, an inheritance tax payable to the United States is imposed in addition to the State taxes listed below. The Federal act (General Revenue Law in this Almanac), provides for an exemption of $50,000; and a graduated tax above that amount as follows: 1% on the first $50,000; 2%, $50,000 to $150,000; 3%, $150,000 to $250,000; 4%, $250,000 to $450,000; 5%, $450 000 to $1,000,000; 6%, $1,000,000 to $2,000,000; 7%, $2,000,000 to $3,000,000; 8%, $3,000,000 to $4,000,000; 9% $4,000,000 to $5,000,000; 10%, above $5,000,000.

THE NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.

Organized at New Orleans, February 19-21, 1885.

The object of the association is to elevate the character and advance the interests of the profession of journalism and to promote the welfare of newspaper makers in the United States.

Any person connected with the editorial or business department of a newspaper, magazine or periodical, or any professional writer may become an active member.

The association is the only national organization representing the weeklies and small dailies of the country, and delegates to its conventions, held annually, are elected by the local and State associations. Committees look after national legislation, national advertising, cost and other business matters and one, newly appointed, will take up the matter of a home for aged writers and newspaper people. The next convention will be held at Minneapolis, Minn., June, 1917.

The officers are: President—E. H. Tomlinson, Morristown, N. J. Vice-President—H. C. Hotaling, Mapleton, Minn. Secretary—George Schlosser, Watertown, S. Dak. Treasurer—J. Byron Cain, Belle Plaine, Kan.

DISTRIBUTION OF INTESTATE'S PERSONAL ESTATE.

THE following is a synopsis of the laws of the various States providing for the distribution of the personal estate of a deceased after the payment of funeral expenses and other debts where there is no will:

In many of the States the widow and children are entitled to receive a small portion of the estate, generally varying from $100 to $500, before the claims of creditors are paid. Aside from such exempt portion of the estate, the property to be distributed to the widow or relatives is that remaining after all creditors' claims have been satisfied.

The following is the plan of distribution of a male's property. The same rules apply to a female's estate, except in some States, where the rights of a husband in the estate of his deceased wife differ from those of a wife in the estate of her deceased husband, which will be shown in a separate table.

I. In all States where the deceased leaves a child or children, or descendants of any deceased child, and no widow, the children or descendants take the entire estate, to the exclusion of all other relatives. The children take equal shares, and in most States the descendants of a deceased child together take the share of their parent, except where the descendants are all in equal degree to the deceased (all grandchildren, no children surviving), when they share equally and do not take their proportionate share of their parent's interest.

No statement is given in this synopsis of the law of Louisiana, which, being founded on the provisions of the French code and Roman law instead of the English common law, which is the underlying principle in the other States, differs in many respects from the principles followed in the other States, especially on the question of the rights of a husband and wife in each other's property and in the property acquired by the husband and wife during their married life. The provisions of the law of Indiana are also not included, for the reason that for an accurate statement of its provisions a reading of the entire statute is necessary, together with the decisions of the Indiana courts construing its provisions, which would occupy too much space for a statement here.

II. (a) If deceased leaves a widow, and no children or descendants, the widow takes all. This is the rule in Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

(b) In the following States the widow takes one-half, the residue being taken by the other relatives in the manner and proportion in which they take the entire estate when the deceased leaves neither widow nor descendants (given below); Arkansas, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

(c) In Massachusetts, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah the widow takes the entire estate up to $5,000 and one-half of the residue.

(d) In Connecticut the widow takes the entire estate up to $2,000 and one-half of the residue.

(e) In New York, if there be a father or mother of deceased surviving, the widow takes one-half; if there be no father or mother, but a brother or sister, nephew or niece surviving, the widow takes $2,000 and one-half residue; if there be no parent, brother, sister, nephew or niece, the widow takes all. The residue after the widow's share passes in each case in accordance with the provisions applying where no widow or issue survive.

(f) In New Hampshire the widow takes $1,500, and, if the estate exceeds $3,000, one-half of the residue.

(g) In Wyoming the widow takes the entire estate up to $20,000 and three-fourths of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(i) In Michigan the widow takes the entire estate up to $3,000 and one-half of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(j) In Vermont the widow takes entire estate if not exceeding $2,500; if more than $2,500, widow takes that sum and one-half of residue.

III. (a) When the deceased leaves a widow and children, or descendants, the widow takes one-third and the children share equally in the residue in the following States: Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio (one-half if less than $400), Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

(b) In the following States, if there be but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if two or more children or their descendants, the widow takes one-third, as above, and the children or their descendants the residue: California, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Utah.

(c) In the following States the widow takes one-half and the children, or descendants, the residue: Colorado, Kansas, Kentucky, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

(d) In the following States the widow takes the same share as each of the children: Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

(e) In North Carolina, if there are less than three children, the widow takes one-third and the children the residue; if there are three or more children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children.

(f) In Alabama, if there is but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if there are more than one child and less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

(g) In Georgia, if there are less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

In Nebraska if widow is not the parent of all the children of the deceased and there be more than one child, widow takes one-fourth and children the residue. If widow is parent of all children of the deceased, she takes one-half if there be but one child and the child the residue; if there be more than one child the widow takes one-third and the children the residue.

(h) In New Mexico, the widow takes one-half of the estate acquired during marriage, otherwise than by gift (by purchase, for example) and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue; the widow also takes one-fourth of the estate acquired before marriage, or by gift or legacy during marriage, the children or their descendants taking the residue.

IV. (a) When the deceased leaves no widow, children or descendants, the parents take the entire estate in equal shares in the following States: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

In all of the States just mentioned, except Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas, if one parent is dead, the surviving parent takes the entire estate, to the exclusion of brothers and sisters. In Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas the surviving parent takes one-half and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the residue.

In all of them, if both parents are dead, the brothers and sisters and their descendants take the entire estate.

(b) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother and brothers and sisters, or their descendants equally; and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters, or their descendants: Florida, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

(c) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother; and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters or their descendants: Arkansas, District of Columbia and North Dakota.

(d) In the following States the parents, if living, and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate, sharing equally. Georgia, Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey and South Carolina.

(e) In Delaware, Ohio and Maryland (where the property did not descend to intestate from either parent), the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate in preference to the parents, who only inherit if there are no brothers or sisters or lawful issue of any deceased brothers or sisters.

DISTRIBUTION OF FEMALE'S ESTATE.

In the following States, if the deceased was a married woman, the rights of her surviving husband in her personal estate differ from the rights of a widow in the estate of her deceased husband as shown in the above synopsis.

(a) In Delaware, District of Columbia, North Carolina, Rhode Island, and Virginia the husband takes the entire personal estate, whether there is any issue of the marriage or not.

(b) In New York, if there are no children or descendants of children, the husband takes the entire estate.

(c) In Florida, Georgia, and Pennsylvania, if there are no children or descendants the husband takes the entire estate; if there are children, the husband takes the same share as each child.

(d) In Ohio the husband takes the entire estate if there are no children or descendants; if there are children or descendants, they take the entire estate.

(e) In Alabama the husband takes one-half of the estate, the children, or descendants, taking the residue.

(f) In North Carolina, where surviving husband is not also the father of all the children of decedent, if there be one child the husband takes one-half and the child one-half; if there be more than one child, husband takes child's share.

LAW EXAMINATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE.

To entitle an applicant to an examination as an attorney and counsellor he shall pay to the examiners a fee of $15, and he must prove (15 days in advance) to the satisfaction of the State Board of Law Examiners: 1. That he is a citizen of the State, twenty-one years of age, and that his residence for six months prior to the examination is actual and not constructive, which proof must be made by his own affidavit. 2. That he has studied law in the manner and according to the conditions prescribed for a period of four years, except that if the applicant is a graduate of any college or university his period of study may be three years instead of four, and except also that persons who have been admitted as attorneys in the highest court of original jurisdiction of another State or country, and have remained therein as practising attorneys for at least three years, may be admitted to such examination after a period of law study of one year within this State. 3. That the applicant, if not a college graduate, has passed the regents' examination or its equivalent must be proved by the production of a certified copy of the regents' certificate filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Address communications concerning law examinations to F. M. Danaher, Secretary, Albany, N. Y.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT is the act of declaring the execution of an instrumea before an officer authorized to certify to such declaration. The officer certifies to the fact of such declaration, and to his knowledge of the person so declaring. Conveyances or deeds of land to be entitled to be recorded must first be acknowledged before a proper officer. Most of the States have forms of acknowledgments, which should be followed.

Acknowledgments may be taken in general by Notaries Public, Justices of the Peace, Judges or Clerks of Courts of the higher grades, Registers, Masters in Chancery, Court Commissioners, Town Clerks, Mayor and Clerks of incorporated cities, within their respective jurisdictions.

The requisites to a valid deed are the same in general as other contracts, but the appointment of an attorney to execute a deed for another person must in general be executed with the same formalities requisite to the deed itself.

SEALS or their equivalent (or whatever is intended as such) are necessary in Alaska, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Maine Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming. In almost all the States deeds by corporations must be under seal FORMS are prescribed or indicated by the statutes of most of the States except Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana. SEPARATE ACKNOWLEDGMENT by wife is required in Alaska, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas. ONE WITNESS to the execution of deeds is required in District of Columbia, Maine (customary), Maryland, Nebraska, New Jersey (usual), Oklahoma, Utah, Wyoming. TWO WITNESSES to the execution of deeds are required in Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin.

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

Negotiable instruments, the common forms of which are promissory notes, checks, or other bills of exchange, while having the same general requisites as other contracts, have certain distinct features. The purpose of the law is to facilitate as much as possible their free passing from hand to hand like currency. The assignment of an ordinary contract leaves the assignee in no different position for enforcing his rights than that of his assignor but one who takes a negotiable instrument from a prior holder, without knowledge of any defences to it, before its maturity, and gives value for it, holds it free of any defences which might have been set up against his predecessors, except those defects that were inherent in the instrument itself.

To be negotiable an instrument must be in writing and signed by the maker (of a note) or drawer (of a bill or check).

It must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money.

Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed future time.

Must be payable to order or to bearer.

In a bill of exchange (check) the party directed to pay must be reasonably certain.

Every negotiable instrument is presumed to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and want of consideration in the creation of the instrument is not a defence against a bona-fide holder.

An instrument is negotiated, that is completely transferred, so as to vest title in the purchaser, if payable to bearer, or indorsed simply with the name of the last holder, by mere delivery, if payable to order by the indorsement of the party to whom it is payable and delivery.

One who transfers an instrument by indorsement warrants to every subsequent holder that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and that if not paid by the party primarily liable at maturity, he will pay it upon receiving due notice of non-payment.

To hold an indorser liable the holder upon its non-payment at maturity must give prompt notice of such non-payment to the indorser and that the holder looks to the indorser for payment. Such notice should be sent within twenty-four hours.

When an indorser is thus compelled to pay he may hold prior parties through whom he received the instrument liable to him by sending them prompt notice of non-payment upon receiving such notice from the holder.

One who transfers a negotiable instrument by delivery, without indorsing it, simply warrants that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and knows of no defence to it, but does not agree to pay it if unpaid at maturity.

The maker of a note is liable to pay it if unpaid at maturity without any notice from the holder or indorser.

Notice to one of several partners is sufficient notice to all.

When a check is certified by a bank the bank becomes primarily liable to pay it without notice of its non-payment, and when the holder of a check thus obtains its certification by the bank, the drawer of the check and previous indorsers are released from liability, and the holder looks to the bank for payment.

A bona-fide holder of a negotiable instrument, that is, a party who takes an instrument regular on its face, before its maturity, pays value for it and has no knowledge of any defences to it, is entitled to hold the party primarily liable responsible for its payment, despite any defences he may have against the party to whom he gave it, except such as rendered the instrument void in its inception. Thus, if the maker of a note received no value for it, or was induced to issue it through fraud or imposition, they do not defeat the right of a bona-fide holder to compel its payment from him.

The following States have enacted a similar Negotiable Instrument Law: Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Dist. of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin—and the same general rules apply in all the States.

LAW OF CONTRACTS.

A contract is an agreement of two or more parties, by which reciprocal rights and obligations are created. One party acquires a right, enforceable at law, to some act or forbearance from the other, who is under a corresponding obligation to thus act or forbear.

Generally speaking, all contracts which are made between two competent parties, for a proper consideration, without fraud and for a lawful purpose, are enforceable at law.

To the creation of a valid contract there must be:

1. Precise agreement. The offer of one party must be met by an acceptance by the other, according to the terms offered.

2. There must be a consideration. Something of value must either be received by one party or given up by the other.

3. The parties must have capacity to contract. The contracts of insane persons are not binding upon them. Married women are now generally permitted to contract as though single, and bind their separate property. The contracts of an infant are generally not binding upon him, unless ratified after attaining his majority. The contracts of an infant for "necessaries" may be enforced against him to the extent of the reasonable value of the goods furnished. It is incumbent upon one seeking thus to hold an infant to show that the goods furnished were in fact necessary to the infant, and that he was not already supplied by his parents or guardians.

4. The party's consent must not be the result of fraud or imposition, or it may be avoided by the party imposed upon.

5. The purpose of the parties must be lawful. Agreements to defraud others, to violate statutes, or whose aim is against public policy, such as to create monopolies, or for the corrupt procurement of legislative or official action, are void, and cannot be enforced by any party thereto.

Contracts in general are equally valid, whether made orally or in writing, with the exception of certain classes of contracts, which in most of the States are required to be attested by a note or memorandum in writing, signed by the party or his agent sought to be held liable. Some of the provisions, which are adopted from the old English Statute of Frauds, vary in some States, but the following contracts very generally are required to be thus attested by some writing:

Contracts by their terms not to be performed within a year from the making thereof.

A promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person.

Contracts made in consideration of marriage, except mutual promises to marry.

Promise of an executor, or administrator, to pay debts of deceased out of his own property.

Contracts for the creation of any interest or estate in land, with the exception of leases for a short term, generally one year.

Contracts for the sale of goods above a certain value, unless a portion of the price is paid or part of the goods delivered. The required value of the goods sold varies in different States from $30 to $200. In a number of the States no such provision exists.

In many of the States declarations or conveyances of trust estates.

In many States representations as to the character, credit, or responsibility of another person.

Partial performance of the contract is generally held to dispense with the necessity for a writing.

If the damages liable to result from the breaking of a contract are uncertain the parties may agree upon a sum to which either may be entitled as compensation for a breach, which will be upheld by the courts, but if the sum so fixed is not designed as a fair compensation to the party injured, but as a penalty to be inflicted, it will be disregarded.

A party is generally excused for the failure to perform what he has agreed only by the act of God or the public enemy. Except in cases involving a personal element in the work to be performed, such as the rendition of services, when the death or sickness of the party contracting to perform them is a valid excuse, or contracts for the performance of work upon a specified object, when its destruction without the fault of the party sought to be held liable is a sufficient excuse.

ARREST IN CIVIL ACTION.

WHILE imprisonment for debt as it formerly existed in English and American law, by which a debtor might be arrested and imprisoned for mere inability to pay his creditor, no longer exists in the United States, the statutes of the majority of the States provide for the arrest of a defendant in a civil action under varying conditions. A large number of States determine the right of arrest by the character of the claim on which suit is brought, allowing in it actions for fraud or the injuries known in the law as "torts," such as an injury to the person or property, conversion or embezzlement, libel, slander, or the like.

In the following States no civil arrest is allowed—Arizona, District of Columbia, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Tennessee, and Texas.

In the following States the right to arrest depends upon the nature of claim in suit: In actions for fraud or torts, Connecticut; for fraud, libel, slander, or violent injury to person or property, Delaware; for fraud only, Iowa and Kansas; only after verdict of jury, finding malice, fraud, or wilful deceit, Colorado; for torts, breach of promise to marry, misconduct or embezzlement in office or professional capacity, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and New York (also for fine or penalty or to recover property concealed from Sheriff).

In the following States arrest is only allowed against a defendant about to remove from State or about to conceal, transfer, or remove his property to avoid plaintiff's claim or defraud creditors, irrespective of the nature of the claim: Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Utah, Virginia. In New Hampshire tax collector may also arrest person for non-payment of poll tax, if not sufficient property upon which to make distress.

In the following States arrest is allowed in contract actions where the defendant is about to depart from the State, or conceal or remove his property, and also in actions for fraud or torts of various kinds, though the provisions are not identical: Arkansas (fraud only), California, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia (fraud only), Wisconsin.

In Georgia arrest only allowed against attorneys, Sheriffs or other officers of the court for failure to pay over money collected and in certain circumstances against defendant who conceals property from Sheriff. The drawer of a check which on presentation to the bank payment is refused, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Criminal prosecution cannot be instituted, however, until after an expiration of thirty days, and not then if the drawer makes good the invalid check.

In Wyoming (only after judgment) in actions for fraud, or money lost at gambling, or where defendant has removed or concealed property to avoid judgment.

In Rhode Island, allowed in all actions except to recover debt or taxes.

In Ohio, when an affidavit is filed showing: About to remove property to defraud creditors, convert property into money for same purpose, conceal property or rights in action fraudulently, assigned or disposed of property with intent to defraud creditors. Fraudulently contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation. Money or property sought to be recovered was in gambling on a bet or wager.

WILLS.

A WILL OR TESTAMENT is a final disposition of a person's property, to take effect after his death. A codicil is an addition or alteration in such disposition. All persons are competent to make a will except idiots, persons of unsound mind, and infants. In many States a will of an unmarried woman is deemed revoked by her subsequent marriage. A nuncupative or unwritten will is one made orally by a soldier in active service, or by a mariner while at sea.

In most of the States a will must be in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence, and by his direction, and attested by witnesses, who must subscribe their names thereto in the presence of the testator. The form of wording a will is immaterial as long as its intent is clear.

AGE at which persons may make wills is in most of the States 21 years. Males and females are competent to make wills at 18 years in the following States: California, Connecticut, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah and the Hawaiian Islands; and in the following States only females at 18 years: Colorado, District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, Washington, Wisconsin.

In the following States persons of 18 years may dispose of personal property only: Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia; in Georgia any one over 14 years and in Louisiana any one over 16 years is competent to make a will. In Colorado, persons of 17 years, and in New York males of 18 and females of 16 years may dispose of personalty. WITNESSES—Most of the States require two witnesses, except in Connecticut (3), Maine (3), Massachusetts (3), New Hampshire (3), South Carolina (3), Vermont (3).

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE PROHIBITION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated in 1901 and is organized in 266 colleges and universities, and has an enrolled membership of 8,800. It encourages study and discussion of the liquor problem, especially in its economic and social phases, and enlists students for service and leadership in the settlement of this and similar civic social problems. To this end it conducts among the colleges of the United States oratorical contests, journalistic contests, study groups, debates, etc., and sends out a thousand or more students annually into local and State anti-liquor campaigns. Its work is educational in character, training leaders and workers for the various anti-liquor organizations of the country.

PAUPERISM.

According to Census Bulletin 120, issued in 1914, the number of paupers in almshouses in the United States on January 1, 1910, was 84,198. Of these, 57,049 were males and 27,149 females; 44,149 were native born, 33,125 foreign born, 355 nativity unknown, 6,464 colored. The total number of admissions to almshouses in 1910 was 88,313. The deaths of pauper inmates of almshouses in 1910 were 17,486, the largest causes of these deaths being tuberculosis of the lungs, 3,135; senility, 1,818; heart disease, 1,439; pneumonia, 1,071; Bright's disease, 1,071. The number of paupers in almshouses who were discharged in 1910 to be self-supporting was 44,491; to relatives and friends, 14,160; to be boarded out, 459, and indentured, 10. More than half of the persons admitted during the year were over 50 years of age. The number 80 years old and over was 3,365.

PAUPERISM IN UNITED KINGDOM IN 1914.

England and Wales (on January 1), indoor 271,463, outdoor 389,314; Scotland (on January 15), paupers 66,832, dependents 38,413; Ireland (at close of first week in January), indoor 35,355, outdoor 37,837. Total number, 839,214. Amount of relief in 1913, £17,784,579.

MORTALITY STATISTICS FOR 1915.

(From a bulletin issued by the Census Bureau, September 19, 1916.)

THE annual report on mortality in the United States, relating to the calendar year 1915, shows a death rate of 13.5 per 1,000 estimated population in the registration area of the United States.

TOTAL DEATHS IN REGISTRATION AREA.

The total number of deaths (exclusive of stillbirths) in the registration area, which now contains about two-thirds of the population of the United States, was 909,155. There has been a marked, though not continuous, decline in the death rate since 1880, when it was 19.8 per 1,000, based on the deaths among 17 per cent. of the country's population.

The registration area of the United States, as constituted for the year 1915, consists of 25 States (in one of which, North Carolina, the registration is restricted to municipalities which had 1,000 population or over in 1910), the District of Columbia, and 41 cities in non-registration States. The States and cities making up this area are those whose registration of deaths has been accepted by the Bureau of the Census as being fairly complete (at least 90 per cent. of the total number of deaths), and from which transcripts of the death certificates recorded under the State laws or municipal ordinances were received by the Bureau of the Census.

The estimated population of the registration area in 1915 was 67,336,992. It has grown from sixteenths of 1 per cent. of the total land area of the United States in 1880 to 41.3 per cent. in 1915, and the proportion of the population living in it has increased from 17 per cent. in 1880 to 67.1 per cent. in 1915.

COMPARISON WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Comparative figures for foreign countries are not available for 1915, but in 1914 the only important countries or provinces having lower death rates than the United States were Denmark (12.6), the Province of Ontario (11.8), Holland (12.4), Australia (10.5), and New Zealand (9.3).

DEATH RATES OF STATES.

Following are the death rates per 1,000 population in 1915 for the States included within the registration area: California, 13.7; Colorado, 11.3; Connecticut, 14.9; Indiana 12.7; Kansas 10.1 (these rates are based on estimates of population computed on the assumption that the annual numerical increase since 1910 has been the same as the average annual numerical increase between 1900 and 1910. This method probably results, in the cases of the States and cities for the years indicated, in an exaggeration of the estimated population and a consequent reduction of the apparent death rate below the true figure); Kentucky, 12.3 (white, 11.1; colored, 22.0); Maine, 15.6; Maryland, 15.8 (white, 14.1; colored 24.1); Massachusetts, 14.5; Michigan, 13.4; Minnesota, 10.1; Missouri, 12.0; Montana, 11.4; New Hampshire, 16.1; New Jersey, 13.8; New York, 14.6; North Carolina (includes only municipalities having a population of 1,000 or over in 1910), 17.3 (white, 13.5; colored, 24.9); Ohio, 13.0; Pennsylvania, 13.8; Rhode Island, 14.8; Utah, 9.9; Vermont, 14.7; Virginia, 14.2 (white, 11.6; colored, 19.8); Washington, 8.1; Wisconsin, 10.8.

DEATH RATES FOR CITIES.

Following are the death rates per 1,000 population in 1915 for the 50 registration cities with populations of 100,000 or over in 1910. Separate figures for white and colored persons are given in parentheses for cities in which the colored population constituted 10 per cent. or more of the total in 1910:

Alabama—Birmingham, 15.6 (white, 11.3; colored, 22.7). California—Los Angeles, 12.3 (white, 12.0; colored, 19.4); Oakland, 11.4; San Francisco, 15.9 (white, 15.6; colored, 24.9). Colorado—Denver, 13.3. Connecticut—Bridgeport, 15.4; New Haven, 15.7. District of Columbia—Washington, 18.1 (white, 15.1; colored, 26.2). Georgia—Atlanta, 15.1 (white, 11.4; colored, 23.3). Illinois—Chicago, 14.3 (white, 14.0; colored, 23.9). Indiana—Indianapolis, 14.7 (white, 13.9; colored, 22.5). Kentucky—Louisville, 15.0 (white, 13.0; colored, 24.2). Louisiana—New Orleans, 21.2 (white, 16.4; colored, 34.6). Maryland—Baltimore, 17.1 (white, 15.2; colored, 28.1). Massachusetts—Boston, 16.1 (white, 16.0; colored, 23.0); Cambridge, 13.1; Fall River, 15.9; Lowell, 16.2; Worcester, 15.4. Michigan—Detroit, 15.7; Grand Rapids, 12.5. Minnesota—Minneapolis, 11.5; St. Paul, 10.7. Missouri—Kansas City, 14.7 (white, 13.5; colored, 26.7); St. Louis, 13.8 (white, 13.0; colored, 24.5). Nebraska—Omaha, 12.2. New Jersey—Jersey City, 14.5; Newark, 13.1; Paterson, 13.2. New York—Albany, 20.0; Buffalo, 14.9; New York, 13.9 (white, 13.7; colored, 23.7); Rochester, 13.9; Syracuse, 13.2. Ohio—Cincinnati, 15.6 (white, 14.8; colored, 29.9); Cleveland, 13.4; Columbus, 14.0 (white, 13.6; colored, 19.7); Dayton, 13.6; Toledo, 15.4. Oregon—Portland, 8.4. Pennsylvania—Philadelphia, 15.6 (white, 15.1; colored, 23.4); Pittsburgh, 15.3 (white, 15.1; colored, 19.1); Scranton, 14.7. Rhode Island—Providence, 14.6. Tennessee—Memphis, 19.8 (white, 13.9; colored, 29.9); Nashville, 17.2 (white, 14.0; colored, 24.4. Virginia—Richmond, 18.9 (white, 15.9; colored, 24.3). Washington—Seattle, 7.4; Spokane, 8.1. Wisconsin—Milwaukee, 11.4.

The lowest rate shown by any of these cities was that for Seattle, Wash. (7.4), while the highest (21.2) was for New Orleans, La.

DEATH RATES IN CITIES HAVING LARGE COLORED POPULATIONS.

An interesting feature of the report is the presentation of a table showing comparative death rates for white and colored persons (including Indians, Chinese, and Japanese) in 79 cities in which the colored population constituted 10 per cent. or more of the total in 1910. In these 79 cities (including two in Kentucky and two in Maryland in which the colored population constituted less than 10 per cent. of the total), taken together, the death rate among the white in 1915 was 15.0 per 1,000, while among the colored population it was 27.5. The highest rate for the colored was 56.5, in Columbia, S. C., and the lowest was 6.1, in Riverside, Cal.

By the aid of this table it is possible to make a much fairer comparison between the healthfulness of different cities, on the basis of the death rates among the whites alone, than could be made on the basis of general death rates. For example, Birmingham, Ala., in which the combined death rate for white and colored persons was 15.6 per 1,000—considerably above the average for large cities—shows a rate of only 11.3 for whites alone—a little less than that for Oakland, Cal., and considerably less than the rates for many other cities.

AVERAGE AGE AT DEATH.

The average age at death in 1913 for both sexes, from all causes combined, was 39.8; for males alone, 39.2; for females alone, 40.6. The corresponding averages for 1912 were 40.6, 39.9, and 41.4. The report cautions the reader not to confuse the average age at death with expectation of life as given in life tables.

Nearly 18 per cent. of all deaths were of infants under 1 year of age, and more than 25 per cent. were of children under 5 years. After the first five years of age deaths were most frequent among persons between 70 and 74, inclusive. This applied to both sexes combined and to women alone, the deaths among these groups forming 6.56 per cent. and 6.88 per cent. respectively of the corresponding totals. For men alone, however, the period of greatest mortality was between the ages of 65 and 69, inclusive, the deaths during this period constituting 6.4 per cent. of the total for males.

FEWER DEATHS FROM TUBERCULOSIS.

The death rate from tuberculosis (all forms) declined from 146.8 per 100,000 population in 1914 to 145.8 in 1915. The rate from this cause shows a continuous, though irregular, decline from year to year since 1904.

The death rates from cerebral hemorrhage and apoplexy, and organic heart diseases and endocarditis increased as compared with 1914, the former from 77.7 to 79.3 per 100,000 population, and the latter from 150.8 to 156.2. These rates are higher than in any of the years between 1900 and 1915.

The rates for typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and croup, and diarrhœa and enteritis (infants under 2 years) show decreases as compared with 1914, and there has been a general and pronounced decline in the rates from these causes since 1900.

PRINCIPAL CAUSES OF DEATHS.

The deaths from heart diseases (organic diseases of the heart and endocarditis) in the registration area in 1915 numbered 105,200, or 156.2 per 100,000 population. The death rate from this cause shows a marked increase as compared with 1900, when it was only 123.1 per 100,000.

Tuberculosis in its various forms claimed 98,194 victims in 1915, of whom 85,993 died from tuberculosis of the lungs. The progress made in the prevention of this dreaded malady during recent years has been most gratifying. In only a little more than a decade, from 1904 to 1915, the death rate from tuberculosis in all its forms fell from 200.7 to 145.8 per 100,000, the decline being continuous from year to year. This is a drop of more than 25 per cent.

Pneumonia (including bronchopneumonia) was responsible for 89,326 deaths in the registration area in 1915, or 132.7 per 100,000. This rate, although lower than for most of the years from 1900 to 1911 inclusive, is higher than for 1912, 1913, and 1914. The rate for 1914, 127 per 100,000, was the lowest on record. The death rate from this disease, like that from tuberculosis, has shown a marked decline since 1900, when it was 180.5 per 100,000.

The only remaining death rate higher than 100 per 100,000 in 1915 was that for Bright's disease and acute nephritis, 104.7. The total number of deaths due to these maladies in 1915 was 70,500; of this number, 64 480 were caused by Bright's disease and 6,020 by acute nephritis. The mortality rate from these two causes increased from 89 per 100,000 in 1900 to 103.4 in 1905, fluctuated more or less between 1905 and 1912, and has shown little change since the last-mentioned year.

Next in order of deadliness come cancer and other malignant tumors, which caused 54,584 deaths in 1915. Of these, 21,221, or nearly 39 per cent., resulted from cancers of the stomach and liver. The death rate from cancer has risen from 63 per 100,000 in 1900 to 81.1 in 1915. The increase has been almost continuous, there having been but two years, 1906 and 1911, which showed a decline as compared with the years immediately preceding.

Apoplexy was the cause of 53,397 deaths, or 79.3 per 100,000. The rate from this disease has increased gradually, with occasional slight declines, since 1900, when it stood at 67.5.

Diarrhœa and enteritis caused 48,325 deaths in 1915, or 71.7 per 100,000. This rate has shown a marked falling off in recent years, having been 90.2 in 1913 and 79.4 in 1914; and has declined very greatly as compared with the corresponding rate for 1900, which was 133 2. Nearly five-sixths of the total number of deaths charged to these causes in 1915 were of infants under 2 years of age.

Arterial diseases of various kinds—atheroma, aneurism, etc.—caused 15,685 deaths in 1915, or 23.3 per 100,000. This rate, although somewhat lower than the corresponding ones for 1912 and 1913, is higher than that for 1914, and is very much higher than that for 1900, which was 6.1.

Diabetes was the cause of 11,775 deaths, or 17.5 per 100,000. The rate from this disease has risen almost continuously from year to year since 1900, when it was 9.7 per 100,000.

Influenza caused no fewer than 10,768 deaths in the registration area in 1915, the rate being 16 per 100,000. The rate from this malady, which fluctuates very considerably from year to year, was higher in 1915 than during several years preceding.

The mortality rate from typhoid fever has shown a most gratifying and remarkable decline since 1900, having dropped from 35.9 per 100,000 in that year to 12.4 in 1915, the decrease amounting to nearly two-thirds. This decline is greater, relatively, than that shown for any other important cause of death. The total number of deaths due to typhoid fever in 1915 was 8,332.

WHOOPING COUGH, MEASLES, AND SCARLET FEVER.

The principal epidemic maladies of childhood—whooping cough, measles, and scarlet fever—were together responsible for 11,489 deaths of both adults and children, or 17.1 per 100,000, in the registration area in 1915, the rates for the three diseases separately being 8.1, 5.4, and 3.6, respectively. In 1913 measles caused a greater mortality than either of the other diseases, but in 1914 and 1915 whooping cough had first place.

EFFECTS OF THE "SAFETY-FIRST" CAMPAIGN.

That the "safety-first" campaign, inaugurated a few years ago, has borne good fruit is brought out by the figures for accidental deaths. For 1913, 54,011 deaths were reported as due to accident; for 1914 the corresponding number was reduced to 51,770, and for 1915 to 51,406; and during this period there was not only an increase in the population of the registration area as it existed in 1913, but an increase in the extent of the area itself. The rate per 100,000 population for accidental deaths fell from 85.3 in 1913 to 78.5 in 1914 and to 76.3 in 1915.

Deaths due to railway accidents and injuries totalled 6,652 in the registration area in 1915, or 9.9 per 100,000. This number includes fatalities resulting from collisions between railway trains and vehicles at grade crossings. This death rate is the lowest on record and shows a marked decline during the past 10 years.

Deaths resulting from street-car accidents and injuries numbered 1,555, or 2.3 per 100,000. This rate, like that for railway fatalities, is the lowest on record and shows a material falling off during the past 10 years.

Automobile accidents and injuries caused 3,978 deaths in 1915, or 5.9 per 100,000. There has been an increase in this rate from year to year, but, as already mentioned, the increase has not been so rapid as that in the number of machines in use.

The number of deaths from mine accidents and injuries in the registration area in 1915 was 2,009, corresponding to a rate of 3 per 100,000. This rate shows a material decline as compared with the corresponding figure for 1918, 3.6, and a very great decline as compared with that for 1907, 4.8, which is the highest on record.

Deaths caused by machinery accidents in 1915 numbered 1,257, or 1.9 per 100,000. This rate also shows a marked decline during recent years, the corresponding figures for 1913 and 1914 being 2.4 and 2, respectively. The highest recorded rate from this cause is 2.5, for 1907.

SUICIDES.

The number of suicides reported for 1915 was 11,216, or 16.7 per 100,000 population. The suicide rate has not varied very greatly during the past 10 years.

DEATHS CAUSED BY FIREARMS.

The census figures bring out the astonishing fact that during the year 1915 firearms caused more deaths than railroad accidents, more than five times as many as street-car accidents, nearly as many as railroad and street-car accidents combined, and more than twice as many as automobile accidents. The total number of deaths due to the use of firearms in the registration area in 1915 was 7,994, corresponding to a rate of 11.9 per 100,000. Of these deaths, 3,608 were suicides, 2,885 were homicides, and 1,501 were accidental (including those concerning which the status as to suicide, homicide, or accident was in doubt). The suicidal use of firearms has increased from year to year since 1913; the frequency of accidental deaths due to their use shows a slight decline during recent years; and the homicidal use of firearms shows a decline as compared with 1913 and 1914, but an increase as compared with 1910, 1911, and 1912. No separate data as to homicides by firearms for the years prior to 1910 are available.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS (POLIOMYELITIS).

INFANTILE paralysis (poliomyelitis) is a disease characterized by inflammation of the nerve cells of the spinal cord, or brain, resulting in their total or partial destruction, with consequent wasting, paralysis and deformity of the parts which they supply.

HISTORY—Poliomyelitis is not a new disease. It was first described in 1840 by von Heine, but unquestionably existed for centuries previous to that time. Its occurrence in epidemic form was first recognized by Bergenholz in 1861, his observations being published in 1890. The largest epidemics have occurred in Vermont in 1894, Norway and Sweden in 1905, New York City and vicinity 1907, Iowa 1908-1910, Massachusetts 1907 and the three subsequent years, Minnesota 1908-1909-1910, District of Columbia 1910, Sweden 1911, Buffalo 1912, New York and surrounding States 1916. Isolated cases are, however, being constantly reported. The following table shows the rapid increase in the number of cases in this country in recent years:

Since 1910 (estimated)	45,000 "

DISTRIBUTION—The disease exists in all parts of the world, and extensive outbreaks have occurred in countries with every conceivable variation of climate. Northern Europe and the northern portion of the Western Hemisphere have suffered to a greater extent, however, than southern sections, and in the United States generally the infection is more prevalent than in other countries.

SEASONAL PREVALENCE—Cases occur in every month of the year, but the late Summer and early Fall months generally show the greatest incidence. With the approach of cold weather the disease usually declines rapidly, although one of the most extensive outbreaks occurred in Sweden in the depth of Winter. In the Southern Hemisphere poliomyelitis is most common from December to May, the Summer months.

AGE INCIDENCE—The disease occasionally, though rarely, affects adults. In the New York City 1916 epidemic approximately 88 per cent. of all cases were in children under the age of 5, and 98.5 per cent. were in those under 15.

INSECTS—Experimentally poliomyelitis has been transmitted by the stable-fly (stomoxys calcitrans), and the virus may be carried mechanically by the common house-fly (musca domestica). Whether or not these insects play a rôle in the transmission of the disease has not as yet been definitely determined. There is no reason for believing that the mosquito is concerned in the dissemination of the disease. Recently the flea has been incriminated, the theory of flea transmission being advanced by Richardson, in September, 1916. The evidence to support this theory is inconclusive.

OTHER CONDITIONS—Rich and poor are alike affected, and the presence of insanitary conditions seems to exert but little influence in the development of the disease. The robust and the weak are attacked with equal frequence, but the latter succumb more readily. The disease is slightly more common among males. It is the exception rather than the rule for more than one case to develop in the same family. Many of the most fatal epidemics have occurred in rural districts, hence density of population would seem not to be a factor. The rapid spread of the disease over a wide area would suggest that the infection is disseminated by human traffic. As a rule only a small percentage of the total population is affected, after which the disease rapidly subsides. A history of direct exposure to other paralytic cases is somewhat uncommon, and the belief is gaining ground that the infection is chiefly spread through contact either with healthy carriers, convalescent cases, or those who have had a mild form of the affliction. Foodstuffs, water supplies, domestic animals, and other external agencies have never been proved to be factors in the dissemination of infantile paralysis.

VIRUS—In 1913 Flexner and Noguchi described a micro-organism which they believe to be the cause of poliomyelitis. The virus is present in the brain, spinal cord, and nasal, mouth and intestinal secretions of those afflicted, but it has not been found in the circulating blood. Secretions or extracts derived from these sources when injected into monkeys reproduce the disease. Young rabbits may also at times be infected, but other animals are not susceptible. It is believed that the virus leaves the body in the secretions, gains access to other persons, multiplies and penetrates to the brain and spinal cord, where it produces its characteristic lesions. The virus easily passes through the pores of a porcelain filter, and is especially resistant to temperature and other physical changes and to the action of certain disinfectants, while it is readily destroyed by others.

INCUBATION—The disease arises not infrequently about eight days after exposure, but this period is subject to marked variations.

SYMPTOMS—The onset is usually sudden but malaise, weakness and such digestive disturbances as nausea, constipation or diarrhoea may precede the initial fever. In the early stages the disease may present the picture of almost any acute condition and the true nature of the infection may not be recognized until after the development of paralysis. The temperature is fairly high, headache is complained of, prostration may be pronounced, restlessness and irritability are present, and an apathetic or drowsy state develops. Pain and tenderness, especially in the neck and spine, are fairly constant early symptoms, and delirium is not uncommon. Paralysis usually develops within two or three days from the date of onset, but it may be the first symptom noticed. Sometimes only weakness is manifested. Almost any part of the body may be involved, such as the leg, arm, face or trunk, or even a special group of muscles. Occasionally the centre controlling respiration is affected—a dangerous condition. The permanency of the paralysis is dependent upon the severity of the lesion in the nervous centres; if the child recovers, improvement in the paralysis is generally to be expected. Following the paralysis the muscles waste, and, unless prevented, contractures and deformities may ensue. Skilful treatment is especially needed in this stage of the disease.

Many types of the disease are recognized. In the abortive form paralysis does not develop and the patient recovers uninjured. These mild and often unrecognized cases are probably of great importance in the transmission of the disease. Other cases are characterized by meningeal symptoms, and still others by different forms of paralyses.

PROGNOSIS—As a rule the younger the child the better the prognosis. Fully 20 per cent. of all cases make a complete recovery. Improvement is possible even after paralysis has been present for years. The mortality in the New York epidemic was especially high, approximately 25 per cent.

CARE OF PATIENT—If poliomyelitis is present in a community, medical aid should be summoned whenever a child is ill. Isolate the patient, place a competent person in charge and reduce communication with the sick room to a minimum. Hospital care is preferable, not only for the child but in order to safeguard against the spread of the disease. The sick room should be screened. Nasal and mouth secretions should be received in cloths and burned. The clothing of the child, the bed linen, and the excretions should be disinfected by boiling or by the long-continued application of a strong disinfectant.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS (POLIOMYELITIS).

Most authorities recommend the continuance of quarantine from six to eight weeks, but the period that the child remains infectious varies.

Absolute rest is essential in the acute stages. The pain may be relieved by warm baths, but in this, as in all other measures, the parents should be guided solely by the physician. There is no specific treatment. Serum derived from patients who have recovered from the disease has been used, but its value is a matter of opinion. The same can be said of adrenaline when injected intraspinally. Lumbar puncture is usually beneficial and is also of value in establishing the diagnosis.

When the acute stage has passed and tenderness and pain have entirely disappeared, the patient should attempt to move about, care being taken to avoid fatigue. If necessary braces should be secured and properly fitted. Massage, if skilfully performed, prevents the muscles from wasting, but it has no effect upon the paralyzed nerve cells. Electricity may be helpful, but it should only be used by the skilled physician. Muscle training is a measure which is of greatest service, as it directly affects the nervous centres.

The prevention of deformity requires the greatest care. Permanent deformity of the limb may result if the child is neglected, and continued treatment until recovery ensues is to be recommended. Progress toward recovery is almost invariably slow but steady. For those cases which do not fully recover many ingenious operations have been devised, such as making the tendon of a non-paralyzed muscle do the work of one which is paralyzed, the transplanting of nerves and other procedures.

ANTHRAX.

(From the Monthly Review of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.)

At the annual meeting of the Delaware State Medical Society at Wilmington, October 11 and 12, 1915, Dr. John Palmer, Jr., reported that within the last eight years he had attended over 42 cases of anthrax affecting the cutaneous and cellular tissues.

Many cases of anthrax have been found among workers in hides in New York City and among the workers in skins in Gloversville, N. Y. The sporadic and exceptional occurrence of the infection, however, has obscured its importance as an occupational disease. The Bulletin of the New York State Industrial Commission for March, 1916, records the fact that since March, 1915, 11 cases of anthrax have been reported in the second inspection district and 11 in the metropolitan district. Of the number in the second district 7 were tannery employés, 3 were farmers, and 1 a schoolboy; of the 11 infected 4 died of anthrax. The metropolitan cases are to be made the subject of a special report, and subsequently a general report embracing all the cases in the State will be submitted.

In Massachusetts, where occupational anthrax is subject to compenstion under the Workmen's Compensation Law, 6 cases, 2 of which were fatal, were reported during the year ended June 30, 1914. Of these, 3 were in tanneries (1 fatal) and 3 in water transportation (1 fatal).

In the biennial report of the Texas State Board of Health from September 1, 1912, to August 31, 1914, there were reported "14 human cases" of anthrax infection, with 3 deaths. Among animals 11,746 cases were reported, with 9,328 deaths. The epidemic appeared in 26 counties, while in 1913 there were only 17 infected counties. The conclusion announced by the board is that the extensive epidemics of anthrax in west Texas "are largely due to the horsefly, which carries the infection from the sick to the well."

In Germany, in 1910, 287 cases of anthrax, with 36 deaths, were discovered in the Empire.

YEAR.	CASES REPORTED.		YEAR.	CASES REPORTED.		YEAR.	CASES REPORTED.
	Total.	Fatal.		Total.	Fatal.		Total.	Fatal.
1900	37	7	1906	67	21	1912	47	6
1901	39	10	1907	58	11	1913	70	7
1902	38	9	1908	47	7	1914	54	7

In France, returns for the years 1910 to 1912, indicate the total number of occupational-anthrax cases as follows: 1910, 54 (39 males, 15 females); 1911, 42 (35 males, 7 females); 1912, 38 (29 males, 9 females).

According to the records of the Bavarian Statistical Bureau, between 1890 and 1911, 314 Bavarian workmen contracted the disease; 94 of that number, or 30 per cent., died.

Most of the anthrax-infected material (hides, hair, bristles, wool, etc.) comes from countries that are far behind the times in respect to practical hygiene—Russia, Siberia, China and South America.

LEPER COLONIES.

No leper colonies are maintained by the United States Government. Institutions of this character have, however, been established under the control of the respective State, Territorial or Insular authorities in the following places:

San Francisco, Cal., Leper Home, administered by the Health Officer, San Francisco, Cal.

Louisiana State Leper Home, administered by the Board of Control for Leper Home, New Orleans, La.

Massachusetts Leper Station, Penikese Island, Mass., administered by the State Commissioner of Health, Boston, Mass.

County Hospital, leper ward, Los Angeles, Cal.

Hawaiian Leper Colony, Molokai, Hawaii, administered by the Secretary, Territorial Board of Health, Honolulu, H. T.

Philippine Leper Colony, Culion Island, P. I., administered by the Director of Health, Manila, P. I.

Porto Rico Leper Colony, Cabras Island, P. R., administered by the Insular Director of Sanitation, San Juan, P. R.

The United States Senate Public Health Committee recommended on March 25, 1916, the passage of a bill for a National Home for lepers. Various estimates placed the number of lepers at large in the United States as high as 500. The report of the committee, based on expert testimony, declared that leprosy is present in every State and that its victims are rapidly increasing. A bill appropriating $250,000 for a leper colony passed the House of Representatives on May 4, 1916, at the first session of the Sixty-fourth Congress. The bill, however, although favorably reported by committee, did not reach a vote in the Senate.

THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE.

THE United States Public Health Service is a branch of the Treasury Department. The head of the service is a commissioned medical officer with the title of Surgeon-General. The bureau of the service in Washington is under the immediate direction of the Surgeon-General and consists of seven divisions, namely, Scientific Research, Foreign and Insular Quarantine and Immigration, Domestic (Interstate) Quarantine, Sanitary Reports and Statistics, Personnel and Accounts, Marine Hospitals and Relief and Miscellaneous.

The commissioned corps of the service consists of medical officers of the following grades: Surgeon-General, Assistant Surgeons-General, Senior Surgeons, Surgeons, Passed Assistant Surgeons, and Assistant Surgeons. Appointments in the corps are made to the grade of Assistant Surgeon after successful examination. Qualifications for examinations are graduation from a reputable medical college, one year's hospital experience or two years' professional work after graduation, and testimonials from responsible persons as to professional and moral character. Applicants must be between the ages of 23 and 32 years. The service corps also comprises a large number of non-commissioned officers, consisting of scientific experts, Acting Assistant Surgeons, pharmacists, and other specially trained employés.

The Division of Scientific Research supervises field and laboratory investigations of public health matters. These investigations relate to such diseases as filariasis, hookworm disease, leprosy, infantile paralysis, malaria, pellagra, trachoma, tuberculosis, and typhoid fever, and sanitary problems of national importance, as industrial hygiene, school hygiene, rural sanitation, public health administration, coastal waters, and shellfish pollution, and water supplies and sewage. For this purpose field headquarters and laboratories are located at convenient places throughout the country. Purely technical studies are carried on at the Hygienic Laboratory in Washington, where are also conducted the tests of preparations necessary for the enforcement of the law regulating the sale of biological products in interstate traffic.

Under the direction of this division the Public Health Service co-operates with State and local Boards of Health in the eradication of epidemic diseases, such as plague, cholera, yellow fever, typhus fever, smallpox, and leprosy. Details of officers are also made, on request from State and municipal health authorities, to assist in the suppression of typhoid fever, infantile paralysis, cerebro-spinal meningitis, and other diseases.

The Foreign and Insular Quarantine and Immigration division of the bureau has under its immediate supervision the 55 quarantine stations in the United States, 26 stations in its insular possessions, and 89 stations for the medical inspection of immigrants. Eighteen officers are also stationed at American consulates abroad to assist in the administration of the quarantine laws and the medical inspection of immigrants. During the fiscal year 1916 there was an increase in the number of vessels inspected at quarantine stations, a total of 12,120 such inspections having been made, as compared with 10,397 in 1915. These vessels carried 1,477,000 passengers and crews, as compared with 612,026 in 1915. Fumigations to the number of 1,680 were made in 1915, as compared with 1,794 in 1916. The total immigrants inspected during the year 1916 were 481,270, as compared with 562,263 in 1915, and the number certified for rejection on account of mental and physical defects was 15,327, whereas in 1916 17,840 such certifications were made.

The service, through the Division of Domestic (Interstate) Quarantine, has supervision of measures for the prevention of the spread of infectious and contagious diseases in interstate traffic, and the administration of matters in regard to the interstate quarantine regulations regarding prevention of the use of common towels and common drinking cups on vehicles or vessels operating in interstate traffic, and the certification of water furnished by common carriers for passengers in interstate traffic. In this division is also maintained a stereopticon loan library for sanitarians, teachers, and others who desire to give instruction in sanitation and hygiene. The popularization of public health through the medium of Health News is also carried on under this division.

Under the supervision of the Division of Sanitary Reports and Statistics the service keeps currently informed of the prevalence of communicable diseases throughout the United States and of epidemic diseases throughout the world. It also compiles the laws and regulations relating to public health adopted by States and cities. These laws and regulations, together with information regarding prevalence of diseases are published with other sanitary information in the Public Health Reports, a bulletin of approximately 70 pages, issued weekly.

The Division of Personnel and Accounts of the service has charge of the changes in the personnel of the service and the movement of commissioned officers and other employés of the service in the field work. The personnel of the Public Health Service now consists of 187 commissioned medical officers, 255 Acting Assistant Surgeons (physicians appointed locally and not subject to change of station), 63 physicians employed locally for the medical relief of superintendents, keepers, and surfmen at Life-Saving Stations, 50 pharmacists, 1,420 attendants, and 156 other employés, a total of 2,131 persons. The fiscal matters of the service are also handled in this division.

The Marine Hospital and Relief Division of the service has charge of the 22 marine hospitals and 125 other relief stations of the service located throughout the country. During the fiscal year 1916, 68,398 patients were treated—17,464 in hospitals and 50,934 as dispensary or out-patients.

The Miscellaneous Division of the bureau has charge of the distribution of service literature, editions of which aggregated during the fiscal year 1916 over two million copies. In this division are also supervised various miscellaneous matters not coming within the jurisdiction of any of the other divisions of the bureau.

Among the notable achievements of the service in recent years in the field of public health work have been the eradication of bubonic plague in California, Porto Rico, and New Orleans, and the suppression of yellow fever in the South. During the year 1916 measures were instituted for the prevention of the interstate spread of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) from New York and other Northern points.

THE INSANE.

MORE MEN INSANE THAN WOMEN.

On January 1, 1910, there were 98,695 males in institutions for the insane, as compared with 89,096 females, and during the year 1910 34,116 males were admitted, as compared with 26,653 females.

There were 208.5 male inmates of insane asylums to every 100,000 males in the total population, while the corresponding ratio of female inmates to total female population was 199.6 to 100,000. The males admitted during the year 1910 represented a ratio of 72.1, the females a ratio of 59.7. This means that in a typical community of 200,000 persons equally divided as to sex 208 of the males would be found in insane asylums and 200 of the females, and in the course of one year 72 males would be admitted to the asylums, as compared with 60 females.

The number of males in asylums for the insane has increased faster than the number of females. In 1880 the two sexes had, in fact, a nearly equal representation in these institutions, as the total number of inmates included 20,635 males and 20,307 females; but by 1910 the number of male inmates had increased to 98,695 and the number of female inmates to 89,096, so that the males outnumbered the females by a ratio of 111 to 100. The excess of males among the current admissions in 1910 was still greater—128 males to 100 females.

ONE REASON WHY.

Of peculiar interest in this connection is the table which distinguishes the cases diagnosed as alcoholic psychosis or general paralysis—mental diseases which, generally speaking, are the aftermath of vice and dissipation. Of the 34,116 males admitted to hospitals for the insane in 1910, 8,356, or about 25 per cent. of the total number, were reported as suffering from one or the other of these diseases, while the number of females having these diseases was only 1,851, representing about 7 per cent. of the 26,653 females admitted. If from the total number of admissions the cases of alcoholic psychosis and general paralysis are deducted, the disparity between the sexes practically disappears. There are left of the total admissions 25,760 males as compared with 24,802 females, a slight excess of males, but not so great as naturally would result from the fact that there are more males than females in the general population.

The table following shows the number of admissions to hospitals for the insane in 1910:

	Males.	Females.
Total number admitted.....	34,116	26,653
Having general paralysis.....	2,989	895
Having alcoholic psychosis....	5,220	902
Having both diseases.....	147	54

COMPARISON BY AGE PERIODS.

The statistics give the number of insane of each sex admitted to hospitals in each age period per 100,000 persons of the same age and sex in the total population. The ratio of admissions increases with advancing years, reaching its maximum in extreme old age, when senile dementia marks the weakening of the mental faculties.

This does not mean that a majority of the admissions to institutions for the insane are old people. On the contrary, only about 10 per cent. of the insane admitted to hospitals were over 65 years of age, while about 57 per cent. were between 25 and 50 years of age; but in proportion to the total number of people in the same period of life the number of admissions is larger in old age than in middle life, and larger in middle life than in youth. In fact, very few young people are included in the admissions, and practically no children.

Throughout the entire life period the ratio of admissions for males is larger than that for the other sex. Upon eliminating the cases of alcoholic psychosis and general paralysis, the ratio for males still remains higher than that for females up to the age of 30 and above the age of 60, but is lower in the intervening years. This indicates, in other words, that when the cases of general paralysis and alcoholic psychosis are eliminated there are more cases of other forms of insanity among women than among men in the period of life from 30 to 60 years of age, but fewer in early life and in old age.

An increase of insanity is probably in some degree a natural consequence of the rapid growth of cities in the United States. Between 1880 and 1910 the proportion of the population of the United States living in urban communities increased about 190 per cent., while the rural population increased only about 40 per cent. As a result, 46 per cent. of the total population of the United States was urban in 1910, as compared with 30 per cent. in 1880. The percentage living in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants nearly doubled in the same interval, being 12.4 per cent. in 1880 and 22.1 per cent. in 1910.

THE FEEBLE-MINDED.

The number of feeble-minded in institutions on January 1, 1910, was 20,731; on January 1, 1905, the number was 15,318. The total number of feeble-minded in the United States has been estimated at not less than 150,000. Of the feeble-minded in institutions 47.2 per cent. were under twenty years of age and 76.4 per cent. were under thirty years of age

FATHER'S DAY.

The State of Delaware in 1913 granted a charter to Charlotte K. Kirkbride and B. Carrie Sternberg and others for the celebration under the laws of that State of "Father's Day" on the first Sunday in June of each year. In accordance with the request of these incorporators, Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, on October 2, introduced a bill in Congress providing that: "The first Sunday in June in each and every year hereafter be designated as Father's Day, upon which, as an expression of sentiment corresponding to that of Mother's Day, the rose, irrespective of color, shall be regarded as the emblem."

MOTHER'S DAY.

SECOND SUNDAY IN MAY.

Its object—An all-nations' and simultaneous observance for the well-being and honor of the home.

How observed—Through some distinct act of kindness, visit, letter, gift or tribute, show remembrance of the Mother and Father to whom grateful affection is due. Mother's Day is equally a Father's Day, and is designed to deepen and perpetuate all family ties. The day is so-called because in most countries no national celebration is in special honor of the home and noble motherhood.

Its slogan—In honor of "The Best Mother Who Ever Lived" the mother of your heart. The badge is a white carnation. Time of observance is the second Sunday in May by churches of all creeds, etc. Schools celebrate on Friday, and business and other organizations on Saturday preceding second Sunday in May.

On May 10, 1913, a resolution passed the United States House of Representatives and the Senate commending Mother's Day for observance by the House and Senate, the President of the United States and his Cabinet and other heads of Government departments. In 1913 the Legislature of Nebraska made Mother's Day a State flag day in honor of the patriotism of Nebraska's true homes and mothers.

President Woodrow Wilson issued the first National Mother's Day proclamation on Saturday, May 9, 1914, asking that Sunday, May 10 (second Sunday in May, 1914), be observed as Mother's Day in accordance with the joint resolution of the House of Representatives. This official recognition of Congress of the Mother's Day movement was the culmination of years of work to permanently establish a day for sons and daughters of all lands to honor their homes. The United States is the first nation of the world to give such a national, patriotic honor and tribute to its homes as "the fountain head of the State," and to its sons and daughters "for their work for the home, moral uplift and religion," for the good of the Government and humanity.

For several years it has been the custom of the Governor of almost every State in the Union to issue a Mother's Day proclamation, asking citizens, churches, homes, and organizations to enter into the spirit of the day. Former Governor Colquitt of Texas made it a practice to pardon a number of prisoners on Mother's Day.

Mother's Day International Association—This association was organized to promote and protect the celebration of Mother's Day and its work in the United States and foreign countries. Any son or daughter of any country is eligible to membership in the Mother's Day Association. Its president is Miss Anna Jarvis, the founder of the movement.

In the United States the association has among its honorary national officers President Wilson and ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, and Governors, or other prominent citizens of the various States. Philadelphia, Pa. Headquarters, 2031 N. 12th Street.

VITALITY OF LAST CHILDREN.

The old belief, still common among the laity, that first-born children are endowed by nature with greater vitality and longevity than last-born, has induced Dr. Alfred Ploetz of Munich, Germany, to make an exhaustive study to ascertain if this were true. He compiled the returns from a very large number of families of the nobility, and his figures show, generally speaking, that the vitality of first to ninth-born children varied very little, but that from the tenth to the nineteenth-born the mortality was markedly greater. Dr. Ploetz's figures, published in the "Archiv für Rassen und Gesellschafts-Biolige," appeared in a recent issue of the Journal of Heredity of the American Genetic Association.

In the following table Dr. Ploetz has made groupings of first-born children, second-born, and so on, and it was his object to find out how many of these died before the fifth year. Order of birth, number of children, and per cent. died, as follows:

First-born	614	26.4	Fifth-born	311	26.0	Tenth to nineteenth-born	302	34.4
Second-born	539	24.9	Sixth-born	249	26.1
Third-born	455	26.4	Seventh to ninth-born	463	26.3		3.319	26.7

NATIONAL BOARD OF MEDICAL EXAMINERS.

Chairman—W. C. Braisted, M. D. Treasurer—Louis A. LaGarde, M. D. Secretary—J. S. Rodman, M. D., 2106 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Preamble—The need of a standard medical examining body for the whole United States and its Territories (tributary thereto) has occasioned the organization of The National Board of Medical Examiners. It is a voluntary board, the members of which are selected from the Medical Corps of the Army, the Navy, and the Public Health Service, the Federation of State Examining Boards, and other representative organizations, and the medical profession of the United States.

The aim of this board is to establish a standard of examination and certification of graduates in medicine, through which by the co-operation of the individual boards of Medical Examiners, the recipients of the certificates of the National Board of Medical Examiners may be recognized for licensure to practice medicine.

The policy of the board is to conduct its examinations on a broad scientific basis of such a high yet practicable standard that the holders of its certificates will receive universal recognition.

The independent action by the board is furthered by the financial and moral support of the Carnegie Foundation.

REVIEW OF LEGISLATION OF 1916.

(FROM REPORT PRESENTED AT THE MEETING OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION, AT CHICAGO, ILL., AUGUST 30, 31, AND SEPTEMBER 1, 1916.)

In 1916, an off-legislative year, regular sessions have been held in Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Virginia. Special sessions for the consideration of particular emergency questions have been held in California, Illinois, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Tennessee. At the regular sessions alone there were introduced over 15,000 bills.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

Mississippi inserted in the State Constitution amendments adopted by the people in November, 1914, as follows: Increasing (154) the number of Supreme Court Judges to six; requiring (156) them to be elected by the people; fixing (157) their term at eight years; and providing (152) that the Supreme Court may sit in two divisions. Carrying out the provisions of one of these amendments, another act (161) provides for the term of Judges of the Supreme Court and the manner of nominating and electing them.

Massachusetts (174) extends the civil and criminal jurisdiction of district Police or Municipal Courts so that their process runs throughout the State, and makes them courts of superior and general jurisdiction; and (Res. 36) provides for the appointment of a commission of three to investigate the advisability of abolishing the office of trial justice and bringing within the jurisdiction of existing District or Municipal Courts towns now outside their jurisdiction.

Virginia (300) authorizes court clerks to appoint as deputies women over 21. New Jersey (248) permits the Sheriff to appoint attendants for the several county courts to take the place of constables, and places them in the classified civil service.

New York (171) authorizes the Secretary of State to grant the right to publish reports prepared by official reporters in annotated editions of law reports heretofore issued. Virginia (201) authorizes Judges of County or City Courts to appoint committees to report on the need of an improved system of indexing court records, and, if such report is favorable, to authorize the committee to contract therefor.

Maryland (326) provides for the creation of Juvenile Courts when all Judges in a circuit deem it necessary. The court is to have jurisdiction over dependent, neglected and delinquent male children under 20 and females under 18. New Jersey (212) provides that Juvenile Court records shall be kept in a separate book and shall not be admissible in evidence in any proceeding except during the period of the defendant's probation or within two years after his discharge from an institution to which he was committed by such court. After such period the clerk is required to destroy such records unless within that time the defendant has been convicted of an offence. Massachusetts (243) provides that no juvenile cases on appeal may be held in conjunction with other business of the court in rooms used for criminal trials, and the court is given power to exclude the general public from these trials.

ATTORNEYS—Congress (No. 57) makes it unlawful for any person practising before any Government department or office to use the name of Congressmen or Government officers "in advertising the said business."

New York (254) provides that corporations forbidden to practise law may furnish to persons lawfully engaged in the practice of law information or clerical services in connection with their professional work; but the lawyer is directly responsible to his client. Corporations may not render services which cannot be lawfully rendered by persons not admitted to practice, nor may they directly or indirectly solicit professional employment for a lawyer. Massachusetts (292) forbids corporations to practise law, or to advertise or draw agreements or legal documents not relating to their lawful business, or to draw wills. Banks and trust companies may furnish information with respect to investments and taxation. The act does not apply to public service corporations, those engaged in conducting mercantile or adjustment bureaus, guaranteeing of titles to real property, insuring against liability for damages by injury, or assisting attorneys to organize corporations, to charitable corporations, to those organized in the State for the purpose of assisting persons without means in pursuit of civil remedies, to newspapers answering inquiries through their columns, or to corporations providing legal advice to their employees. Maryland (695) also prohibits corporations practising law.

Mississippi (107) establishes a State Board of Law Examiners and regulates admission to the bar, and Maryland (509) requires applicants for admission to have a school certificate.

Virginia (204) provides for a public defender in cities of over 50,000, appointed for two years and removable by the Judge appointing him, and (373) for payment of counsel designated to defend poor persons charged with serious crimes. See New Jersey (54) as to State legal aid to workmen's compensation claimants.

JURIES—New Jersey (184) provides that for the selection of a struck jury the Jury Commissioners shall furnish the courts with a list of persons liable to jury duty, containing in first class counties 400 and in other counties 160 names. An interesting illustration of administrative detail finding its way into a formal statute is furnished by the New York amendment to the law relating to fining delinquent jurors in New York County. This act (398) requires the Commissioner of Jurors to transmit to the Corporation Counsel a record in duplicate of fines imposed and the latter to enter on such duplicate the final disposition of the proceedings to enforce the fine and then to return it to the Commissioner of Jurors.

Mississippi (158) inserts in the Constitution an amendment adopted by the people in November, 1914, permitting the Legislature to provide that in all civil cases in Circuit or Chancery Courts nine or more jurors may agree on and return a verdict; and (162) under this authority enacts such a provision with the additional requirement that a trial judge when requested shall so instruct the jury.

NEW REMEDIES—Louisiana (No. 98) creates a mechanics' lien on roadbed, rights of way and franchises of railroads; (No. 232) requires owners, in cases of contracts of $1,000 or over for drilling oil, gas or water wells, to file a contract and a bond from the contractor to secure mechanics and material men, and if the bond is not sufficient, a lien created on the property may be foreclosed; (No. 262) assures to mechanics' lien claimants on building or construction work the right to sue individually, or to start a joint action (concursus), regardless of the acceptance of the work by the owner, on the contractor's bond; and (No. 229) regulates the enforcement of the lien on the property. New York (507) extends the mechanics' lien law, provides in detail for the priority of liens for materials furnished, labor performed or money advanced for improvements; and in particular provides, under various circumstances of mortgage or assignment by owners or contractors, for the subordination to a subsequent mortgage of all liens if the holders of 75 per cent. of the liens agree. South Carolina (No. 375) grants a lien if the improvements were authorized by the owner, and otherwise amends the law.

Louisiana (No. 82) gives garages and repair shops for automobiles or "other machinery" a lien for repairs, except against bona fide purchasers without notice; (No. 133) gives to judgments of the United States Court in Louisiana the same lien against property of the debtor as judgments of the State courts.

Mississippi (134) authorizes the assignee of a chose in action to sue in his name if the assignment be in writing.

Virginia (137) provides that where real or personal property is held in trust to secure payment of a debt, and no date of maturity is fixed or authority given to sell the security, the Court, on application of the lien creditors, may decree a sale and reinvestment of the proceeds.

Louisiana (No. 263) provides that where property destroyed by fire is subject to a vendor's lien the holder of such lien may enforce payment of the unpaid purchase price against any funds due the owner of the property under a policy of insurance covering it.

LIMITATION OF ACTION—Virginia (290) provides that computation of time shall exclude the first, and include the last day of a stated period, and extends the provision, now limited to time stated in statutes, to contracts. Virginia (442) regulates the suspension of the statute of limitations in general creditor suits. In New York an action against a person non-resident when the action accrued cannot be brought after the expiration of the time specified in the laws of his residence unless that time be less than that allowed by New York law, in which case the latter applies (536).

Virginia (419) limits action on ground rents to 10 years from date the rent became due.

CRIMES AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE—Congress (No. 81), Sec. 10, evidently intended to amend the criminal code as to defacement of mail boxes, actually by reason of careless drafting provides that the criminal code of the United States shall be amended "to read as follows," and then inserts a 10-line provision as to the mail boxes. Strictly interpreted, this provision probably repeals the entire criminal code.

Virginia (418) provides that where an indictment has been lost the State's attorney may file a copy and trial may proceed thereon.

Mississippi (103) expressly provides that an indictment for violation of its prohibitions of the liquor traffic need not negative the exceptions in the act.

Kentucky (49) defines and punishes pandering, and makes the woman a competent witness notwithstanding her marriage to the accused, unless she has lived with him for three years after marriage.

The movement to abolish capital punishment is represented by Maryland (214) providing that the jury may add to first degree murder verdicts the words "without capital punishment," in which case the court shall impose a life sentence and shall not impose a death penalty; and New Jersey (270) providing that the jury at the time of rendering the verdict may recommend imprisonment at hard labor for life, in which case no greater punishment shall be imposed. Virginia (198) provides that if a person sentenced to death or imprisonment in the penitentiary asks for time to apply for a writ of error the Court shall postpone execution of the sentence for a reasonable time, and also that after conviction, sentence or suspension of the execution of the sentence the Court or Judge may admit the prisoner to bail. Mississippi (217) provides for release on bail pending an appeal in certain felonies. Kentucky (39) provides that juries shall fix penalties in all criminal cases.

New Jersey passed two bills in order to expedite the trial of petty criminal cases and to save the finances of cities and towns affected. One (225) authorizes Justices of the Peace in fourth class cities to take complaints against persons guilty of criminal offences and issue warrants, and if bailable to admit to bail. The other (73) provides that in cities of the second class, a Recorder's Court, Police Court or Municipal Court shall have jurisdiction over cases of assault, larceny, embezzlement or similar offences where the value of the property is less than $20, and of other criminal offences where the penalty does not exceed a fine of $100 or imprisonment for six months, provided that the accused waives, in writing, indictment and trial by jury.

The New York Charter (95) was amended to authorize the Police Commissioner to offer a reward for the detection and conviction of any person guilty of a felony. The former law simply provided for a reward in cases of larceny, arson or receiving stolen goods.

Louisiana (No. 93) provides that in all criminal cases tried before a Judge without a jury, counsel shall have the same right to submit propositions of law and to request charges to the jury, and that the Judge shall pass upon such propositions before entering judgment, and counsel may reserve bills of exception and have the evidence annexed thereto; and also (No. 157) provides that conversations between husband and wife shall be privileged, and neither husband nor wife shall be compelled to be a witness on the trial of a criminal proceeding against the other; and on the trial of a criminal proceeding the defendant at his own request, and not otherwise, shall be a competent witness, and his neglect or refusal to testify shall not create any presumption against him.

CIVIL PROCEDURE—To save expense in cases where the summons is sufficient to induce the debtor to pay, New Jersey (253) provides that in contract actions in District Courts a plaintiff who fails to file with the clerk a copy of his account or state of demand shall be non-suited.

Virginia (287) provides that on motion in actions for personal injuries contributory negligence must be set forth in a bill of particulars, but the defendant is not precluded from relying on the contributory negligence disclosed by the plaintiff's testimony. Maryland (206) provides for judgment by default, unless the affidavit of defence states a legal defence, and (14) that failure of administrators or executors to plead plene administravit or insufficiency of assets shall not render them personally responsible.

The report of the Massachusetts Commission on Uniform Methods of Procedure for taking land for public purposes was referred (Res. 91) to the Attorney-General for further investigation and report.

New York (440) authorizes the Supreme Court to appoint a guardian ad litem or special guardian for infants or incompetent persons at any stage of an action when it appears necessary to protect the interest of such persons. New York (518) also amends civil code by providing that judgment in dower, partition or mortgage foreclosure shall bind persons who acquire inchoate dower in the real property involved after filing a notice of pendency of action, and persons born between the filing of such notice and the entry of judgment who would have been bound by the judgment if born after such entry. Provision is made for allowing such persons to intervene and giving the Court discretion as to answers by intervening parties, appointment of guardians, etc.

Louisiana (No. 112) regulates the form and effect of bonds in judicial proceedings, and provides for the correction of errors or omissions in such bonds and for supplementing them; and no appeal is to be dismissed nor process set aside on account of such error or omission or on account of the insufficiency of sureties until the party furnishing the bond has failed to supplement it as provided in the act.

New Jersey (198) provides that in personal actions against foreign corporations the summons may be served on any officer, director, ticket or freight agent, personally, in the county in which venue is laid, and against domestic corporations summons may be served personally on any officer or agent in charge of the principal office or any ticket or freight agent in the county in which venue is laid. Maryland (609) permits suits to be brought against Adams Express Company or any incorporated stock company in the name in which they carry on business where the principal office is located, where the business is transacted, or, in a local action, where the subject matter lies.

Virginia (425) makes the jurisdiction of equity to enforce collection of taxes concurrent with that at law, and declares that it shall not be necessary to prove equitable grounds of jurisdiction. It also gives to the courts in such cases the powers of a Commissioner of Revenue to order the taxpayer to pay all taxes due upon a correct assessment of his property. (444) An Employers' Liability act for intrastate steam railroads, modelled on the Federal Employers' Liability act for interstate carriers, provides that the pleading in an action to recover for an employee's injury or death may embrace a cause of action accruing within the Federal act without being demurrable therefor and without the plaintiff being required to elect under which act he claims. (449) Provides that where in a suit against a general or special partnership or unincorporated association it appears that any member has not been made a party defendant, or has not been served or is not liable to the particular suit, the Court may give judgment against the members served and liable in the same manner as if they were the only defendants, and the judgment may be entered against and bind the partnership or association assets if the plaintiff or his attorney makes affidavit of due diligence in attempting to make parties and to serve all the members, and if at least two members were served.

TRIALS—Louisiana (No. 157) provides that a competent witness in any civil or criminal proceeding shall be a person of "proper understanding," and also that conversations between husband and wife shall be privileged, and neither husband nor wife shall be compelled to be a witness on the trial of a criminal proceeding against the other; and, on the trial of a criminal proceeding, the defendant, at his own request and not otherwise, shall be a competent witness, and his neglect or refusal to testify shall not create any presumption against him. Louisiana (211) provides that in a proceeding for permission to marry again after 10 years' absence of a husband or wife, the petitioning spouse is a competent witness. Mississippi (133) in actions for non-delivery or failure to deliver promptly makes the copy of a telegram transcribed by the company's agent at destination conclusive evidence of the filing of the original in the receiving office. New Jersey (205) provides for admission of transcripts of the entry or abstract of mortgages.

Virginia (406) provides that in any trial at common law or proceeding in which the procedure is that which obtains at common law any party may "except to any action, ruling, order or judgment of the Court." Bills of exception are abolished, and in the place thereof it is sufficient for the trial Judge to certify the ruling and that any party excepted thereto. (416) also relates to bills of exceptions.

Louisiana (No. 17) requires actions ex delicto to be placed on the preference docket for trial.

APPEALS—California (Res. 9) requests the Judges of the State courts and the State and local Bar Associations to submit recommendations to avoid dilatory practices and delays on appeal.

New Jersey (62) provides that in cases submitted without a jury, error by the court in giving final judgment is not subject to modification or reversal unless the grounds of objection have been specifically submitted.

New York (230) takes away the right of the attorney for a defendant convicted of a crime punishable by death to have the stenographic minutes unless he files notice of appeal. Mississippi (217) provides for release on bail only in the discretion of the court on appeal after conviction in certain felonies, and for such release as matter of right in other felonies, and also (222) limits to one year the time in which appeals may be taken to the Supreme Court.

JUDGES' PENSIONS—Virginia (193) restricts to those Judges who retire during the years 1915 to 1919, inclusive, the operation of an existing provision that after 12 consecutive years of service, and attaining 70 years, the Judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals who retire shall receive three-fifths of their salary for the balance of their lives. New York (262) extends to the Third and Fourth Judicial Departments the existing law heretofore confined to the First and Second Departments authorizing the Appellate Division to appoint as referees former Judges who have served for 14 years or who have served for 25 years in a court of record in which 14 were served in the Supreme Court.

PRISONS AND PUNISHMENT FOR CRIME.

Congress (No. 60) provides that "judgment of conviction" against children in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia shall not be denominated a "conviction," nor the defendant a "criminal," and that such conviction shall not disqualify the child for jury duty or public office. New York (394) provides that minors in the penitentiary shall be kept apart from adults.

Virginia (297) authorizes the trial Judge to substitute road work for jail sentence in misdemeanor cases, and (57) provides for a suspended sentence during good behavior for a first offender in case of larceny and forgery.

Mississippi (8, 95) reduces to life sentence the penalty for rape and (218) prohibits public hangings. Virginia (29) repeals the requirement of life sentences for penitentiary convicts who have been twice before sentenced to the penitentiary, and allows the Judge to add such term as he deems proper to the sentence which would be imposed on such convict if he had not previously been in the penitentiary. It also (30) substitutes for a required five years' addition to penitentiary sentences where the convict has been once before sentenced to the penitentiary, provision authorizing the Judge to impose such additional term not exceeding five years as he deems proper.

Kentucky (39) repeals the law imposing double time for second conviction of a felony and life sentence for a third conviction.

Virginia (282) reduces jail or penitentiary sentences in default of payment of fines by the time actually spent in jail awaiting trial or sentence. Maryland (646) and Massachusetts (3) reduce the fine in such cases by $1 and 50 cents respectively for each day spent in jail.

Virginia (324) allows for good conduct 10 days instead of four for each month of faithful observance of prison rules, and adds a provision that for violation of rules "punishable by stripes" or for attempt to escape a convict shall forfeit all earned allowances. New York (358) provides that persons in State prison under definite or indefinite sentence may earn by faithful performance of duty a commutation of sentence or the right to be considered for parole. It provides a form of payment for work done by prisoners. Kentucky (39) allows 10 days per month for good conduct to penitentiary convicts.

Kentucky (36) provides for employment of prisoners on roads, prison farms, or within prisons, and for payment to him or his family of not exceeding 15 cents per day of his earnings.

New York (287) amends in minor details the Parole Commission act for first class cities. Among other things the amendment prohibits commitment to a penitentiary for failure to pay fines or give security, and provides that no person convicted of enumerated offences for which increased punishment is provided for third offenders shall be sentenced until finger-print records of the Magistrates' Courts have been searched and the results certified to the court. Kentucky (38) makes the Parole law applicable to all penal institutions of the State, and authorizes a prisoner who has served one-half his sentence to apply for parole. Formerly the application for parole could be made only after serving the minimum time specified in the sentence. The amendment authorizes the Parole Board to fix a period preceding the application, during which the prisoner must prove good conduct. Formerly the statute fixed this period at nine consecutive months preceding application. Louisiana (No. 123) provides that whenever a person is sentenced to the State penitentiary otherwise than for life, "or where the maximum penalty does not exceed one year, or persons convicted of" specified crimes, an indeterminate sentence shall be imposed. The minimum sentence shall not be less than that fixed by the statute under which the conviction was had, and the maximum not more than the maximum fixed by such statute "provided that where no maximum term is fixed in such statutes said minimum term shall be taken and intended as being one year." Louisiana (No. 124) also requires the Board of Parole, six months after the act goes into effect, to investigate the conduct of prisoners other than "lifers" sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor or persons convicted of specified crimes (the same as those mentioned in No. 123), and to parole such of said prisoners as the board thinks merit such discharge; provided such prisoners have served two years of their sentence at the time of parole. A Board of Parole, to be appointed by the Governor for the parole of prisoners sentenced to indeterminate sentences, is also created (125). Prisoners paroled are to remain on parole until the expiration of the maximum term of imprisonment fixed in their sentences; and if a parole prisoner violate his parole he shall be remanded to penitentiary to serve the balance of his term, subject only to commutation for good behavior. Parole of a life termer must be approved by the Board of Pardons, and cannot be granted until the convict has served "one-third of the actual time he would have served if classed as eligible for reduction of sentence under the laws of the State." Mississippi (106) creates a Board of Pardons to advise the Governor in granting or refusing applications for pardon.

Massachusetts (241) abolishes the Board of Prison Commissioners and Boards of Parole, and establishes a Bureau of Prisons under a director, with an advisory board of three men and two women and a Board of Parole of three members. This bureau is given power to investigate the management and condition of all penal institutions. Powers of the old Board of Prison Commissioners are vested in the new bureau, and the powers of the old Board of Parole are vested in the new board. Maryland (556) creates a State Prison Control Board; Louisiana (No. 137) substitutes a general manager of the State penitentiary for the Board of Control; and Kentucky (47) reorganizes the Board of Prison Commissioners.

Virginia (45) requires Sheriffs and jailers to keep records of their prisoners and to report monthly to the State Board of Charities and Corrections the records of prisoners received during the preceding month, stating whether the offence was a violation of State law or city ordinance, and describing the offence if imprisonment is for nonpayment of fine. Such record shall give other required details, including color, age, physical condition, sentence, and whether confirmed drunkard or drug habitue. If such report is not furnished the Secretary of the State board may prepare it, and, on certifying its cost, that sum is to be deducted from any funds due the defaulting Sheriff or jailer.

New York (236 and 242) reorganizes penal and charitable institutions in Westchester County under the management of a Commissioner of Charities and Correction. While the county jail is left under the Sheriff, the law requires all courts and magistrates in the county authorized to sentence to county jail or penitentiary to sentence such persons to the county penitentiary and workhouse, which is under the new commissioner.

Massachusetts (76) authorizes the removal from State prison to prison camps of prisoners other than "lifers" who have shown by "conduct and disposition that they would be amenable to less rigorous discipline," and (183) drops the provision limiting to 100 the number of inmates to be accommodated at the prison camp. By (187) the law punishing escapes from prison camps is extended to attempts to escape, and the punishment therefor is made imprisonment for one to five years in the institution to which he was originally sentenced.

Kentucky (70) makes it a felony to interrupt the work of convicts employed outside their prison walls or to attempt to give any convict intoxicants or narcotics or any kind of weapon.

Mississippi (126) creates a commission to buy additional land for State penitentiary. New York (594) reorganizes a Commission on New Prisons and provides for the selection of a new prison site and the construction of a farm and industrial prison to cost $1,250,000. The commission is also required to adopt plans for the demolition of the present cell house and block at Sing Sing and the substitution of new buildings. Prison labor is to be used in the work so far as practicable.

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF STATE GOVERNMENTS.

Recognition of the demand for business methods in the conduct of government is found in acts establishing budget systems of appropriation, central purchasing agencies, and economy and efficiency commissions.

New Jersey (15), establishing a budget system, requires the Governor to make his recommended appropriations on the basis of estimates submitted by the departments; all appropriations are required to appear in the general appropriation bill. Carefully guarded provision is made for the transfer of items to relieve possible inflexibility of segregated appropriations. New York (130), providing a budget system, requires the Governor to submit recommended appropriations and authorizes him to submit estimates of revenue. The principal responsibility for preparing budget data is placed on the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Legislature. Not later than March 15 annually these committees are required to submit a budget of appropriations, detailed estimates of revenues, and proposed State taxes. The most important changes in present procedure are those requiring all appropriations to be in a single bill, providing that the appropriation bill shall be a special order for five full legislative days in Committee of the Whole, authorizing the appearance of heads of departments to be heard and answer inquiries, making the bill when advanced to third reading a special order for three full legislative days, and confining amendments on third reading to reduction or elimination of items except by unanimous consent. Maryland (159) authorizes the Governor to submit two budgets to the Legislature.

Louisiana (No. 140) creates a Board of State Affairs which is required to compile and review departmental estimates and submit a budget prior to the meeting of the Legislature; to investigate the efficiency of the State administrative agencies, and to take over the duties of existing offices dealing with assessments of State taxes and supervision of local taxation.

New Jersey (68) creates a central purchasing agency, controlled by a commission consisting of the Governor, Treasurer and Comptroller, to purchase all supplies for State departments and offices except for construction work. A purchasing agent, at $5,000 a year, appointed by the commission, with an advisory board composed of representatives from each department, is charged with the fixing of standards and prices and the administration of the detail provisions governing purchases.

New York (49) aims at economy through cooperation of State departments by authorizing a department having apparatus or expert service necessary to perform special work to furnish the same to other departments, on request, and in other ways suggests and facilitates co-operation. Maryland (285) with similar purpose provides for the use of trained specialists in educational institutions by making professors of designated subjects in the State college, the State entomologist, the State pathologist and the State horticulturist respectively.

Massachusetts (296) abolishes its Economy and Efficiency Commission and substitutes therefor a Supervisor of Administration. Virginia (211) creates an unpaid Economy and Efficiency Commission to investigate the possibility of more efficient and economical organization and administration of the State and local governments, and (199) authorizes a committee to study methods and expense of publishing State and local documents.

Massachusetts (2) increases central control over expenses by prohibiting increases in salary of employees without approval of the Governor and Council.

Reorganization in the interest of centralization and economy is found in Massachusetts (288) abolishing port and harbor offices and substituting a single Commission on Waterways and Public Lands, and in Maryland (682) vesting in a new Conservation Commission the powers and duties of several abolished offices.

An interesting example of contingent legislation and of State retirement from administrative fields fully occupied by the Federal Government is found in New York (342), which provides that on the filing of a certificate by designated officers that they have, in pursuance of the authority delegated by the act, transferred the State quarantine establishment to the United States, the office of Health Officer of the Port of New York shall be abolished.

Virginia (400) creates a State Art Commission, and Maryland (705) creates a State Charities Board.

Kentucky (19) provides for a Fire Marshal in the Insurance Department to enforce the laws relating to fires and generally to investigate, regulate and co-operate with owners in preventing fires.

Virginia (451) provides for removal by the courts of any State or municipal officer, except those whose removal is provided for by the Constitution, who shall knowingly or wilfully misconduct himself in office or neglect to perform any duty or be intoxicated in public places or engage in gambling or violating any penal statute involving moral turpitude. Such cases are preferred and shall be tried forthwith. Provision is made for appeal on a writ of error from a decree of removal.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Virginia (68) proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to submit to cities a choice of several forms of government. Meanwhile, to make this latter provision effective, provision is made (65 and 76) for the method of procedure for drafting and submitting to the Legislature a desired special form of government. New York (156) provides that petitions for change of government under the Optional City Government law may be presented after June 30, 1917, thereby practically postponing the effect of the act until that time.

Oklahoma (p. 120), by adopted constitutional amendment, authorizes counties to abolish or resume township form of government. Supervisors of counties adjoining large cities are by Virginia (102) given the same powers as City Councils, except that their regulations are to be subject to the approval of the Circuit Court.

Virginia (103) recognizes the need of experts in city government and proposes to amend the Constitution so that persons having technical skill may be appointed to office although neither residents nor voters, and (281) authorizes the appointment of police-women in certain cities.

Massachusetts (223) provides for central purchasing departments in cities (except Boston) which adopt it on referendum.

New Jersey (J. R. 7) continues its Commission on Municipal Financing. Important bills recommended by this commission were passed by the Legislature, but vetoed by the Governor. One which became law (252) contains detailed provisions for the issuance of bonds by counties and municipalities.

The New York Charter as amended (615) prohibits the use of the proceeds of long-term bonds for non-revenue-producing improvements.

One of the last strongholds of the fee system of compensating public officers is removed by New York (525), which requires the Sheriff of New York County, after January 1, 1918, to pay over the one-half of his fees (said to amount to $50,000 annually), which he now retains.

City planning is provided for in Massachusetts (190), which authorizes cities to establish Boards of Survey to make and alter plans for streets, and by New Jersey (175), which requires Municipal Plan and Art Commissions to prepare a city plan when they deem its preparation desirable. New York (112) authorizes excess condemnation in the City of New York to the extent necessary to form suitable building sites abutting on street and other improvements.

New Jersey (239) authorizes cities to establish "white ways" by illumination of main thoroughfares at the expense of abutting property. New York (108) authorizes villages to establish publicity funds for advertising their advantages, and New Jersey (25 and 279) gives similar authority to counties and cities.

Louisiana (No. 28) proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing municipalities and counties by a majority vote in number and value of property-owning taxpayers to levy a special tax, not exceeding five mills for not exceeding ten years, in aid of public improvements, railway enterprises and river transportation lines.

New Jersey authorizes (162) municipal construction, ownership and operation or lease of docks, warehouses and shipping facilities; and (120) construction and operation or lease of a municipal railroad through, over or upon city streets or private property, with incidental docks, warehouses and terminals.

Kentucky (54) authorizes cities having light or water plants to serve other cities and towns in the State.

New Jersey (70 and 71) divides the State into two water districts and establishes a Water Supply Commission for each, with power to find new sources of municipal water supply, to acquire water rights, construct water systems, and make arrangement for joint supplies to different municipalities.

Rhode Island (1,411) provides for a Retirement Board to retire employees of the City of Providence, and Maryland (498) provides pensions for disabled employees of Baltimore. Massachusetts (75) makes the pledge or transfer of a right to a State or municipal pension or the holding of such pension as collateral a misdemeanor. New York (201) permits a State or municipal pensioner to hold certain offices without forfeiting his pension, it being suspended during his holding of such office.

Virginia (451) provides for removal of officers by the courts.

CIVIL SERVICE.

New York (438) authorizes Civil War veterans employed continuously for 10 years in the State service, who have reached 70, to apply for retirement at half pay not exceeding $1,000. If such veterans be manual laborers they shall be retired when incapacitated.

New Jersey (129) requires the State Commission to provide for the keeeping of efficiency records for the State and municipal competitive service. Municipalities are required to keep efficiency records subject to the supervision of the State Commission, these records to be a basis of promotion, and, in case of reduction of force, the persons shown by the records to be least efficient are to be dropped first; and (122) provides for demotion to lesser positions of persons whose positions are abolished for reasons of economy and for placing such persons' names on special eligible lists which take precedence of other lists for the positions abolished or similar positions.

New Jersey (Res. 6) creates a commission to study the operation of the Civil Service laws in the State and its municipalities. New York (357) gives Municipal Commissioners power to investigate the operation of the Civil Service law and rules, conduct hearings, summon witnesses, etc.

Massachusetts (297) authorizes the Civil Service Commission to investigate the work and compensation of officers and employees in the classified service, and on request of the appointing power to inquire into the efficiency and conduct of particular officers and employees, and if necessary recommend their removal.

ELECTIONS.

The Oklahoma initiated constitutional amendment (p. 114), making ability to read and write a section of the State Constitution a qualification of voters, excepting certain persons and their lineal descendants, having been held unconstitutional, a joint resolution (p. 144) proposes a new amendment, changing the description of the persons excepted from the literacy test to those who have seen military or naval service (including service in any foreign nation) and their descendants. This seems to vary the usual "grandfather clause" by confining the ballot to the military and their descendants.

New Jersey (277) requires registration in person or by affidavit in municipalities of more than 10,000. The provision for registration by affidavit is new and applies to persons prevented from registering in person by illness or absence from State. This law also authorizes marking the ballots with a + mark as well as with an X. State-wide registration is required in Oklahoma (24). Louisiana (No. 195) provides for registration throughout the State.

Oklahoma (25) permits voting in another precinct by the voter absent from his own county, and Virginia (369) permits absent voters to vote by registered mail.

Massachusetts (16) regulates primary ballot arrangement of candidates for delegate to National Conventions. Preferences for President shall be entered on the ballot, if declared by candidates and consented to by person preferred, which consent may be communicated by telegraph or cable. Massachusetts (179) repeals (subject to referendum at the next State election) the 1914 law authorizing a single ballot for all parties at primary elections and restores the 1913 requirement of separate ballots for each party. California (1, 2, Special Session) amend the Direct Primary and Presidential Primary laws. Chapter 135 of the Laws of 1915 provided for registration without declaration of party affiliation, but that act was rejected by the voters on referendum. The 1916 amendment provides for declaration of party affiliation at the time of voting at a primary election instead of at the time of registration. Maryland (292) prohibits voting at primary elections without disclosing party affiliation. South Dakota (3, Special Session) advances date fixed by the 1915 law for the general primary to obviate necessity of two primaries in the Presidential year, one for State officers and another for national conventions, and also contains new provisions as to nominating delegates and expressing preference for President. The necessity of supplying defects of the 1915 Primary law was responsible for the special session in this State. Louisiana (No. 35) is a Primary law providing that all party candidates for State and local offices, including United States Senators and Congressmen, shall be nominated by direct primary. Louisiana (No. 130) is a General Election law dealing with nominations, ballots, etc.

Kentucky (13) enacts a Corrupt Practices act prohibiting corporation contribution to and limiting amounts of campaign expenses, and annulling elections in certain cases of violations.

INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM AND RECALL.

Oklahoma (32) amends the Initiative and Referendum law respecting the distribution of publicity pamphlets. If public officials fail to print and distribute required pamphlets an elector may petition the court for a mandamus, but failure to print and distribute such pamphlets is not to invalidate any election.

Mississippi (159) is the constitutional amendment authorizing the initiative and referendum adopted in 1914. It applies to constitutional amendments as well as statutes.

The absence of further legislation in this field is probably due to the fact that no State west of the Mississippi River held a regular session this year.

REVISION AND AMENDMENT OF STATE CONSTITUTIONS.

Massachusetts (98) submits to the general election 1916 the question of calling a Constitutional Convention. If approved, 320 delegates are to be elected first Tuesday of May, 1917, and the convention meets first Tuesday of April following. Nomination and election of delegates must be by non-partisan ballots.

Specific constitutional amendments proposed or adopted are classified under the subject matter to which they relate.

UNIFORM STATE LAWS.

Bills recommended by the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws were passed as follows: Uniform Transfer of Stock Act—New Jersey (191). Uniform Partnership Act—Maryland (175). Uniform Bills and Notes Act—Mississippi (244). Uniform Torrens System Act—Virginia (62). Uniform Probate of Wills Act—Louisiana (No. 92). Uniform Acknowledgment of Foreign Deeds Act—Louisiana (No. —).

STATUTES—PREPARATION, REVISION AND CONSOLIDATION.

Virginia (147) proposes to amend the Constitution respecting the reading of bills so that instead of being read at length on three different calendar days in each House they shall be read by title on three such days and at length once in each House. New York (32) amends the law regulating the Bill Drafting Commission by making the Commissioners' five-year term indefinite, by reducing their salaries from $6,000 to $5,000 each, payable in six monthly instalments, and by requiring them to keep their office at the Capitol open from December 1 through the session instead of from September 1. These changes reduce the fixed cost of the office by $2,400 annually out of an expenditure for last year of about $37,000. Louisiana (No. 260) creates a commission to investigate legislative procedure and to report on the desirability of establishing a legislative reference bureau.

Lobbying before the Legislature is regulated by Kentucky (16) and Mississippi (105).

New Jersey (84) creates a commission of lawyers who are or have been counsel to cities to revise and codify statutes relating to municipalities and to report bills for the delegation to municipalities of power to deal with local matters, thereby avoiding the necessity for resort to the Legislature. The preamble to this act suggests that such delegation, in addition to removing "confusion and uncertainty," would also "shorten the sessions of the Legislature."

New York (378) repeals the existing law authorizing the preparation of an index to the State statutes. The continuance of the index is made dependent on the report to the next Legislature of the Chairman of the Judiciary Committees of the Senate and Assembly. New York (400) extends to February 15, 1917, the time for the final report of the commissioners to consolidate laws relating to decedents' estates and Surrogates' Courts.

Massachusetts (Res. 43) provides for the appointment of three "able and discreet persons learned in the law" as commissioners to consolidate and arrange the general laws of the State. The commissioners are instructed to render the laws "concise and intelligible," to "omit redundant enactments," to reject superfluous words, to condense into concise form if consistent with clearness "all circuitous, tautological and ambiguous phraseology, and to suggest methods of correcting, supplying or amending mistakes, omissions, inconsistencies and imperfections." A report of substantive changes is to be made in January, 1918, and the final report in January, 1919. The commissioners shall receive $5,000 a year and may expend such sums as the Governor and Council authorize.

New Jersey (56) authorizes the Governor, President of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly to contract for the preparation of a supplement to the compiled statutes to cover the session laws from 1911 to 1916, inclusive, and abstracts of decisions.

EDUCATION.

Congress (No. 52) incorporates "American Academy of Arts and Letters" to further interests of literature and fine arts, with not exceeding 50 members, 49 of whom are named in the act.

New Jersey (152) prohibits conferring of degrees by any institution not licensed by the State Board of Education, and contains curious detailed procedure for imposing penalties for violation of the act.

New York (545) incorporates "Institute for Public Service" to conduct training school to prepare men for the public service by doing field work in co-operation with public officers. This field work may be conducted in the problems of public business, education and benevolent foundations. The wide scope of the institute's work is indicated by the power to "search for strong administrators and for large opportunities that need efficient men."

Mississippi (110) creates an unpaid commission to study and eliminate adult illiteracy, and (111) establishes a training school for delinquent children.

Kentucky (73) provides for a census by the Illiteracy Commission of all adult illiterates.

New Jersey (76 and 102) provide appropriations for vocational education. Massachusetts (95) defines co-operative courses authorized in the public schools and co-operating industrial establishments as "courses approved as such by the Board of Education and conducted in public shools in which technical or related instruction is given in conjunction with practical experience by employment in co-operating factory, manufactory, mechanical and mercantile establishment or workshop."

Mississippi (187) requires the public school curriculum to include "history of Mississippi, elements of agriculture, civil government with special reference to local and State government, physiology and hygiene with special reference to the effect of alcohol and narcotics on the human system, and home and community sanitation." Kentucky (19) requires the teaching of fire prevention in public and private schools at least one hour weekly. New York and Louisiana require instruction in military science. (See "Military Affairs.") voters accept this act on referendum to establish day or night schools in agriculture and horticulture under the supervision of the Board of Education. South Carolina (503) provides State aid for teaching agriculture in the public schools, and Kentucky (20) provides for agricultural extension work and home economics by the State University. Massachusetts (Res. 106) creates a commission to investigate agricultural education as conducted at the Massachusetts College. Maryland (372) incorporates a State Agricultural College.

Louisiana (No. 27) is a compulsory school attendance law applying to children between 7 and 14 for 140 days, but excepting children whose services are needed to support widowed mothers.

Massachusetts (102) provides for the registration of minors and enforcement of Compulsory Education law by attendance officers.

New Jersey (263) requires teachers to read without comment in each public school classroom at the opening of each day at least five verses of the Old Testament.

New Jersey (13) provides for collection from the children and deposit in savings banks of small sums by school authorities, and New York (90) amends a similar law by extending its provisions to philanthropic agencies having the direction and guidance of children.

New Jersey (149) authorizes the Commissioner of Education to appoint "helping teachers" to aid teachers in two or more districts. Mississippi (181) authorizes the issuance of teachers' licenses to holders of such licenses issued by other States.

The use of school houses and grounds for recreative, social, athletic and other purposes is authorized by New Jersey (227), and by Rhode Island (1,414) in Providence, except meetings in control of religious, fraternal or other exclusive organization. Under the latter act fees may be charged if used for the school where the meeting is held; while Massachusetts (Special Act 86) drops from a similar law provision that no fees be charged at such meetings.

New York (315) authorizes State Commissioner of Education to enter into contract with District Board of a district in which there is a Normal School for the education of children in such district, and Kentucky (81) authorizes adjacent counties to maintain joint high schools.

New Jersey (66) requires election of school directors in districts in which there are 1,000 pupils to be held in more than one place, and requires board to present to each voter at the election a printed copy of the board's annual report and budget for the ensuing year.

Kentucky (24) recodifies the Common School law in the interest of clearness rather than change, and Mississippi (603) creates a commission to prepare a school code for submission to the 1918 Legislature.

Louisiana (No. 120) creates a State Board of Education of which the State Superintendent of Education is a member; prescribes the powers and duties of the board and the organization, powers and duties of local school boards; and provides generally for public education in the State.

Mississippi (179) regulates the purchase from publishers of school text-books.

South Carolina (505) requires the State Charities Board to investigate the financial condition of persons holding scholarships in the State higher educational institutions.

Louisiana (No. 4) proposes a constitutional amendment which, among other things, separates school from general revenue in New Orleans and authorizes the city Board of Education to levy 3½ mills annually and an additional 2 mills when authorized by vote of the people.

AGRICULTURE.

Congress (No. 158) provides a comprehensive Federal farm loan or rural credits system administered by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

South Carolina (Res. 731) creates a commission to report on a State system of rural credits.

Maryland (675) incorporates an agricultural society to develop agricultural resources of the State, and Massachusetts (Res. 106) creates a commission to study its agricultural resources.

Maryland (698), Kentucky (62) and Virginia (506) regulate the purity and sale of seeds. South Carolina (Nos. 362 and 368) declare the sale of seed or unpicked lint cotton in specified months contrary to public policy and therefore prohibit such sales in specified counties.

Rhode Island (1,400) authorizes the organization of co-operative agricultural associations.

Maryland (391) creates a State Agricultural Board of nine appointed by the Governor. New Jersey (268) creates a State Department of Agriculture under an unpaid board of eight selected by a convention of delegates from specified agricultural societies and (269) transfers to the new department powers and duties of existing officers. Oklahoma (initiated constitutional amendment, adopted 1913, p. 122) provides for a Board of Agriculture of five, chosen according to law. A previous initiated law (adopted 1912, p. 115) provided that the members of the board should be elected by a State institute composed of one delegate from each county institute.

Virginia (391) establishes a Bureau of Markets in the Department of Agriculture, and New York (586) creates a Bureau of Farm Settlement in its department to "promote the settling by desirable immigrant rural laborers . . . in farm sections" and generally to bring immigrant laborers into the farm districts, even to the point of corresponding with prospective immigrants in foreign countries.

Louisiana (No. 145), levying a license tax on mining and timber cutting, is interesting principally because of the assignment of practically one-half of the revenue derived from the licenses to a "rural progress fund" to be expended by a board composed of the Commissioner of Agriculture, the Superintendent of Education and the President of the State University for the "promotion of rural development;" "provided that the guiding principle in making any outlay shall always be (1) that the funds proposed to be expended are derived from the spoliation of land, and they should be used in the way deemed best to return something to the land; (2) that the depletion of the rural population and the congestion in cities are destructive to the security of government and the happiness of the people, and any efforts which will tend to prevent so grievous an end are to be encouraged." This board is not to be operative until January 1, 1918.

Mississippi (167) and Louisiana (No. 127) provide for State-wide tick eradication. Treatment of live stock by public officers is made mandatory on owners, and non-compliance is punished by civil and criminal penalty. Mississippi (122) provides for reimbursement of owners of live stock destroyed to prevent the spread of contagious disease. Louisiana (No. 18) prohibits transportation of tick-infected animals into tick-free territory.

Virginia (371) provides for analysis by the State Agricultural Department of foods for domestic animals. Louisiana (No. 38) regulates sales of commercial feeding stuffs.

Mississippi (121) provides for the distribution and sale by a State agency of pure bred live stock and poultry, and authorizes rules to prevent purchase thereof and resale by speculators.

South Carolina (No. 366) authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to arrange with reliable manufacturers of crushed marl or lime stone to furnish same to citizens of the State at reasonable prices, and if such arrangements cannot be made then to report to the General Assembly, with recommendations for the mining of such material by the State with convict labor and furnishing it to the farmers at cost.

Louisiana (No. 39) provides for suppression of fraud in the sale of commercial fertilizers.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

New Jersey (31) and Virginia (437) provide for State supervision of the instruments for applying the Babcock test to milk and cream bought on the basis of percentage of butter-fat therein and their use. Massachusetts (151) provides a procedure by which wholesale milk dealers may have the containers of purchasers tested by public officers and the capacity stamped on the container.

Massachusetts (157) provides that legal weight of bread loaves shall not apply to bread sold in wrapper marked with net quantity. New Jersey (181) requires the net quantity of food packages to be marked thereon in terms of weight, measure or numerical count. Reasonable "tolerance" as to small packages allowed by the United States laws and regulation is authorized. A similar law was enacted in Maryland (667) and Virginia (422).

The grading, packing and shipping of apples is regulated by Maryland (627) and Kentucky (79).

Rhode Island (1,387) defines a legal bushel for farm produce.

MILITARY AND NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Congress (No. 85), in an act "making further and more effectual provision for the national defence," provides for the reorganization of the United States army, which is to consist of the regular army, the volunteer army, the officers' reserve corps, the enlisted reserve corps, the National Guard while in the United States service, and other land forces now or hereafter authorized. The regular army is to consist of 64 regiments of infantry, 25 cavalry, 25 field artillery, a coast artillery corps and specified officers, divisions, etc. The act requires that the regular army shall be maintained at full strength. The increases provided for by the act are to be made in five annual increments. In case of threatened war or similar emergency the President is authorized to organize immediately the entire increase authorized by the act. After November 1, 1916, enlistments in the regular army are to be for seven years, first three in active service and the balance in the reserve. Enlisted men in the active service, whether officer or private, are not to be detailed or permitted to engage in any business or performance in civil life "for emolument, hire or otherwise when the same shall interfere with the customary employment and regular engagement of local civilians in the respective arts, trades or professions." Provision is made for officers' training corps and training camps, and for the organization of the militia. An extremely important provision of this act is that if in time of war "there shall not be enough voluntary enlistments to keep the reserve battalions at the prescribed strength, a sufficient number of the unorganized militia shall be drafted into the service of the United States to maintain each of such battalions at the proper strength." In a word, conscription is authorized. The Secretary of War is authorized to appoint a board of five, two of whom shall be civilians, to investigate and report on the "feasibility, desirability and practicability of the Government manufacturing arms, munitions and equipment." Their report is to be transmitted to Congress before January 1, 1917. A board of five is to be appointed by the Secretary to investigate awards of Congressional medals of honor. If it be found that any award has been made to a person not of the class described in the act authorizing such awards his name shall be stricken from the roll; if he is in the service he shall return the medal, and it shall be a misdemeanor for him to wear or display it. The Secretary of War is authorized to procure dies, tools, fixtures, etc., for the manufacture of arms. The President is authorized to investigate in order to determine "the best, cheapest and most available means for the production of nitrates and other products for munitions of war and useful in the manufacture of fertilizers." He is also authorized to construct and operate water-power plants to generate power for the production of nitrates, and $20,000,000 is appropriated for this purpose, to be secured by the sale of Panama Canal bonds.

Congress (Res. 190) authorizes the President in an emergency to raise all existing army organizations to their maximum strength and maintain them at full enlisted strength while the emergency continues.

Congress (No. 88) authorizes the President to detail to assist Hayti officers and men of the United States Navy and Marine Corps. Men so detailed are authorized to accept employment and compensation from Hayti, subject to the President's approval. The act also provides for increases in the marine corps and in the hospital service of the navy, apparently to meet the vacancies which might result from the details authorized. Detailed men are to be entitled to the same credit for service, retirement, foreign service, pay and all other purposes that they would have received in their regular places.

Congress (No. 69) increases cadets at West Point to two from each Congressional district and territory; four from District of Columbia; two from Porto Rico; four from each State; 80 from United States at large, 20 of whom shall be selected from educational institutions to which army officers are detailed for military instruction; and as nearly as possible equal numbers from regular army and National Guard of men between 19 and 22 who have served a year; but the total number at the academy from the army and guard shall not at any time exceed 180. The increase is to be distributed into four annual increments as nearly as practicable equally distributed among the sources from which the increased appointments are authorized. Congress (No. 18) increases the number of midshipmen at Annapolis by authorizing three for each Senator, Representative and Delegate in Congress, one for Porto Rico, two for District of Columbia, 10 appointed annually each year at large and 15 appointed annually from enlisted men in navy.

Congress (No. 79) authorizes Secretary of War to issue supplies and stores for maintenance of military instruction camps for students of educational institutions to which army officers are detailed as instructors in military tactics, and (No. 94) incorporates the "Boy Scouts of America" and provides for their organization.

Congress (No. 56) establishes in the War and Naval Departments the "army and naval medal of honor roll." Survivors over 65 who have been awarded medals of honor for gallant conduct in conflict with an enemy "at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty" are to be entered on the roll and are to receive a special pension of $10 monthly for life.

New York (566) creates a Military Training Commission to co-operate with the State Board of Regents in devising school courses in physical training and to give military training for not exceeding three hours each week during the academic year, or in case of non-pupils between September 1 and June 15 to boys over 16 and not over 19. Boys exempted by the commission and those regularly employed for a livelihood are excepted unless they volunteer. Provision is made for field training during the summer months and for use of State armories, school buildings and State-supported fair grounds. The Military Training Commission is required (567) to recommend to the Board of Regents for their adoption courses of instruction in physical training for male and female pupils over eight. This instruction is required to be given as part of the prescribed course, and private schools which fail to provide it shall not be deemed to have given "substantially equivalent" instruction to that in the public schools. State aid to local School Boards in the amount of one-half the salaries paid to physical-training instructors is authorized.

Massachusetts (Res. 90) creates a commission to investigate physical training for boys and girls in the public schools and to recommend among other things the system which will provide "an adequate basis for citizen soldiery" with special reference to the following subjects: Physical and disciplinary training, military history, personal hygiene and sanitation. New Jersey (211), after a long preamble dealing with the need of a "trained citizenry" and the beneficial educational and physical effects of military training, creates a commission to study military training in the high schools. Maryland (33) also creates a commission to investigate military education for boys between 14 and 21, the advisability of requiring all males fit for military service to give limited period to service in the militia, the practicability of creating a military reserve and similar subjects. Louisiana (No. 131) requires instruction in the public schools "to the male pupils thereof, whenever practicable, in all the grades higher than the eighth grade, in principle and practice of military science and tactics, especially with reference to the duties of the soldier, an object of general military interest." This instruction is to be given for at least one hour a week.

Virginia (433) prohibits carriers, inn-keepers and amusement places to discriminate against persons lawfully wearing the uniform of the military or naval service of the United States or of the State. Violation of the act authorizes the person debarred to recover $100 in addition to actual damages.

In view of the opposition of labor unions to the use of the State militia in labor disturbances, it is interesting to note the amendments in New York of the Military law (355) and of the code of criminal procedure (353), which take from the Sheriffs, Mayors and Judges of the Supreme Court power to call out the militia and confines this power to the Governor, and the creation by Massachusetts (Res. 92) of a board to study the possibility of creating a State police, thereby relieving the militia from strike duty.

The campaign for preparedness has produced a number of laws dealing with the State militia. Detail amendments interesting chiefly for the emphasis which they put on the Governor's power as Commander-in-Chief, were enacted in New Jersey (165) and Massachusetts (284). The latter act authorizes the establishment of recruiting depots in time of war or while the militia is in the active service of the United States. New York reorganized and increased the strength of the militia (564) and of the naval militia (565).

Massachusetts (170) creates a reserve list of officers of the militia and of the naval militia. New York (470) authorized the Governor to detail officers from the retired list to active duty and to return them to such list.

New York (568) authorizes the Governor to organize the reserve militia (which by existing law was composed of all those liable to military service), or designated classes thereof or volunteers. The Governor is expressly authorized to draft or call for volunteers in case of insurrection or riot or imminent danger thereof as well as for the service of the United States. The Governor is authorized to draft or call for volunteers in order to bring the guard to "the standard of efficiency required for public safety" or to make it conform to the organization prescribed by United States laws. Similar provisions are contained in Mississippi (245), which constitutes the State military code.

Kentucky (43) recodifies the Militia law, provides for the calling out and organization of the reserve militia in case the National Guard is unequal to an emergency, and authorizes the Governor to enroll all able-bodied males between 18 and 45 subject to military duty. This act also contains an interesting provision that military offences shall be misdemeanors and that conviction or acquittal in a civil court bars prosecution in a military court.

Massachusetts (127) authorizes the transfer of any organization of the volunteer militia to any volunteer military force other than the regular army which may be authorized by Congress. No such transfer is to be effective if a majority of the officers and enlisted men, within 30 days after notice from the Governor, reject it. This act authorizes the Governor to permit the use by United States volunteer forces of the military and naval property of the State.

Provision for the more advanced arms of the service is made by New York (474), which regulates the Signal Corps, providing among other things for radio companies and an aero company, and by Massachusetts (123), which authorizes the acceptance of donated aeroplanes and provides for their operation.

In order to provide for such organizations as the Harvard Regiment, Massachusetts (8) authorizes students enrolled in a military organization over which United States or State military authorities have supervision to drill and parade with firearms in public.

Massachusetts (209) requires the volunteer militia to perform not less than 14 days' training annually, and (126) provides that State officers and employees may receive pay for service in the militia without loss of usual compensation from the State, and in addition shall be entitled to the same leave of absence with pay as is given to other State officers. South Carolina (365) provides for payment of guard while attending drills.

Other detailed amendments to the military laws are contained in New York, 467, 468 and 471.

South Carolina (364) and Louisiana (264) provide for government of militia to conform to United States requirements. Virginia (516) also amends generally its Militia law.

Virginia (433) makes discrimination against persons wearing the United States or State military or naval uniform a misdemeanor, and authorizes the recovery of actual damages plus $100 by the person affected. Proof that person debarred was sober, orderly and willing to pay constitutes prima facie evidence that he was discriminated against because of his uniform.

PROTECTION OF THE FLAG.

Mississippi (116) and South Carolina (No. 537) make it a misdemeanor to mutilate, deface or otherwise misuse the United States flag. These acts apply to the placing upon or attaching to the flag any mark, picture or advertisement, or to the attachment of any representation of the flag to any article. Both acts are similar to, but vary in detail from, the Uniform Flag law recommended by the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. The Mississippi law applies as well to the State and Confederate flags as to the United States flag.

Massachusetts (36) amends the law relating to the use of the flag for advertising purposes by excepting publications giving information as to the flag or intended to promote patriotism or encourage study of American history, provided no marks be placed on flag.

HIGHWAYS AND MOTOR VEHICLES.

South Dakota (2d Special Session) submits constitutional amendment declaring that construction and maintenance of good roads and supplying of coal to the people are works of necessity in which the State may engage, but that no expenditure therefor shall be made without two-thirds vote of the Legislature.

New Jersey (285) refers to voters the creation of a Highway Commission and authorization of 13 routes for construction of roads across State. Maryland (575) and Mississippi (168) create State Highway Commissions.

New Jersey (24) gives to pedestrians a right of way over vehicles at street crossings where houses are on average less than 100 feet apart.

Massachusetts (124) penalizes improper spreading of tar, oil, etc., on public highways. Maryland (42) and Virginia (364) punish obstruction of highways with nails, etc.

New or revised laws licensing and regulating motor vehicles were passed in Rhode Island (1,354), Georgia (No. 12, extra session, 1,915), and Mississippi (116). The Mississippi act provides that in actions for damages for injuries caused by motor vehicles proof of injury and of violation of any provision of the act shall constitute a prima facie case for the plaintiff. Special licenses for dealers and manufacturers are provided for in New Jersey (216), and (137) does away with the two classes of drivers' licenses and provides that the fee for all licenses shall be $3, irrespective of horse-power.

New Jersey (142) creates office of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles and increases the inspection force from 30 to 75 by adding special inspectors who serve without pay but with full powers; requires (103) that not only the driver's license but also the owner's registration certificate be correct and shown to inspector on demand; and (163) that motor-vehicle accidents involving loss of $10 or more be reported to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Mississippi (93) makes motor licenses transferable to purchasers of the machine.

Massachusetts (290) imposes added regulations on intoxicated drivers in case of accident, and Virginia (372) prohibits operation of motor vehicles by such drivers.

New Jersey (114) prohibits muffler cut-outs.

Rhode Island (1,371) forbids motor vehicles being used to draw other vehicles of over two tons on State highways without special permit.

Massachusetts (42) grants special privileges to owners of automobiles residing in other States, but within 15 miles of Massachusetts line, for operation of their cars in Massachusetts within 15 miles of the boundary of the State, provided State of residence grants like privileges to residents of Massachusetts.

New York (72) provides for registering and regulation of motorcycles, but does not apply to motorcycles registered in other States which extend similar privileges to residents of New York. The act is exclusive and strictly limits local regulation of the use of highways by motorcycles.

New Jersey (148) makes it a misdemeanor to ask or give commissions by garage keepers, repair men, etc., to chauffeurs and mechanics on bills for storage, repairs, etc.

TAXATION.

Massachusetts (269, see also 300) imposes an income tax. Incomes from investments, except from savings deposits or bonds of the United States or of the State and its subdivisions, are taxed 6 per cent. Incomes from trades, professions and business are taxed 1½ per cent. on the excess over $2,000.

Rhode Island (1,339) imposes "as a tax upon the right to transfer" a tax of ½ per cent. on the net estate of a resident decedent, and on that part of the net estate of a non-resident decedent consisting of real property within the State. An exemption of $5,000 is allowed to the estate of a resident, and a proportionate part of $5,000 to the estate of a non-resident. This act is notable because it is the only estate tax levied by a State, although a tax of this sort is included in the Revenue bill now pending in Congress, and Utah imposes such a tax, but provides for its proportional payment by all the beneficiaries. The same act also imposes "as a tax upon the right to receive" an inheritance tax at rates varying from ½ per cent. to 3 per cent. on transfers to specified lineal and collateral relatives, and from 5 to 8 per cent. on other transfers. An exemption of $25,000 is allowed to the specified relatives and of $1,000 to others. Virginia (484) imposes a tax at rates varying from 1 to 4 per cent. upon all inheritances in excess of $15,000 passing to specified lineal and collateral relatives heretofore exempt, and imposes a tax at increased rates varying from 5 to 20 per cent. upon inheritances passing to others. Kentucky (26) divides beneficiaries into five classes, and imposes a tax at primary rates varying from 1 to 5 per cent. upon inheritances exceeding an exemption of from $500 to $10,000, and not exceeding $25,000, the rate and the exemption varying according to the class of beneficiary. Upon the excess over $25,000 the rate increases with the amount to from one and one-half to three times the primary rate. Massachusetts (268) adds to its Succession Tax law a new class of beneficiaries, consisting of persons other than relatives specified in the preceding classes, and imposes a graduated tax of from 5 to 10 per cent. upon such class. New York (548) reduces the grades and lowers the exemptions of the Inheritance Tax law and also creates a new class, consisting of relatives formerly included in the direct class, and now taxes this class at rates varying from 2 to 5 per cent. instead of from 1 to 4 per cent.

New York (261) re-enacts its secured debts tax in substantially the form of the existing law. This tax of 75 cents per $100 applies chiefly to mortgages and bonds secured by real property in other States, bonds secured by other than real property, and public bonds, and its payment exempts the security from the personal-property tax for five years. The mortgage-recording tax, the principle of which is much the same, is also amended (335) to permit the tax to be paid on the whole amount of a mortgage secured by real property, part of which is within and part without the State, thus securing exemption from the personal-property tax of the entire amount of the security.

Louisiana proposes two constitutional amendments, one of which (No. 168) would strike out the requirement that all property shall be taxed in proportion to its value and permit the valuation for State taxes to be different from the valuation for other purposes. The same amendment would also extend the duties of the Board of State Affairs to include the assessement of all taxable property for State purposes and give to the board such authority relative to State assessment, budget, income and expenditure as may be conferred by the Legislature. Another act (No. 140) relates to the same matter. The other amendment (No. 253) would exempt from taxation ships and ocean-going tugs and barges engaged in "overseas trade and commerce," but expressly provides that such vessels operated in the coast trade shall not be within the exemption.

Virginia (462) allows the same deductions in the assessment of income or other taxes for adopted children as for natural children; (472 and 476) revises its Income and License Tax laws and adds new provisions for the taxation of collection agencies and of water, heat, light and power companies; and (495) provides that in the case of Virginia corporations not doing business in that State no income or ad valorem taxes shall be imposed on stocks, bonds, investments or other intangible property thereof. Merely holding stockholders' meetings is not to be construed as doing business in the State; but intangible property subject to taxation, if assigned to such corporation, shall continue to be subject to taxation "now or hereafter imposed." (This would seem to confine the act to intangible property owned by corporations at the time the act was passed.)

Massachusetts (242) imposing a license tax on peddlers excepts wholesaler or jobber having permanent business place in the State and selling to dealers only and agents selling at wholesale by sample.

Virginia (64) prohibits suits to restrain assessment or collection of State or local tax except where there is no adequate remedy at law.

Oklahoma (initiated const. amend. adopted, p. 119) requires property taxes for school purposes levied on public utility companies operating in more than one county to be paid into the common school fund.

Virginia (215) converts the State Advisory Board on taxation into a State tax board, with power to supervise local tax officers, and contains detailed provisions as to valuation. Mississippi (98) creates a State Board of Tax Commissioners and regulates assessments.

Kentucky (137) creates a commission to prepare a new law on revenue and taxation.

CONSERVATION.

Three States adopted laws for the prevention of forest fires. Massachusetts, in a new act (51), provides that the written permission of an authorized fire official must be obtained before open fires may be built, between the first day of March and the first day of December. The burning of debris from fields and orchards and like fires are permitted without official sanction. New Jersey (44) amends the existing law by providing a more severe penalty for a wilful than for an innocent violation of the Fire law, and gives power to the Board of Conservation and Development in its discretion to permit the person who violates the law to pay the cost of extinguishing the fire or other expense less than the minimum fine. Virginia (268) increases the penalty for setting fire to woods or any inflammable substance on lands whereby damage is done to the property of others, and extends the provision to cover cases in which property of others is "jeopardized."

Maryland (682) creates a Conservation Commission to control its fish, bird, game and fur-bearing animal resources. Virginia (152) creates a Department of Game and Inland Fisheries to enforce fish, game and forestry laws and to "foster the preservation of all wild life in the State." Mississippi (99) creates a Fish and Game Department for the enforcement of the game laws. New York (451) amends generally the Conservation law regulating public lands and forests.

LIQUOR LAWS—PROHIBITION.

Maryland (30) submits the question of prohibition to voters at the 1916 November election.

Georgia (Extra Session 1915, No. 2) forbids advertisement of liquors or solicitation of orders therefor, and (No. 3) provides for more rigorous enforcement of prohibition laws, with particular reference to duties of and penalties on residents and property owners, and (No. 4) regulates the shipment and receipt of limited quantities of liquors. Virginia (146) is a comprehensive Prohibition law forbidding manufacture, sale, advertisement, etc., creating the office of Commissioner of Prohibition for its enforcement, and in various ways, including simple form of indictment, liability for damages done by intoxicated persons, etc., discouraging violation of its provisions; and (487) provides for local option on the question of permitting intrastate or interstate shipments. Mississippi (104) makes liquor advertisements criminal and also authorizes injunctions to restrain them. Mississippi (103) forbids transporting into the State or reception therein of liquors contrary to law. The penalties and provisions for enforcement are very rigorous.

Massachusetts (168) penalizes delivery of liquors in a town where licenses for sale of such liquors are not granted, even though such delivery be by a person licensed to sell in other towns.

Maryland (30) provides for local option in specified cities and counties.

Kentucky (14) regulates licensed liquor dealers and forbids any screeen or other obstruction interfering with full view from the street of rooms where liquor is sold.

Louisiana (No. 14) prohibits keeping or selling malt liquors, whether or not intoxicating or containing alcohol, in municipalities where the sale of intoxicating liquors is prohibited. Louisiana (No. 113) makes it unlawful to ship or carry any vinous liquors into any portion of the State where the sale of such liquors is prohibited by law or ordinance, except as provided in this act. Carriers bringing such liquors into the State and making delivery in any prohibition territory are required to make a record of such carriage and delivery and furnish a copy of it to the clerk of the court of the county from which carried and of the county to which carried. Delivery by carriers must be to consignee or his duly authorized agent. Packages carrying liquor from one part of the State to a prohibition territory within the State must be labelled. The act permits shipping and carrying for the consignee's own use or that of his family of not exceeding 55 gallons of liquors. Apparently the law is directed only at the dealer in liquors, because this allowance of 55 gallons is not limited to any particular period, and apparently that quantity could be shipped to individual consignees daily, so that there is no restriction on individual consignee's supply.

South Carolina (No. 538) makes it a misdemeanor to sell any formula or distilling apparatus for making intoxicating beverages, except those containing less than 2 per cent. of alcohol or preparations for medicinal purposes.

MOTION PICTURES.

Maryland (200) creates a State Board of Motion Picture Censors, makes it unlawful to show any unapproved film, and requires the board's approval to be stamped on the film and shown on the screen. Provision is made for appeal, after re-examination by the board, to the Baltimore City Court. The act does not apply to the use of films for educational, religious and like purposes by described institutions.

Massachusetts (118) permits second and third class construction for moving-picture buildings where the apparatus is operated with cellulose acetate films of a fixed width and using an enclosed incandescent lamp, and New Jersey (276) authorizes the use of portable booths for temporary exhibitions for church and like meetings.

HEALTH AND SANITATION.

Virginia (148) regulates the practice of optometry and (84) of medicine and surgery. Maryland (173) regulates osteopathy. Louisiana (No. 159) and Maryland (522) regulate chiropody, and Mississippi (114) regulates pharmacy. Kentucky (35) and Virginia (498) prohibit "buying and selling of patients by physicians" by making it a misdemeanor to divide fees. New York (328) requires applicants for physicians' licenses to have certificates of the completion of a four-year high school course or its equivalent before commencing their first year of medical study. Virginia (512) authorizes the Dental Examiners to arrange for reciprocity with other States and to license applicants who have practised in such other States for five years.

Rhode Island (1,382) requires physicians and other persons having knowledge of infectious and contagious diseases to report them to town Health Officer, who in turn reports them to the State Board. Other laws requiring reports in the interest of health are New York (370, 515) and Massachusetts (53).

Mississippi (115) provides for prevention of blindness from inflammation of the eyes of newborn through reports to and aid by State and local Health Officers.

Provision for the care of needy sick is made in New Jersey (214), which requires the State to contribute $3 weekly for each person maintained by a county in a hospital, and by authorizing (202) municipalities to employ visiting nurses. Rhode Island (1,405) authorized Providence to appropriate not exceeding $5,000 annually to the support of the Providence Nursing Association. New York (413) provides for a Town Physician to render medical relief to poor persons at the request of town officers, and (371) provides for the care in a hospital or private family at public expense of a person duly declared to be a carrier of typhoid and, therefore, quarantined or prevented from carrying on his usual occupation. Mississippi (109) provides for a State sanitarium for prevention and treatment of tuberculosis and requires physicians to report cases. Virginia (397) provides for submitting to voters of a county the question of establishing a county tuberculosis sanitarium when 15 per cent. of the voters petition the courts for submission of this question. California (Res. 6) and Mississippi (597) endorse a bill pending in Congress providing Federal aid for indigent nonresident tuberculosis patients cared for in hospitals conforming to Federal standards. South Carolina (551) requires the State Health Department to make the Wassermann blood test without charge. Louisiana (No. 163) makes it unlawful for any certified nurse or midwife to administer anaesthetics except under the direction and supervision of a competent practising physician. Violation is a misdemeanor.

Massachusetts (Res. 157) creates a Social Insurance Commission to study the effects of sickness, unemployment and old age, and (Res. 112) a commission to investigate the use of habit-forming drugs and the effectiveness of preventive laws.

For the general improvement of the public health New York (408) authorizes in certain counties a Mosquito Extermination Commission, and declares that an accumulation of water in which mosquitoes are likely to breed is a nuisance. New Jersey (233) forbids the construction of burial vaults above ground without the consent of the local Board of Health.

Virginia (427) makes it a misdemeanor to violate the law requiring owners to bury or cremate fowls and animals dying of disease.

One of the most important regulations of individual liberty in the interest of public health in recent years is contained in Virginia (226), which provides that tubercular persons who by their habits place others in danger of infection may be summoned before a local court by a Health Officer and detained or required to give bond to cease the practice complained of for a period of one year. New Jersey (32) authorizes counties to employ nurses to discover and investigate tuberculosis cases and to give instructions to prevent the spread of the disease.

Virginia (160, 278) prohibits the use of common towels in public washrooms, and defines a common towel as one "intended or available for common use by more than one person without being laundered after such use." This makes laundering the test. If a towel is laundered after "common use by more than one person" it is not a "common towel." Maryland (18) requires toilet accommodations in cars of electric railways operating over six miles.

New York (372) authorizes the State Commissioner of Health to recover in any court of competent jurisdiction civil penalties for violation of health regulations.

Virginia (360) gives the State Board of Health supervision of water works in so far as physical and sanitary quality of the water may affect the public health. The act applies to municipal water plants as well as to private plants

PURE FOOD LAWS

New Jersey (101) and Maryland (163) require licenses for cold-storage warehouses issued only after inspection of sanitary conditions, and Virginia (50) establishes sanitary standards for and requires licensing of slaughter houses not licensed by United States, but excepting "sound and wholesome" meats raised and offered for sale by farmers Virginia (9) prohibits sale of human food articles prepared or kept under unsanitary conditions, forbids (12) unsanitary conditions in transportation or storage of food for man or animal, and provides (267) for prosecution of violations. Kentucky (37) also regulates sanitary conditions under which foods are prepared and sold. Unclean buildings or machinery are declared nuisances, the maintenance of which is made a misdemeanor. General duties are imposed and drastic administrative action authorized to enforce them.

Virginia (18) prohibits keeping or selling of oleomargarine or renovated butter unless kept separate from butter in a manner to show its different character.

New York (144) requires 10 per cent. milk fat in unsweetened evaporated or condensed milk sold in containers not hermetically sealed. Milk and cream, previously excepted from pure food laws, are subjected thereto by Rhode Island (1341). Regulation of the Babcock test for milk purchased on the basis of percentage of butter fat is imposed on the Agricultural Experiment Station in New Jersey (31), and New York (219) provides, for the protection of the producer, that purchasers of milk on the basis of milk fat content shall keep duplicate samples, one of which the producer may demand for analysis at Cornell Dairy Department. Massachusetts (134) authorizes inspectors to take samples of milk wherever produced, stored or transported, but not to interfere with interstate commerce.

Kentucky (44) provides for analysis, etc., of foods by State agencies for the enforcement of the pure food laws, supplying the place of a section declared unconstitutional for defective title.

Virginia (46) directs the State Food Commissioner to mark off polluted oyster and clam beds and thereupon makes it unlawful to take shellfish therefrom. This act contains the remarkable provision that a person violating its provisions may pay the officer who apprehends him a sum agreed upon between them, provided it be not less than the minimum fine for the offence, "and thereupon such person shall be discharged from all legal proceedings that may be instituted against him for such offence."

Mississippi (223) provides that municipalities shall not prohibit producers of meats and foods from selling them in any quantity that he and the buyer agree upon.

LABOR.

ADMINISTRATION ORGANIZATION—Maryland (406) creates a State Board of Labor and Statistics to take the place of existing agencies administering labor laws and to administer new laws respecting public employment bureaus and industrial disputes. New Jersey (40) reorganizes the Department of Labor. All officers and employees in the new department except the Commissioner are placed in the classified civil service. The Commissioner is expressly authorized to transfer clerks from one bureau to another to facilitate the efficient performance of the work of the department. Volunteer inspectors without compensation may be appointed with the same rights and powers as paid inspectors.

Massachusetts (308) transfers to the State Board of Labor and Industries the power to investigate and regulate the safety and sanitation of work places in the interest of prevention of accidents and occupational diseases which is now exercised jointly by that board and the Industrial Accident Board.

New York (503) transfers to city building officials the powers of the Industrial Board in regar to building construction in New York City.

WAGES AND HOURS—Kentucky (21) obliges corporations for procuring profit to pay wages every two weeks; Louisiana (No. 108) adds oil and mining companies to the employers who must pay wages every two weeks, and (No. 102) licenses and regulates the business of loaning money on wages, requiring among other things the consent of the man's wife to his assignment of future wages, and of the employer if the assignment is to be valid against him.

Massachusetts (208) provides that a married man's assignment of future wages shall not be valid unless his wife's written consent is attached thereto.

Massachusetts (229) amends existing law providing for weekly payment of wages by limiting the hotels to which it applies to those in a city, and (14) vests its enforcement in the State Board of Labor instead of the chief of district police or a factory inspector.

New York (151 and 152) amends the provision that contracts for public work shall be void unless the contractor observes the Eight-Hour-Day law, and provides that the first offence against that law shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, but that for the second offence the contract shall be forfeited and no payment shall thereafter be made thereon.

Massachusetts (240) requires forty-eight-hour week as well as eight-hour day for public employees and employees on public work subject to acceptance by council of cities and voters of towns. Maryland (134) makes nine hours a day's work on the roads of a specified county.

Maryland (147) permits employment of women in certain mercantile establishments for twelve hours a day on Saturday and the five days preceding Christmas, provided two rest periods of one hour each be allowed on such days, and (147) prohibits employment of women between 6 P. M. and 6 A. M. more than three days a week.

Massachusetts (Res. 74) requires the State Labor Board to investigate hours and conditions of labor in hotels and restaurants and report on desirability of one day's rest for employees thereof, and (Res. 164) requires the Social Insurance Commission to study hours of labor in continuous industries.

South Carolina (No. 546) requires certain corporations to pay wages weekly. (188) forbids employers to require employees to deal with particular merchants; Kentucky (21) requires corporations to pay wages semi-monthly. Mississippi (241) amends the semi-monthly wage law by sanctioning payment on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month.

South Carolina (No. 544) limits hours of employees on interurban railways to ten daily, and authorizes (No. 547) manufacturing companies to make up lost time to the extent of 60 hours per year, but otherwise makes more effective provision for the enforcement of the Ten-Hour-Day law.

Mississippi (239) amends the Ten-Hour-Day law by permitting more than ten hours on the first five days of the week, but limiting the total for the week to sixty hours, and by excepting from the act employees of railroads and public service corporations.

Massachusetts (303) amends the Minimum Wage law by providing that one of the members of the commission shall be an employer of women, one a woman and one a representative of labor.

Louisiana (177) strikes out of the Women's and Children's Hours law the exemptions in favor of mercantile establishments during twenty days before Christmas.

Congress (No. 68) changes the penalty for violation of the law limiting railroad employees' hours from "not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars" to "not to exceed five hundred dollars."

CHILD LABOR—Congress prohibits the shipment in interstate commerce of the products of mines or factories employing children under fourteen or children between fourteen and sixteen more than eight hours a day, six days a week or between 7 P. M. and 6 A. M.

New York (278) forbids employment in the making of motion picture films of children under sixteen without the consent of designated local officer. The officer is required to give forty-eight hours' notice of application for such consent to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and to hold a hearing on the application. Kentucky (23) permits non-resident children to appear on the stage.

The issuance of employment certificates in the enforcement of child labor laws is dealt with by several amending acts: New York (465) strikes out the provision making school certificates evidence of a child's age and inserts a provision that if the evidence submitted with the application shows the child to be fourteen but not fifteen no certificate shall issue unless in addition to all other requirements the child presents a certificate of graduation from a public or other designated school. This makes the graduation certificate a condition precedent to the right of a child under fifteen to work. Rhode Island (1378) provides that employment certificates where the child's application shows his right thereto shall be issued not to the child but to the employer who files with the issuing officer a written statement agreeing to employ the child and to return the certificate to the issuing officer on the termination of such employment.

Maryland (222) makes many changes in her law, notably adding mercantile establishments, places of amusement and distribution of merchandise to the employments prohibited to children under 14, and reducing the minimum fines for violations.

Massachusetts (66) authorizes the granting of employment certificates good for the summer vacation to children over 14 who do not possess the educational requirements required for certificates generally.

The progress of vocational education is evidenced by New Jersey (242) authorizing special "age and school certificates" for pupils over 14 who study part time in vocational schools to work in factories. Such employment is to constitute part of the child's schooling. Massachusetts (95) amends existing law authorizing co-operative courses in the public schools and co-operating industrial and mercantile establishments and provides for a special certificate for pupils between 14 and 15, authorizing them to work in the co-operating establishments. Pupils in co-operative courses are also excepted from the law prohibiting the employment of children over 16 but under 21 unless the employer keeps on file an educational certificate showing the child's ability to read and write.

South Carolina (361) raises the age at which children may work in factories, etc., from 12 to 14 years.

Massachusetts (242), providing for licensing of peddlers, allows children under 16 to obtain permits to sell only those things which peddlers may sell without a license.

SAFETY AND HEALTH—New York (424) makes it a misdemeanor for steam or electric railroads to employ in the operation of trains an engineer, fireman, etc., who is unable to read, hear or understand the English language or to see and understand signals.

New York (466) excepts from the requirement of fire alarm systems and fire drills those factories wholly protected by approved automatic sprinkler systems, provided the maximum number of occupants on each floor does not exceed by more than 50 per cent. the capacity of exits.

New Jersey (260) provides that within two years all passenger elevators shall be equipped with automatic safety devices preventing movement of the car until doors are closed.

Massachusetts (115) requires mercantile and manufacturing establishments, where nature of work necessitates "substantially complete change of clothing," to provide separate lockers for their employees.

Minor amendments in the safety and sanitation laws are contained in Massachusetts (154), New York (62) and Rhode Island (1358).

South Carolina (No. 391) makes it a misdemeanor to violate the law requiring separation of the races in factories.

Virginia (515) requires foundries to provide adequate washrooms and toilets.

Virginia (458) amends existing law regulating ventilation of coal mines.

Louisiana (146) makes it a misdemeanor for an employer, or an officer of an employer, corporation, knowingly to fail to properly protect machinery or to permit defective machinery to remain where men are working.

MEDIATION AND ARBITRATION OF LABOR DISPUTES—Maryland (406) authorizes the State Labor Board to appoint a chief mediator and to promote voluntary arbitration of industrial disputes. The board may, subject to the Governor's approval, appoint arbitration boards which are authorized to conduct investigations and enforce attendance of witnesses and production of testimony and to publish a report of their findings for the settlement of the dispute.

South Carolina (No. 545) creates a conciliation board for the investigation and settlement of industrial disputes. The board is authorized to investigate strikes and lockouts, to compel the production of testimony, and to report if they deem it advisable the results of such investigations.

Massachusetts (89) provides that the law prohibiting advertisements to secure new employees without plainly stating the existence of a strike or lockout shall cease to be operative when the State Board of Conciliation determines after hearing, at which all parties shall be heard, that the employer's business is being carried on in the usual manner, that is, that the strike has terminated.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES—California (Res. 8) endorsed the recommendation of the United States Labor Department that by financial aid and otherwise the unemployed be encouraged to take up homes on the public lands. Maryland (406) authorizes the State Labor Board to investigate extent and causes of unemployment and the remedies therefor, and to establish free employment agencies in such parts of the State as it deems advisable.

Virginia (168) amends existing law regulating private employment agencies by providing, among other things, that fees paid by applicants who fail to obtain employment within 30 days shall be returned and that the sending of women to places of ill-repute shall constitute a felony, and (517) increases the annual license tax on labor agencies which do not have regular offices.

Massachusetts (Res. 157) directs the Social Insurance Commission to study unemployment.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION AND EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY—Kentucky (33) enacts an Elective Workmen's Compensation law for industries other than agriculture and domestic employment employing 5 or more; requires acceptance of the act by employer and employee to be by written notice; takes from the employer who fails to elect his common law defences and leaves these defences against the employee who fails to elect; fixes the rate of compensation at not over 65 per cent. of wages with a maximum and minimum. This act takes the place of a previous compensation act declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

New York (622) extends its Workmen's Compensation law previously applicable only to listed hazardous employments to employees not engaged in hazardous occupations and their employees who elect to become subject to its terms. The employer elects by posting notice. The employee's election is presumed from failure within a stated time to file written rejection.

Maryland (86) provides that a mine worker shall be deemed to be employed in Maryland and entitled to the benefits of its Workmen's Compensation act if the principal mine entrance is in the State, notwithstanding that the employee is injured or killed while working at a point actually within another State. Massachusetts (307) corrects a drafting defect in the existing law which on a strict interpretation would have confined the Compensation law to employees of municipalities.

Massachusetts (90) reduces the waiting period from 2 weeks to 10 days.

Louisiana (No. 243) amends its Compensation law to make compensation depend on "wages" (defined the daily rate of pay "under the contract of hire in force at the time of the accident") instead of "average weekly wages" (defined as one-fifty-second of the annual earnings), and to make the compensation for certain disabilities fixed instead of allowing discretion, and to make several other changes, notably, to permit the court to require bond from an employer against whom a judgment of compensation has been rendered if the employer has not taken out insurance, evidently a step toward compulsory insurance.

New York (622) authorizes compensation for "serious facial or head disfigurement." Insurance carriers are required to pay to the State Treasurer $100 for every accident resulting in death for every compensable death case in which there is no person entitled to receive compensation. These payments are to be held in a special fund and used to pay additional compensation for life to employees who, after suffering permanent partial disability, subsequently sustained injury resulting in permanent total disability.

Maryland (368) extends the benefits of its law to alien non-resident dependents on the same basis as residents, except that future payments may be commuted by payment of a lump sum equal to three-fourths of their present value, and (597) makes other changes in the existing Compensation law. New York (622) limits the non-residents entitled to compensation to surviving wife or child, or if none, surviving parent or grandparent, whom the employee has supported wholly or in part for one year prior to the accident.

New Jersey (54) adds an interesting variation to the tendency to take cases involving the right to or the amount of compensation out of the courts and provides for their settlement by administrative commission. The New Jersey act leaves disputes to be settled by the courts, but it creates a "Workmen's Compensation Aid Bureau" in the Labor Department, which is required generally to observe the operation of the Compensation law and particularly to assist employees in recovering their just compensation.

Massachusetts (72) makes the report of a physician appointed by the Industrial Accident Board to examine an injured employee admissible in evidence provided the employer and insurer have been furnished with copies thereof.

New York (622) limits appeals to the Court of Appeals in compensation cases to cases in which the Appellate Division's decision is not unanimous, or consent to the appeal is given by the Appellate Division or by a Judge of a Court of Appeals.

New York (478) provides that contracts for public work shall contain a stipulation that the contract shall be void unless the contractor insures compensation to employees on such work who are within the Compensation law. New York (622) makes it a misdemeanor for any employer to fail to insure the payment of compensation in one of the ways provided by the act. This latter act also authorizes the inclusion in one policy of employers who perform labor and their employees. For other acts dealing with insurance of compensation, see Insurance.

New York (622) puts the whole cost of administering the Workmen's Compensation act on the industries to which it applies by providing that after July 1, 1917, the Industrial Commission shall annually compute the expense of administering the Compensation law (including apparently the expense of operating the State insurance fund) and assess insurance carriers, including the State fund, that proportion of such expense which the total compensation paid by such carriers respectively bears to the total compensation paid by all carriers.

The possibility of restoring the earning power of injured employees is recognized in Massachusetts (Res. 75), which requires the Board of Education to report to the next Legislature on facilities for special training and instruction to persons whose earning capacity has been destroyed or impaired by injury.

Massachusetts (Res. 157) creates a Social Insurance Commission to study sickness, unemployment and old age of wage-earners.

Congress (——) passed a Workmen's Compensation act for Federal employees, fixing compensation at not over 66 2-3 per cent. of wages, not over $66.67, not under $33.33, and creating a commission to administer the act.

South Carolina (557) and Virginia (444) in effect apply the Federal Employees' Liability law to carriers in intrastate commerce. The fellow servant rule is abolished, the assumption of risk rule is not to apply where the employer's violation of a safety law contributes to the accident and contributory negligence is limited in its effect to proportional reduction of damages. These laws have been copied from the Federal law and tend to make the law regulating liability for injuries to carriers' employers the same whether the accident happens in interstate or intrastate commerce.

MISCELLANEOUS—Congress includes in two appropriation acts (Nos. 132, 143) the prohibition against the use of stop watches on measuring devices or the payment of bonuses to Government employees. South Carolina (391) makes it a misdemeanor to violate the law requiring separation of the races in factories.

INSURANCE.

Louisiana (No. 76) provides that life companies organized on the stock plan under Louisiana law may provide in their charters for participation of policy holders in the election of the company's directors. This right once granted to policy holders may be extended but not curtailed. Louisiana (No. 240) limits industrial life insurance to that in which dues are payable at stated periods not exceeding one calendar month.

Massachusetts (12) authorizes substitution of inspection by a competent person for medical examination in the case of group insurance on the lives of not less than 100 employees.

New York (360) increases the amount of new business which may be written by life companies. Generally this increase is 5 per cent. of the total amount of insurance in force in the preceding year. It is also provided that in determining the amount of new insurance, group insurance, covering groups of not less than 100 lives in the employ of the same person, shall be excluded.

New York (119) changes from ½ to ¼ of 1 per cent. the amount by which the contingency reserve of domestic life insurance companies shall decrease for each additional $5,000,000 over $20,000,000 of net value of policies; and provides that if net values exceed $50,000,000 the contingency reserve shall not exceed 7½ per cent. New York (120) amends the limitation of life insurance companies' expenses by providing that companies which have changed from stock to mutual or from non-participating to participating may incur expenses in addition to the general limitation not to exceed 6 per cent. of aggregate net premiums. This takes the place of previous authorization of excess expense for such companies not greater than the excess of 25 per cent. of net premiums over loadings collected on business prior to the date of the change. This amendment also provides that no mutual company shall issue after June 30, 1916, any life or endowment policy other than group insurance or reinsurance on which the premium loading is less than would enable the company to comply with the provisions limiting total expenses, if the premium loading of all its policies were calculated according to the rule employed by the company for calculating the loading of such policy.

New York (121) extends for five years, from December 31, 1916, the time within which domestic life companies must dispose of stocks other than those of municipal corporations and of bonds not secured by adequate collateral.

Massachusetts (47) forbids, after January 1, 1917, life or endowment policies (except industrial policies) providing for loans or surrender values unless the company is authorized to defer such loans (except when they are for the purpose of paying premiums and surrender value) for not exceeding 90 days from application.

Virginia (165) provides that premiums paid on life insurance taken by a borrower as additional security for a loan by an insurance company on mortgage or other security shall not be considered as interest on loan, and shall not render the loan usurious.

New York (393) provides that dividends on expired policies of mutual employers' liability and workmen's compensation companies shall not be distributed until approved by the Superintendent of Insurance. This act also requires foreign mutuals authorized to write this business to maintain a surplus, over liabilities including unearned premiums and loss reserves, of $100,000, under penalty of revocation of such company's authorization to do business in the State. Louisiana (No. 88) expressly exempts dividends on life policies from liability for debts.

Maryland (254) prohibits insurance companies or their agents issuing or circulating statements misrepresenting terms of policies or benefits thereunder. Life, health and accident companies and their agents are forbidden to make any misrepresentation to induce the taking out or surrender of a policy. This act also declares that agents of industrial companies shall not be deemed the owner of the periodic "debit" collected by them and forbids such agents to sell "or in any manner switch" such debit without the company's consent.

Massachusetts (28) provides that accident insurance policies may, at the option of the insured, provide that benefits for death or disability shall be payable in instalments. In such case the policy is to contain the total sum, the number, amount and time of payment and the time, not exceeding 60 days, from proof of first payment.

Louisiana (No. 227) adds to the law requiring life policies to contain the entire contract a provision that no statement not endorsed or attached to the policy when issued shall be used in defence of a claim unless contained in a written application, and unless a copy of such statement be endorsed or attached to the policy when issued.

Massachusetts (150) adds to the standard fire policy provision that limitation of action thereunder to two years after loss shall not apply if within that time the loss is referred to arbitration, in which case the limitation shall be 90 days after award or waiver of award, or, if action be enjoined or abetted, one year after dissolution of injunction. Virginia (99) provides that suicide or legal execution shall not be a defence to a life policy issued to a resident or otherwise subject to the laws of the State unless the policy contains express limitations to the contrary. This applies to policies issued before the act takes effect if the language thereof is "sufficiently comprehensive" to cover death by suicide or execution. This act cannot be avoided by providing that the policy shall be construed according to the laws of some other place. If, however, it be shown that at the time of taking out the policy the insured intended suicide there shall be no recovery for such suicide.

Maryland (275) makes fraudulent certificates of death, sickness, etc., by insured persons a misdemeanor.

Kentucky (55) provides for the reorganization of co-operative or assessment life and casualty companies, and their reincorporation as mutual or stock companies.

Kentucky (56) provides that life and casualty companies organized on the assessment or co-operative plan shall not commence business until a guarantee fund of $100,000 for the protection of the company's members has been raised and deposited with the State Treasury; regulates (28) assessment and co-operative fire companies.

New Jersey (127) authorizes county officers to establish fire insurance funds for county property, to be administered by a committee of the county officers. Insurance may be placed with companies when the officers deem it desirable. Kentucky (58) provides for the establishment of school property insurance funds by Boards of Education in second class cities. South Carolina (No. 373) requires all school buildings, except those which are not of brick or concrete construction and having an insurable value of less than $300, to be kept insured. The non-brick or concrete buildings must be insured in "reliable old line insurance companies." Other buildings are to be insured 45 per cent. in the State Insurance Department and 55 per cent. in the companies. Provision is made for increase in the percentage of insurance to be carried by the State department as its assets increase.

Mississippi (205) forbids placing of insurance on persons or property except in the case of the policies of life companies, until the risk has been approved by a resident local agent. The local agent is required to countersign policies subject to this law, which states that its purpose is that the State may receive the tax on premiums. The law does not apply to reciprocal indemnification contracts; and it declares that it is not intended to "direct" insurance covering rolling stock of railroads or property in transit in the possession of common carriers. It is probable that the word "direct" is an error for "affect." A similar act in Louisiana (No. 218) does not apply.

Maryland (255) prescribes qualifications for insurance agents and authorizes the Commissioner on notice and hearing to revoke an agent's license for violation of law, misrepresentation or unjust dealing; and (257) provides for the licensing of brokers' solicitors.

South Carolina (No. 372) provides for the licensing of insurance brokers, who are defined to be persons who "represent citizens of this State for the placing of insurance in insurers licensed in the State or in any other State or country."

South Carolina (No. 371) forbids combinations of fire companies or their agents for the purpose of controlling rates. Violation of the act is penalized by revocation of the company's license to do business in the State, and no new license may be granted to such company for three years.

Kentucky (19) creates a State Insurance Board of which the Insurance Commissioner is Secretary to supervise fire insurance rates and rate-making bureaus. The act forbids any unauthorized company to issue an insurance policy on any property in the State. It forbids any company issuing any policy except through agents licensed by the Insurance Commissioner. Every fire company is required to be a member of or maintain a rating bureau.

This act provides for the organization of mutual insurance companies for specified kinds of insurance. Life and fire insurance are not included; but disability insurance and workmen's compensation insurance are included. Provision is made for the admission of foreign mutuals to engage in the same lines of insurance.

The act also authorizes individual or associated "underwriters" to engage in insurance (except life insurance) on the Lloyd's plan.

Mississippi (200) repeals Section 18 of Chapter 171 of the laws of 1912 relating to mutual fire companies. This section made notes of the insured for premiums and assessments a lien on the property insured and the land on which it was situated.

Maryland (274) prohibits the sale of insurance company's stock until the Commissioner has been furnished particulars as to the methods and proposed cost of promotion and until salesman, after investigation of his record, has been licensed.

New York (13) provides for the organization of mutual automobile casualty insurance companies with power to insure against accident, theft and other losses except loss by fire or transportation; and (14) for the organization of mutual automobile fire insurance companies with power to insure against various losses, including theft but excluding personal injuries. Both of these acts authorize certificates to foreign mutual companies. Massachusetts (32) authorizes suretyship, fidelity and burglary companies to insure in one contract banks and brokers against loss of notes, securities, documents and money, except loss in transportation.

Kentucky (28) regulates assessment and co-operative fire companies.

Massachusetts (200) provides that mutual liability companies, with Insurance Commissioner's approval, may exercise rights and privileges in relation to workmen's compensation business which are by law vested in the Massachusetts Employees' Insurance Association, and that such association with the Commissioner's approval, may exercise in or outside the State the privileges vested in domestic mutuals under general laws and be subject to laws "now or thereafter in force" relating to such mutuals.

New Jersey (87), amending existing law, authorizes insurance companies to do the following additional business: (1) damage to automobiles or to property resulting from their operation; (2) health insurance, including not exceeding $100 funeral benefits; (3) loss to automobiles by collision or legal liability for damages resulting from such collision; (4) loss by banks, etc., of bills, securities, coin, etc., except loss from marine or transportation risks; (4) loss by non-payment of mortgage or interest thereon; (5) loss due to leakage of fire extinguishing apparatus.

Mississippi (202) requires life companies to file an annual statement showing their Mississippi reserve (defined by the act to mean the amount of the legal reserve required by the laws of the State of the companies' domicile to be maintained on account of subsisting policies on the lives of residents of Mississippi), an itemized schedule of Mississippi securities, and the gross amount of premiums received by the company during the preceding year on policies of residents. Failure to comply is penalized by revocation of license.

Mississippi (203) provides that the tax on gross premiums of life companies shall not be less than an amount equal to one and three-fourths per cent. of gross premiums on business done in the State during the year.

New Jersey (224) requires foreign insurance companies (other than life) in their annual statements to report premiums received and paid by them for re-insurance, and the total of re-insurance premiums is to be deducted from gross premiums in fixing the amount subject to tax. This tax is to be in lieu of all other franchise taxes. Taxes paid by such companies to police pension fund shall be considered part payment of the tax under this section.

Maryland (194) permits life companies to value by the amortization method their bonds, etc., if amply secured and not in default of interest.

New York (590) provides that the Superintendent of Insurance may, on application of a domestic company desiring to do business in another State, issue a certificate that similar companies of that State may be permitted to do business in New York. This act is limited to applications of companies which have had 40 years' experience, whose members are confined to one fraternity, whose annual management expense is limited to 20 per cent. of cash income, whose assets are equal to liability and contingent reserve liability (to be determined as provided by the act), of which $100,000 in specified securities shall be deposited with the Superintendent.

Massachusetts (135). The act authorizes provision in the policies of domestic or foreign companies for waiver of premiums or special surrender values in case either of the insured persons becomes disabled.

Mississippi (201) authorizes service of process and other papers against insurance companies upon the State Insurance Commissioner.

Mississippi (204) requires fraternal benefit societies to give bond to pay any judgment against the society, and otherwise regulates such societies by limiting expenses to a separate fund not exceeding 10 per cent. of collections, and requiring mortality funds, where practicable, to be kept separate. Mississippi (206) and Kentucky (27) enact the uniform fraternal insurance law known as the Mobile bill.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Congress (No. 158) provides a rural credit system which is more fully described under "Agriculture."

Congress (No. 75) amended the Clayton act by authorizing officers, directors or employees of member banks, or Class A directors of reserve banks, with the consent of the Federal Reserve Board, to become officers, directors or employees of not more than two other banks, banking associations or trust companies organized under United States or State laws and not in "substantial competition" with the member bank.

Congress (No. 81) amends the Postal Savings act by increasing the interest-bearing deposits of an individual from $500 to $1,000, by permitting the acceptance of an additional $1,000 without interest and by removing the limitation of $100 a month on an individual's deposit. Member banks of the Federal Reserve system are given preference as depositors. A portion of this act is obviously intended as an amendment to Section 9 of the original act, but does not say so, and for that reason its provisions, which depend on the original act but refer to "this act," may be ineffective.

Congress (No. 90) raises from one-third to two-thirds of the total amount of gold certificates held by the Treasury at any time, the limit in amount of gold certificates of not less than $1,000 issued on deposits of gold bullion.

Rhode Island (1389) increases the criminal penalty for fraudulent checks on banks in which the drawer has not sufficient funds, and makes the issuance of the check prima facie evidence of intent to defraud in those cases in which the drawer fails to deposit sufficient funds to meet the check within seven days after he receives notice of the bank's refusal to pay. Mississippi (120) prohibits checks if drawer has insufficient funds under penalty of punishment as for a misdemeanor if the amount is less than $25 and for a felony if that amount or over.

Louisiana (No. 22) makes cases of embezzlement by check or draft triable in the county where the check was drawn, no matter where it is made payable, and in addition makes the case triable either in that county or in the county in the State in which the check may be made payable.

New Jersey (123) provides that checks or drafts shall be paid by the drawee, notwithstanding the death of the drawer between the times of drawing and presentation, provided presentation be made within 10 days after date.

Louisiana (No. 85) provides that banking associations, savings banks and trust companies may send for collection checks, drafts, etc., directly to the bank on which they are drawn and the latter bank's failure to account for the proceeds, through insolvency or otherwise, shall not render the forwarding bank liable.

New York (363) authorizes savings banks to invest in promissory notes of savings and loan associations and in bonds of the State Land Bank; and (164) makes 60-day withdrawal notices ineffective if withdrawal is not made within 15 days after expiration of such 60-day period.

Rhode Island (1359) levies a tax on interest-bearing deposits in national banks and authorizes the banks to pay the tax and deduct it from interest. The Tax Commissioners are authorized to publish in the newspapers the names of the banks which pay the tax or the names of those banks which do not pay it. Evidently the purpose is to induce the banks to deduct and pay the tax.

Massachusetts (26) gives the Bank Commissioner the same power over savings and loan associations as over savings banks, and authorizes examination of such associations at their expense. Mississippi (207) amends the Bank Deposit Guarantee law.

Massachusetts (129) authorizes domestic trust companies to accept future drafts and bills of exchange and to issue letters of credit to an amount not exceeding one-half paid-up capital and surplus without the approval of the Bank Commissioner, and not exceeding such capital and surplus with such approval. Virginia (298) authorizes banks and trust companies to accept drafts and issue letters of credit not exceeding for any one person 10 per cent. of capital and surplus.

New York (247) authorizes investment companies to advance money on bonds and notes owned, issued or guaranteed by them, and to purchase and pledge the same to secure payment of collateral trust bonds and notes and to sell and negotiate such trust bonds and notes.

New Jersey (115) gives to banks and trust companies for the purpose of liquidating loans of resident or non-resident decedents secured by securities assigned in blank the same authority as legal representative to have such securities transferred.

Virginia (83) authorizes bankers and brokers to require in advance a minimum discount fee on a negotiable paper of 50 cents on loans of 30 days or more.

New York (96) provides that only those banks and trust companies which do not have unimpaired surplus equal to 20 per cent. of capital need report their dividend declarations. Kentucky (74) prohibits bank or trust company dividends until surplus equals 10 per cent. of capital, and requires 10 per cent. of net profits for the dividend period to be carried to surplus until surplus equals 20 per cent. of capital.

Massachusetts (175) regulates deposits with private bankers and their investment.

Mississippi (136) regulates interest on instalment loans and provides that the loan contract may contain a provision that in case the borrower pays before maturity or breaks any of his covenants, interest, otherwise limited to 5 per cent. per annum, may be charged at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Kentucky (125) proposes an amendment to Sec. 201 of the State Constitution prohibiting railroad, telegraph, telephone, bridge and common carrier companies to consolidate their capital stock, franchises or property, or pool their earnings with any similar company owning a parallel or competing line or structure, or to acquire such parallel or competing line or structure, by purchase, lease or otherwise, or to operate the same.

Kentucky (18) extends the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission over express, telephone, telegraph or boat companies, except specified telephone companies.

Kentucky (60) enacts and makes applicable to intrastate commerce the Carmack amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act making the initial carrier liable for any damage in transit whether upon its own or another road.

Kentucky (15) forbids condemnation of railroad rights of way for the use of a wire line running longitudinally along such right of way.

Massachusetts (266) authorizes certain corporations to operate "trolley-motors" or "trackless trolleys" on public ways or private rights of way subject to consent of local officers and of the Public Service Commission; authorizes (92) the Public Service Commission to order reparation with interest for that part of a discriminatory rate which has been collected within two years prior to filing of petition for redress, and authorizes (23) cities and towns to appropriate money to prosecute or defend before courts or commissions proceedings relative to rates and franchise rights of public utilities.

Regulation of "jitneys" is provided for in Maryland (610) and New Jersey (136). The latter act requires every "jitney" owner to take out an insurance policy indemnifying himself against liability for bodily injury or death caused by the operation of such "jitney." Massachusetts (293) requires applicants for "jitney" licenses to file bonds to pay damages for injuries to person or property caused by operation.

New Jersey (36) permits passes to certain local police officers. Mississippi (132) prohibits passes on street railways except to specified persons, and Kentucky (1) is a general anti-pass law, punishing with fine, imprisonment and forfeiture of office those public officers who accept free or reduced fare transportation. Louisiana (No. 271) proposes to amend the Constitution to permit passes to State officers and employees engaged in promoting scientific agriculture.

Maryland (272) makes toll bridges over county-dividing streams common carriers.

Virginia (372) makes it a misdemeanor for an intoxicated person to operate an engine, car, automobile or train.

Virginia (439) places burden on telegraph company to show necessity of giving interstate character to message between points within State.

South Carolina (No. 475) requires railroads to load live stock not more than two hours before departure of train and to unload within two hours after arrival, subject to specified exceptions, and provided that the owner may consent in writing other than the bill of lading to a longer time.

South Carolina (No. 476) extends to February 1, 1917, the time for compliance with an act of 1912 regulating locomotive headlights.

Louisiana (No. 249) makes it a misdemeanor to steal or maliciously remove or interfere with any parts or attachments of locomotives or cars, or fixtures used by a railroad company in operating its trains, and (No. 250) provides that any person who without written authority from the railroad owning the same, purchases or receives in pledge or storage any metal article manufactured and used exclusively for railroad purposes, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Louisiana (No. 208) makes the tapping of electric wires or gas or water pipes with intent to secure current, gas or water without paying therefor, a misdemeanor. Breaking any meter knowingly and for purpose of defrauding is likewise punished.

Louisiana (No. 36) establishes a Board of Public Utilities for the city of New Orleans and authorizes the board, in connection with the local Commission Council, to supervise and regulate public service utilities within the city. Four of the five members of the board shall be appointed by the Governor.

CORPORATIONS.

Maryland (596) amends existing corporation laws generally. Among the more important provisions are: (1) reduction of outstanding capital stock not to release the liability to the corporation of stockholders whose shares are not fully paid; (2) stock without par value may be issued by companies which do not issue preferred stock, except bank, safe deposit, trust or loan companies; (3) an existing provision penalizing the corporation for refusal to permit stockholders to inspect its books is repealed.

By New Jersey (243) corporations organized or licensed to do business under the laws of the State are required to maintain a principal office in the State in charge of an agent on whom process may be served. Insurance corporations which report to Banking Commissioner are excepted.

Louisiana (No. 207) proposes a constitutional amendment requiring railroad and other corporations organized or doing business in the State to maintain within the State a general office (formerly a "public" office) in charge of one of the general officers of the company, and requiring public service corporations organized under the laws of the State to maintain within the State their general offices for the operation and conduct of their business.

New York (127) requires corporation stock books to be kept open daily three business hours for inspection by judgment creditors or stockholders who hold 5 per cent. of outstanding stock or who have been stockholders for six months. That the stockholder applying for an opportunity to make inspection sold or offered for sale a list of the company's stockholders is made a defence to an action for refusal of inspection. New York (53) provides that final orders dissolving corporations must be filed in the clerk's office of the county of principal place of business, and a certified copy with Superintendent of Banks, Superintendent of Insurance or Secretary of State.

Massachusetts (184) provides that voluntary associations created by written instrument or declaration of trust, the beneficial interest in which is divided into transferable certificates or shares, may be issued for debts incurred by the trustees or their agents or for damages due to their negligence, and the property of the association subjected to attachment and exclusion in the same manner as if it were a corporation. Service of process on one trustee is sufficient. New Jersey (191) enacts the uniform transfer of stock act.

Mississippi (96) validates contracts of foreign corporations void because of failure to comply with laws requiring the filing of certificates, payment of fees, etc., provided such certificates be filed and such fees, together with 200 per cent. for damages, be paid. The law is frankly entitled "to raise revenues, etc."

Mississippi (92) requires corporations doing intrastate business to incorporate under the laws of the State, validates (96) contracts of foreign corporations not conforming to certain statutory regulations provided fees are paid, and regulates (97) the sale and purchase of the stock of foreign and domestic corporations.

Virginia (499) authorizes the corporation commission to investigate offers to sell securities, etc., and makes any overt act in the State in an effort to carry out any fraudulent scheme to sell corporate securities or other property a misdemeanor.

Kentucky (17) is an anti-trust law prohibiting combinations in restraint of trade.

Oklahoma (initiated const. amend., adopted 1913, p. 119) permits railroad and transportation companies to sell to or acquire from other like companies their property and franchises.

Maryland (374) prohibits corporations setting up the defence of usury.

Mississippi (123), in addition to existing penalties for violation of the anti-trust laws, makes participation in combines, whether within or without the State, which effect injury to any person or corporation in the State, a felony punishable by fine and imprisonment. Corporation violators are to be fined not less than $5,000, whereas that is the maximum in the case of individuals.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

Maryland (577) makes marriages in other States in violation of the Maryland law void. New York (605) provides for the annulment of marriages where one or both of the parties had not attained the age under which consent of parent or guardian is required by the laws of the State where the marriage was contracted.

New York (482) makes it a misdemeanor for a person having a husband or wife living to take out a license to marry another.

Louisiana (No. 31) asks Congress to submit an amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibiting polygamy.

New Jersey (63) requires petitions for annulment of marriages to be accompanied by petitioner's affidavit that there is no collusion in the application. Thereafter the procedure is to be the same as that in divorce, the purpose of the act being "to make uniform the practice and procedure in all cases of annulment of marriages," and (57) authorizes the defendant in divorce suit to file counter-suit against the plaintiff. Virginia (61) adds to the grounds of absolute divorce sentence to a State penitentiary where cohabitation has not been resumed. Pardon granted not to restore conjugal rights.

Louisiana (No. 269) authorizes absolute divorce on proof of continuous living apart for a period of seven years.

Louisiana (No. 247) expressly provides that alimony shall be payable from "earnings" as well as from "property" of the husband.

Virginia (417) declares that father and mother are equally entitled to custody, services and earnings of legitimate children, but in determining controversies the courts are to be guided by the welfare of the child.

Louisiana (No. 139) makes it a misdemeanor for parents or other persons having custody and control of children under 17 to abuse or neglect such child or to permit, through careless control, such child to become delinquent under the laws of the State.

New York (196) extends to wrong done under pretence of fraudulent representation of marriage the penalty for wrong under promise of marriage.

Louisiana (No. 94) provides that a married woman may contract and oblige herself personally and with reference to her separate and paraphernal property, that she may appear in court, sue and be sued in the same manner as though a femme sole; but this act is not to affect the existing laws regulating community property and prescribing what shall be deemed community and what separate property of husband and wife.

PROPERTY AND DECEDENTS' ESTATES.

In one of the most important statutes of recent years affecting the law of real property, Massachusetts (108) provides that a contingent remainder shall take effect, "notwithstanding any determination of the particular estate, in the same manner in which it would have taken effect if it had been an executory device or a springing or shifting use, and shall, as well as such limitations, be subject to the rule respecting remoteness known as the rule against perpetuities, exclusive of any other supposed rule respecting limitations to successive generations or double possibilities." The act removes the technical rule of feudal law, that a remainder fails if it does not vest on or before the termination of the particular estate because there is no seisin to support it, and subjects all remainders to the rule against perpetuities. While it is true that the statute merely enacts the Massachusetts rule against perpetuities, the rule of remoteness of vesting, and declares that this rule applies to every future interest in property, nevertheless, it is of vital interest because it is a legislative recognition that the rule is one of remoteness. Prof. Gray contended that the only test of a perpetuity is that of remoteness of vesting, and it has remained for the Legislature of his native State to give the first statutory sanction to his theory.

Maryland (325) makes the descent of real property the same as personal property in certain cases.

South Carolina (No. 387) authorizes Probate Judges to accept the resignation of an executor when not injurious to the estate.

Chattel mortgages in New York (348) need not be filed where there is a mortgage, pledge or lien on stocks or bonds which by the written instrument creating the same are to be delivered to the lender on the day the loan is made. Such mortgage, pledge or lien is valid against creditors if the securities are delivered to the mortgagee on the day the loan is made. If not so delivered, the instrument or a copy must be filed. Purchasers, pledgees or mortgagees in good faith of such bonds or stocks take good title at any time if there is delivery to them, unless the instrument or a copy is filed. Another amendment to the property law of New York (313) provides that all rents reserved by lease, annuities and other payments due at fixed periods shall be apportioned on death or other transfer of the interest of any person interested therein according to the time which has elapsed to and including the day of such death or transfer. The person entitled to the portion of such payment approved prior to transfer shall have the same right to recover the part apportioned to him by this act as he would have had if entitled to the whole; but the person liable to pay rents reserved shall not be referred to for such apportioned parts, but the entire rent shall be collected by the person who, but for this law, would have been entitled thereto. The person entitled to the apportioned part shall recover from the person who so collects such rents. The law does not apply where it is expressly stipulated that no apportionment is to be made, nor to sums payable in policies or insurance or under annuity contracts issued by life insurance companies. The law is similar to the present rule respecting the division of interest. A third amendment to the New York property law (364) provides that where undisposed of profits, pending suspension of the power of alienation or the ownership of real estate in consequence of a valid limitation of an expectant estate, are legally paid to the next individual estate, the birth of a child to any person receiving any part of the profits shall not stop payment to him.

New Jersey (157) permits a married woman over 21 to acknowledge conveyances as a femme sole in so far as she need not be examined apart from her husband, nor need she declare that she signed and delivered as a voluntary act without compulsion of her husband. In Virginia (59), where allotment is made in partition suits, the sale bars the husband's right of curtesy as well as the wife's dower in the land thus sold.

Virginia (292) reduces from seven to two years the time within which a devisee may claim from the innocent purchaser of an heir at law.

Virginia (62) adopts the uniform land registration or Torrens system law and provides (335) that it does not apply to certain cities and counties until approved on referendum by the voters thereof. South Carolina (540 and 550) provides for quieting titles to real estate to determine adverse claims, and for title registration. The registration act is patterned on North Carolina's Torrens law and contains a compulsory insurance fund provision. New York (547) makes the Torrens act more attractive to holders of titles by repealing the privilege of withdrawal from registration, providing for official examiners appointed by the Registrar, subject to the court's approval, and by making payments to the assurance fund compulsory, the State guaranteeing the title certificates. The Registrar may appoint official examiners. Louisiana (No. 170) regulates title and mortgage guarantee companies.

Mississippi (134) regulates the filing of assignments. New Jersey (221) requires written instruments recorded with the County Clerk or Register of Deeds to be in English. Virginia (269) repealed the act making the recording of contracts, deeds, etc., within 10 days after acknowledgment as effective against creditors as if recorded on the day of acknowledgment.

Louisiana (No. 151) authorizes chattel mortgages of specified personal property. Purchasers are subject in certain cases unless they take the seller's affidavit that there is no mortgage on the property sold.

Kentucky (99) provides for leases by guardians or committees in lunacy of mining rights in the ward's real estate. The term of such lease need not be limited to the period of disability. Louisiana (No. 192) authorizes similar leases by guardians when recommended by the family meeting of the civil law.

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION.

Congress (83) prohibits in the District of Columbia false or misleading advertisements or statement to sell goods, or to induce any person or corporation to purchase, discount or in any way invest in or accept as collateral security any securities or property. Massachusetts (149) forbids any untrue, deceptive or misleading advertisement intentionally placed before the public in order to sell any property. Maryland (655) makes it a misdemeanor to obtain a credit or rating by false pretences, or (370) to be instrumental in furnishing a third person such rating, or to make a false statement to obtain property or credit, or (371) for vendors of goods in bulk to make a false statement. Virginia (42) and Kentucky (97) are broad acts punishing untrue, deceptive or misleading advertisements of anything offered to the public with intent to sell or dispose of it.

Virginia (13) provides that persons who, with intent to injure or defraud, enter into written contracts for personal services in the cultivation of the soil and thereby obtain money or other thing of value and fraudulently refuse to perform such service or refund the money are guilty of larceny. (280) provides that persons who, with intent to defraud, obtain from licensed merchants goods for examination and approval and refuse to return the same in unused condition, or to pay therefor, are guilty of larceny. This act, however, does not apply unless a card or tag is attached to the goods containing the clause "delivered for selection or approval," and unless the request for return be made within five days after delivery. (499) provides that if any person, corporation, etc., has devised a scheme to defraud by the sale or distribution of stocks or securities or real estate, and shall, for the execution of that scheme, commit any overt act in the State it shall constitute a misdemeanor. The State Corporation Commission is given power to investigate offers to sell such stock, securities, etc.

New York (367) makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, to attempt to operate slot machines or slot telephones without first depositing the required United States coin, or to use any slug or other device instead of such coin. The penal law of New York is further amended (366) so that the crime of receiving certain goods stolen from railroad and like companies is divided into two degrees; the first, where the value exceeds $50, and the second where it is less.

SALES AND MERCANTILE LICENSES.

Maryland (355) provides that conditional sales in Baltimore are void unless recorded. Massachusetts (289) provides for a fine not exceeding $100 to be assessed against others than licensed peddlers and newspaper dealers who solicit business on public sidewalks in front of any retail store other than their own, or one in which they are employed, to induce any person to purchase at retail merchandise similar in kind to any kept or displayed for sale in such store.

Maryland (632) enacts a new license law for selling goods and chattels. Massachusetts (242) amends the law relating to the licensing of peddlers so that "wholesalers or jobbers having a permanent place of business in the State and selling to dealers only and persons selling at wholesale by sample-lists, catalogues or otherwise" are excepted from its provisions, and bartering is included with selling.

New York (385), amending the Agricultural law, provides for the distribution among consignor creditors of amounts recovered by the Commissioner on bonds of commission merchants, such distribution to be pro rata if the funds are insufficient to pay in full. Virginia (77) requires commission merchants to secure a license and to keep a record of goods received and sold. Provision is made for a consignor to obtain a settlement of his claim after 30 days by filing a complaint with the Commissioner of Agriculture, who shall hold a hearing and may revoke the license and bring action on the bond to recover the moneys for him.

Louisiana (No. 233) forbids commission houses to combine or agree to keep the market on farm or forest products or fish below the "proper limit indicated by the supply and demand thereof," or to charge excessive commission rates, or in any manner to cheat or defraud consignors. Violation is made a crime punished by 6 to 12 months' imprisonment. Louisiana (No. 234) makes all books and records of commission agents subject to examination by Commissioner of Agriculture, the Attorney-General or any District Attorney for the purpose of finding evidence of any violation of law or improper methods.

Louisiana (Nos. 95 and 275) in order to encourage such sales prohibit license taxes on producers' sales of farm and dairy products direct to the consumer.

Virginia (409) makes sales of goods in bulk void as to creditors unless its provisions as to notice are complied with.

Kentucky (111) defines the business of temporary or transient merchant, requires a license for its conduct and otherwise regulates it. The definition includes all merchants who conduct bankrupt, fire or other closing out sales, unless they have conducted a merchandise business in the place where such sale is held for at least one year. Provision is made for permits to be granted on application by the county court to conduct a business which would be within the act without complying with its regulation, provided the applicant proves that he intends in good faith to conduct the business of a permanent merchant.

Louisiana (No. 273) makes wilful purchase of junk or second-hand property not owned or unpaid for by the seller, a misdemeanor. The purchaser is required to take a signed statement from the seller that he is the owner and that the property is paid for. Failure to take this statement is prima facie evidence of guilty knowledge within the meaning of the act. The purchaser who takes the statement is exonerated from such intent or knowledge. The act does not affect the rights of the real owner of such property.

ASIATIC INSTITUTE.

The Asiatic Institute was organized April 21, 1913, to promote the study of progress and conditions in East Asia and the Pacific; to disseminate in the United States knowledge of the same and to promote the solution of questions arising from the contact of two civilizations in the Pacific Basin. It seeks to secure a wider appreciation of Pacific affairs, and to be a repository and arsenal of information of all that concerns the two civilizations, as well as to realize the stable relationship and understanding that must ultimately exist between them.

NATIONAL AMERICANIZATION COMMITTEE.

The National Americanization Committee is a body of fifty-six American citizens who believe that Americanization—a deeper, broader sense of nationalization—is the need of the hour, and that it should be a nation-wide movement in every hamlet in America. They are dominated solely by the dream of a United America: no other power or motives determine their policies, methods or plans, and they are willing to give their time, thought, effort, and resources—in money, association, and power—to the end that the many races in America may become one nation in spirit and achievement.

They believe that American-born citizens need Americanization in increased respect for the flag, in renewed allegiance to America, in patriotic use of holidays, in the discipline and loyalty of citizens' training camps, in the abolition of race prejudice, and in the full recognition of foreign-born citizens as a civic as well as an industrial factor in American civilization.

They believe that the foreign-born peoples within our land owe to America the duties of learning our national language, of becoming literate, of becoming naturalized, and of becoming thrifty and efficient citizens and of loyally supporting the best ideals and traditions, the government and institutions of America, in exchange for the rights America guarantees to all residents alike in this country

They believe that American and foreign-born alike should join hands to assure to each alien within our borders the opportunity to learn English, become literate, and to provide facilities for preparation for citizenship.

FOREIGN LOANS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The new British $300,000,000 loan, the largest obligation of any single country ever brought out here, brings the total of our loans to foreign countries since the war started up to nearly two billion dollars.

At the present time we hold unmatured obligations of foreign nations, states, cities, or have advanced commercial credits abroad, to the amount of approximately $1,910,000,000. As many private credit arrangements have been made, of which there is no record, the total outstanding indebtedness of foreign countries to us may be above this figure.

Great Britain, the banker for the allies, has been the largest borrower. With her half of the $500,-000,000 Anglo-French loan, the total of her indebtedness to us is $850,000,000. France is next, with $520,-000,000, including $100,000,000 for the latest commercial credit arranged here for French companies, which has, however, as yet not been drawn on.

Below is the list of foreign loans and credits that have been arranged in this country since the war started, and are still outstanding. In addition to these, American investors have gone into foreign markets to take advantage of war prices on some of the internal government issues. In the table below, offering bases are given where known:

MONEY VALUE OF HUMAN BEINGS.

(By Irving Fisher, Professor of Political Economy, Yale University.)

THE average person living at 20 or 30 years of age has a present worth as a bread-winner of about $4,000. This is the net present worth of his future productive power over and above the cost of his future maintenance. In old age the average net worth becomes a minus quantity.

The figures for different ages are given in the following table, based on calculations of Dr. William Farr, formerly Registrar of Vital Statistics of Great Britain:

AGE.	Net Average Worth of a Person.	AGE.	Net Average Worth of a Person.	AGE.	Net Average Worth of a Person.
0	$90	20	$4,000	50	$2,900

In short, a human life has, in addition to its higher valuations, a money valuation simply as a money-making machine. This is really the basis of ordinary life insurance.

DEPOSITS AND PURCHASES OF SILVER BY THE UNITED STATES.

Silver purchased during the fiscal year 1916 totalled 6,545,161.96 fine ounces, costing $3,348,642.49, at an average price of 51 cents per fine ounce; the silver received and repaid to the depositors thereof in bars bearing the Government stamp totalled 3,362,233.24 fine ounces; the silver deposited by foreign governments to be worked into coin totalled 2,233,346.96 fine ounces; the United States silver coin received for recoinage totalled 566,469.45 fine ounces, with recoinage value of $783,092.35; the Philippine silver coins received for recoinage totalled 138,067.48 fine ounces; the transfers of silver between mint service offices totalled 815,800.16 fine ounces, making an aggregate quantity of silver handled by the mint service during the fiscal year 1916 of 13,661,079.25 fine ounces. The large increase over last year of silver purchased was due to open-market purchases for subsidiary coinage early in the fiscal year, when the price of silver was unusually low.

COINAGE OF THE UNITED STATES, FISCAL YEAR 1916.

The domestic coinage amounted to $37,209,062, represented by 154,523,524 pieces.

There were also struck for foreign countries and the Philippine Islands 52,367,156 pieces of coined money, while 100,000 gold and 500,829 silver planchets were prepared for Peru for future coinage in that country, making a total of 207,491,509 pieces compared with 148,205,097 pieces made during the fiscal year 1915.

Domestic coinage at United States mints; Philadelphia, gold pieces, 1,697,300, value $11,007,375; silver pieces, 9,239,350, value $11,501,382; minor pieces, 98,131,680, value $2,233,731. San Francisco, gold pieces, 1,117,194, value $20,070,031; silver pieces, 1,636,000, value $681,000; minor pieces, 3,514,000, value $71,580. Denver, silver pieces, 3,794,000, value $1,146,500; minor pieces, 35,394,000, value $497,460. Total coinage, 154,523,524 pieces, value $37,209,062.

The approximate amount of copper used in the above coinages was 728 tons, of which 8 tons were used in alloying gold, 14 tons in alloying silver, 219 tons for nickel, and 487 tons for bronze coinages.

The mints of the United States during the fiscal year 1916 manufactured in addition to the domestic coinage 52,367,153 pieces of metallic money and 600,829 planchets for other Governments.

"Lawful money" includes gold coin, silver dollars, United States notes and Treasury notes. United States notes are by regulation receivable for customs so long as they continue redeemable in coin. There are still in use small amounts of $1 and $2 national bank notes; also $500 and $1,000 silver certificates. Treasury notes were issued for purchases of silver bullion, which was coined into dollars wherewith the notes are being redeemed as rapidly as practicable. The issue of national bank notes is practically dependent upon the market price of United States bonds. When the premium is high it is not profitable to issue notes.

* Federal Reserve Notes: Limit of issue at the discretion of the Federal Reserve Board through Federal Reserve agents to Federal Reserve banks for the purpose of discounting paper for banks, members of the Federal Reserve System and for no other purpose. Denominations; $100, $50, $20, $10, $5 (not a legal tender). Receivable for all public dues. Redeemable in gold coin of the United States by the Treasurer and in gold and lawful money by any Federal Reserve bank.

PREMIUMS ON GOLD.

Gold sold first at a premium early in January, 1862, the New York banks having suspended specie payments December 28, 1861. The highest point reached was 285, July 11, 1864. The premium on gold disappeared at the end of 1878, just prior to resumption of specie payments.

Following is given a table of the high and low prices of gold from 1862 to 1878 inclusive:

Before 1868, seats on the New York Stock Exchange were not transferred by purchase and sale. An initiation fee of $3,000 was, however, required from members duly elected by the board. In 1868, the transfer of seats began to have a market valuation, for in that year the present system of transfer was instituted.

NEW YORK STATE PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION LEAGUE

Its purpose is to have every party or group of voters represented in every lawmaking body in exact proportion to the number of votes they cast, thus assuring, what is not possible under our present method, that legislative bodies will be practically a condensation of the whole voting population. For example: If five parties, or temporary groups, had 30 per cent., 25 per cent., 20 per cent., 15 per cent., and 10 per cent. respectively of the total vote cast for members of a legislative body, each would have exactly the same percentage of the members of such assemblage.

The league states there are several ways by which the above result can be accomplished with the secret ballot now universally used. Practically every method provides that each party or group shall elect as many representatives as they have quotas of votes; a quota being found by dividing the whole number of votes cast for all candidates by the number of legislators, preferably seven or more, to be chosen in each district. Each voter may vote for but one candidate. The difference between the several methods applies only to the rule for transferring surplus and other non-effective votes received by a candidate. The league does not advocate any particular method.

Executive Committee—William Walter Wheatly, Chairman. Secretary—Henry B. Hammond. Treasurer—J. De Lancey Verplanck. Headquarters, Park Avenue Hotel, Park Avenue and Thirty-third Street, New York City.

(a) The State has no separate savings banks. Most commercial banks accept savings deposits as allowed in their charters. (b) In any period of three years. (c) With accrued interest limit is $3,000. Limitation does not apply to religious and charitable associations. (d) No interest on sum exceeding $2,000 except for deposits by widows, orphans, administrators, executors, guardians, charitable institutions and as trust funds. (e) With accrued interest limit is $2,000. (f) No statutory limit. Limit determined by bank. (g) Exclusive of dividends. Every savings bank may further limit the aggregate amount which an individual or any corporation or society may deposit to such sum as it may deem expedient to receive; and may, in its discretion, refuse to receive a deposit or at any time return all or any part of any deposit. (h) This limit ($10,000) applies to a great many banks in Ohio, but all savings banks have their own rules, and limit accordingly. (i) Exclusive of accrued interest. The act, however, does not apply to savings banks incorporated by special acts of Legislature prior to 1874. (k) This sum not to be exceeded in any one year. (m) $3,000 in mutual savings banks; no limit in other savings banks.

In Alaska, Montana, Oklahoma, Texas, Vermont, double the amount of interest collected.

Loss of excess of interest in Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, New Hampshire (three times), Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont, and West Virginia. Loss of principal and interest in Rhode Island, also fine or imprisonment. In New Mexico, fine and forfeiture of double amount collected.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

THE banking and currency law, known as the Federal Reserve Act, was approved December 23, 1913.

Under the system known as the National Banking System, which was inaugurated at the latter end of the Civil War, the National banknote currency was based upon Government bonds deposited in the Treasury, and the currency thus issued has been classed by economists as bond-secured currency. This plan was evolved not only to nationalize and unify the currency, which had theretofore consisted of notes issued by State banks, but as well to create a market for United States bonds, and in this way to sustain their value. It was entirely successful for the latter purpose, but has outworn its usefulness as a banking system because of its entire want of elasticity.

The Federal Reserve Act is the result of a long discussion by statesmen, financiers, economists and bankers, and is a constructive measure based upon and growing out of many bills which have been introduced within the past twenty years. Under it twelve cities, known as Federal Reserve cities, are established, and the (continental) United States is divided into twelve geographical districts, each district containing one of the reserve cities. The twelve districts and their respective reserve cities are as follows:

Dist. No. 1..	Boston, Mass.	Dist. No. 5..	Richmond, Va.	Dist. No. 9..	Minneapolis, Minn.
Dist. No. 2..	New York, N. Y.	Dist. No. 6..	Atlanta, Ga.	Dist. No. 10..	Kansas City, Mo.
Dist. No. 3..	Philadelphia, Pa.	Dist. No. 7..	Chicago, Ill.	Dist. No. 11..	Dallas, Tex.
Dist. No. 4..	Cleveland, Ohio.	Dist. No. 8..	St. Louis, Mo.	Dist. No. 12..	San Francisco, Cal.

Every National bank is required to become a stockholder in the Federal Reserve bank of the district in which it is situated, and any State bank or trust company which complies with certain specified requirements is permitted to become a member bank. There are at the present time 7,598 National banks in the United States which have thus been required to become member banks. Thirty-eight State banks are also members.

The largest district, in respect to number of member banks—the seventh or Chicago district—has 993 member banks. The smallest district—the sixth or Atlanta district—has 390 member banks.

Each member bank is required to subscribe to the stock of the Federal Reserve bank of its district in the amount equal to 6 per centum of its paid-up capital stock and surplus. The Federal Reserve bank does not do business with the public in the sense that banks usually do; it may better be described as a bank of banks. It is made a depositary for a certain proportion of the reserve of all the member banks, and in addition may also be a depositary for Government funds. An important function is as a bank of issue and redemption of currency, for it may secure from the Treasury Government notes known as Federal Reserve notes, which it is authorized to issue against commercial paper with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per centum. Besides this, Federal Reserve banks are granted certain powers in the matter of operations in the open market, such as the purchase of commercial paper, foreign exchange, etc., and in a general way are expected to perform important functions as clearing houses between their member banks.

Each Federal Reserve bank has nine directors, three of whom represent the member banks, three represent commercial, agricultural or other industrial pursuit (these six being chosen by the member banks), and finally three Government directors chosen by the Federal Reserve Board. These nine directors are charged with the duty of appointing all necessary officers, including the active manager of the bank, who is designated as its Governor.

Under the act the whole system is under the supervision of a central board in Washington, known as the Federal Reserve Board, consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency acting ex-officio, and five members named by the President with the approval of the Senate. The five members and the expirations of their terms are as follows:

W. P. G. Harding, Governor, August 10, 1922; Paul M. Warburg, Vice-Governor, August 10, 1918; Charles S. Hamlin, August 10, 1926; Frederic A. Delano, August 10, 1920; A. C. Miller, August 10, 1924.

The salary of the members of this board is $12,000 per annum each, which salaries, together with all other expenses of operating the system, are assessed against the Federal Reserve banks in proportion to their capital stock and surplus. Secretary to the board, H. Parker Willis; Assistant Secretary and Fiscal Agent, Sherman Allen. Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

The capital of the Reserve banks of the system follows:

Dist. No. 1 (Boston)	$10,048,200.00	Dist. No. 8 (St. Louis)	$5,588,700.00
Dist. No. 2 (New York)	23,817,300.00	Dist. No. 9 (Minneapolis)	5,207,100.00

LIFE INSURANCE PROGRESS IN THE UNITED STATES.

It is within the past seventy-three years that the vast business of life insurance in the United States has been developed. The experimental stage was ended and the era of advance was opened when, in 1843, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York began business, its first policy having been issued on February 1 of that year.

Since then a large number of life insurance companies have been established. The following list includes those now transacting business which had their inception between 1843 and 1860 inclusive, arranged according to the date of the first policy issued:

Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1843, February 1; New England Mutual Life Insurance Company (1), 1844, February 1; New York Life Insurance Company, 1845, April 17; Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company (2), 1845, May 6; State Mutual Life Assurance Company (3), 1845, June 1; Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1846, December 15; Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1847, June 25; Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1849, October 1; National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, 1850, February 1; United States Life Insurance Company, 1850, March 4; Ætna Life Insurance Company, 1850, August 1; Manhattan Life Insurance Company, 1850, August 1; Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1851, August 2; Phœnix Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1851, September 11; Berkshire Life Insurance Company (4), 1851, October 27; Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1858, November 25; Equitable Life Assurance Society, 1859, July 28; Washington Life Insurance Company, 1860, February 2; Home Life Insurance Company, 1860, May 1; Germania Life Insurance Company, 1860, July 16.

How life insurance has progressed since the early part of 1843 is shown in the subjoined table by periods of years as indicated, assessment insurance not being included.

December 31.	Amount of Outstanding Insurance.	Amount of Assets.
1867	1,235,000,000	124,534,000

*Annual statements of the fire insurance companies are rendered to the Insurance Departments during the month of January; therefore the statistics of condition January 1, 1917, were not ready when this publication went to press. † The New York law requires a deposit of $200,000 from foreign companies with the Insurance Department. This is treated by the department as "deposit capital," and the surplus slated in the next column is "surplus beyond deposit capital" and other liabilities.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT OFFICES.

The Department of Labor, through the Division of Information of the Bureau of Immigration, has established Distribution Branches throughout the country for the purpose on the one hand of developing the welfare of the wage-earners of the United States and improving their opportunities for profitable employment, and on the other hand of affording to employers a method whereby they may make application for such help as they need, either male or female, citizens or alien residents, and have their wants supplied through said Distribution Branches. No fee is charged employer or employé for this service.

Manufacturers, contractors, farmers, and, in fact, all employers of labor, may now utilize the Government machinery to supply their wants in this direction.

The country has been divided into twenty zones, thus bringing the distributing points near to the places where help is needed. The applications for laborers of all kinds and the applications for employment are cleared through one office in each zone. Many of these head offices have sub-branches under their jurisdiction.

Applications for workers should be addressed to the Distribution Branch, Immigration Service, in the city named in this list as the headquarters of the zone in which the help is required.

20	Los Angeles, Cal.	Post-Office Building.	California, south of the northern boundary of San Luis Obispo, Kern, and San Bernardino Counties; also State of Arizona.

All of the postmasters throughout the United States are co-operating in this work by distributing application blanks both to employers and employés. The appropriate blanks may, therefore, be had on request to any postmaster. However, in those cities designated as zone headquarters, application for blanks or information should be made direct to the Inspector-in-Charge of the Distribution Branch at the office of the Immigration Service at the address indicated in the foregoing table.

The present system of distribution has only been in operation since the first of February, 1915. The number of applications for positions during the five months (February 1 to June 30, 1915) was 76,503. The number directed to employment during the same period was 10,916. For the fiscal year July 1, 1915, to June 30, 1916, the number of applications for positions was 184,481. The number directed to employment during the same period was 84,955.

CONSTANCY OF EMPLOYMENT OF WAGE-EARNERS.

The Federal Census of Manufactures of 1914 shows that the average number of wage-earners employed in all manufacturing industries during that year was 7,037,336. The largest number, 7,242,752, was employed in March and the smallest number, 6,640,284, in December, equal to 91.7 per cent. of the maximum. The statistics are embraced in the following tables.

ROWING.

YALE VS. HARVARD—VARSITY EIGHTS.

YALE and Harvard eights have rowed fifty races, beginning in 1852 on Lake Winipiseogee at two miles, when Harvard won. In 1855 the course was changed to Springfield and lengthened to three miles. Lake Quinsigamond was the scene for nine years, and Lake Saltonstall for 1869. After an interval of seven years the crews in 1876-77 went to Springfield, Mass., when the four-mile course was inaugurated. In 1878 the crews changed again to New London, Ct. For records prior to 1889 see 1914 ALMANAC.

YACHTING.

THE continuation of the European war prevented any effort toward holding the race for the America's Cup, originally scheduled for the Autumn of 1914. Sir Thomas Lipton's challenging yacht, Shamrock IV., remained in drydock at the Erie Basin, Brooklyn, N. Y., and neither the Resolute nor Vanitie, defending candidates, were in commission during the season of 1916. There was considerable activity in yachting circles along the Atlantic Coast and on the Great Lakes, races between the 40-foot and 50-foot class yachts being the feature of the Atlantic season. A record of the trial races between the Resolute and Vanitie during the season of 1915 is appended for reference purposes: Fifteen trials between the Resolute and the Vanitie were sailed, and the Resolute won on July 3 by 1m. 8s.; on July 7 by 1m. 6s.; on July 9 the Vanitie discontinued owing to the breaking of a gaff; on July 10 by 3m. 31s.; on July 13 by 4m. 16s.; on July 15 by 13s.; on July 17 by 26m. 12s.; on July 27 by 3m. 57s.; on August 5 by 1m. 36s. (corrected time, the Vanitie making 28s. faster actual time); on August 7 by 20m. 18s.; on August 10 by 4m. 15s., and on August 11 by 3m. 59s. The Vanitie defeated the Resolute on July 5 by 4m. 11s.; on August 3, the Resolute meeting with an accident, and on August 6 by 10m. 55s.

CHESS.

What with the Rice Memorial Masters' Tournament, set matches between Marshall and Janowski, Janowski and Jaffe, and Showalter and Whitaker, the tours of Capablanca and Marshall and record-breaking performances by Marshall and Kostic in simultaneous and blindfold play, in addition to the various State, league and club contests, including the intercollegiate tournaments, the chess players of the United States enjoyed a full season of activity during the year 1916, in spite of the war conditions which affected the game so seriously abroad and prevented the holding of any international tournaments of the first rank.

QUADRANGULAR COLLEGE CHESS LEAGUE.

Twenty-fourth annual tournament between Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, played in New York, December 22, 23, and 24, 1915. Won by Columbia, 10½ to 1½; second, Princeton, with 6 to 6; third, Harvard, with 5½ to 6½; fourth, Yale, with 2 to 10. The members of the winning Columbia team and their scores were: H. E. Leede, 2—1; A. J. Mandell, 3—0; E. F. Korkus, 2—1; N. W. Kempf, 3—0. The record: Columbia, 11 wins; Harvard, 9; Yale 2; Princeton, 1. 1909, Harvard and Yale tied.

TRIANGULAR COLLEGE CHESS LEAGUE.

The seventeenth meeting of the league, composed of Cornell, Pennsylvania and Brown, took place in New York on December 27 and 28, 1915, Brown not being represented. Pennsylvania won with totals of 5½ to 2½, losing the first match by 2½ to 1½ and winning the second by 4—0. The College of the City of New York was admitted to membership. The winning Pennsylvania team: J. Kline, 2; B. Winkelman, 1½; J. Davis, 1; E. S. Jackson, 1. The record: Pennsylvania, 9; Cornell, 6. Pennsylvania tied once with Brown and once with Cornell.

INTERNATIONAL ATHLETIC COMPETITION.

A team of five American athletes, selected by the Amateur Athletic Union, competed throughout Scandinavia during the Autumn of 1916. During the contests abroad the team took part in seven meets, entering one or more men in forty-nine events. Without a single exception the American athletes finished among the first three.

Fred Murray of the Olympic Club of San Francisco took part in thirteen events, including hurdles, sprints, jumps and shot-put, in addition to running on the relay team, and his record shows that he won three firsts, six seconds and three thirds. Joe Loomis of the Chicago Athletic Association specialized in the sprints and jumps, winning five firsts, one second and one third in seven starts.

Robert Simpson of the Missouri Agricultural College track team competed eleven times in the hurdles, sprints and broad jumps and was first four times, second four times and third three times. Ted Meredith, formerly of the University of Pennsylvania, started in seven middle distance races, winning two, being second in three and finishing third in two.

Andy Ward of the Chicago Athletic Association started four times and wound up with a record of two firsts, one second and one third. The relay team, consisting of Loomis, Murray, Simpson and Ward, won every one of the seven races in which it competed.

The records of the athletes follow:

Name.	Events.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Loomis	7	5	1	1
Simpson	11	4	4	3
Murray	13	3	6	4

BOXING.

PROFESSIONAL.

LACK of space precludes the recording of bouts other than those between pugilists of prominence. Abbreviations: K. O., knockout; D., draw; R. D., referee's decision; P. V., popular verdict; F., foul.

1916 was marked in pugilism by several bouts in which large purses, attendance and gate receipts lifted them above the usual run of boxing contests. On March 25, Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, and Frank Moran boxed ten rounds at Madison Square Garden in New York City for a purse of $71,250 offered by Tex Rickard, the promoter of the Johnson-Jeffries battle at Reno, Nev., July 4, 1910. Willard easily won the popular verdict and received $47,500 as his share of the purse while Moran received $23,750. The paid and complimentary admissions amounted to 10,140 and the gross gate receipts to $151,524. Moran also met Jack Dillon in a ten-round bout at Washington Park, Brooklyn, on June 29, and Dillon was accorded the popular verdict by a majority of the 6,396 spectators who paid $28,521 in admission fees, according to the figures announced by the promoters of the contest. The pugilists' share of the receipts was not made public.

Three American amateur boxers, John Maloney, St. Rita Catholic Club, Philadelphia, Pa., William Spengler, Union Settlement Club, New York City and John Karpenski, Cleveland A. C., Cleveland, Ohio, competed in a series of amateur tournaments in Scandinavia during March, winning a large majority of their bouts.

PUGILISTIC CHAMPIONS AND RECEIPTS.

All attempts to designate and classify the pugilistic champions and title holders are more or less arbitrary because of the fact that few such champions won and defended the championships at the same weight. Among the lighter weight boxers it is not at all unusual for a pugilist to be forced from one class into the next higher by growth and increased weight. The following list, dating from 1890, is generally accepted by critics and boxers as being the correct classification, although holders did not always win title from previous champions:

LONG DISTANCE SWIMS.

June 23, Norfolk, Va.—Charles Durborow of Philadelphia swam from Cape Charles to Cape Henry, a distance of 18 miles, in 8h. 42m.

July 30, Boston, Mass.—Charles Toth, Boston, won a race from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light in 6h.; none of the other competitors finished.

August 18, London, England—Miss Eileen Lee swam 36 1-4 miles in the Thames River from Teddington Lock to Wapping and back to Kew Bridge, aided by the tide, in 10h. 17m.

August 19, Boston, Mass.—Henry Miren, 18 years old, bettered all records for the swim from Charlestown Bridge to Boston Light, 4h. 54m. 30s. The best previous performance was 5h. 15m. 40s.

August 20, Boston, Mass.—Henry F. Sullivan of Lowell was declared the winner over Charles Toth in a swimming race between Race Point, Provincetown, and Nantasket Beach. Toth was taken from the water when a shark circled about him after he had covered 17 1-2 miles in a little more than 14h. Sullivan covered 25 miles. His followers said he was in the water 20h. 27m.

September 9, Boston, Mass.—Charles Toth of the L Street Swimming Club won the New England amateur 10-mile swimming championship in 7h. 46m. in the Charles River basin. Twenty-three minutes slower, Walter Dunn, his clubmate, finished second. They were the only survivors of nine.

September 10, Philadelphia, Pa.—Charles E. Durborow swam 36 1-2 miles in the Delaware River, with the tide, in 13h.

September 12, New York City—L. J. Goodwin, New York A. C., the American long distance champion, won the 5-mile metropolitan championship from the Columbia Yacht Club to Spuyten Duyvil. Owing to darkness, the distance covered was more than 5 miles, and Goodwin was in the water about 2 1-2h.

September 17, Philadelphia, Pa.—Capt. Alfred G. Brown of New York, one of this country's best professional swimmers, swam from Chester to Philadelphia, in the Delaware River, in 5h. 58m. He started from Market St. wharf, Chester, at 12.19 P. M., and finished at Walnut St. wharf, Philadelphia, at 6.17 o'clock, covering a distance of 16 3-4 miles.

September 25, New York City—Ida Eliionsky and her brother Henry, both of Lowell, Mass., swam around Manhattan Island, starting from the Battery at 6 A. M., a distance of about 40 miles, in 11h. 35m., aided by the tide. Henry Eliionsky swam with his hands and feet shackled.

The New York and New Jersey Cricke Association defeated the Metropolitan District Cricket League on August 17 by 312 to 122.

The Interstate game between Rhode Island and Massachusetts on July 4 was drawn on account of rain.

The game between Rhode Island District League and New Bedford Cricket League on Septe .ber 4 resulted in a tie, 84 runs each

The Interstate League championship (Philadelphia) was won by the Centennial.

The Inter-City game between New York and Philadelphia, played on September 1 and 13, e ded in a draw.

Haverford College won the Philadel phia Cup championship.

Merion Cricket Club won the A ssociated Cricket Club championship.

The following New York cricketers were killed in the European war during 1916: H. V. Tattersall (Manhattan), L. A. Care (Kings County), H. Lomas (Richmond County).

There was no first class cricket in England due to the war and the annual matches between Oxford University and Cambridge University and the Eton vs. Harrow games did not take place.

H. Livingston of the Pittsburgh Field Club established a record for the United States by scoring three consecutive centuries in one week in a tournament held in Chicago in August, 1907; a similar feat was performed by H. N. R. Coblet in Canada in a tournament held in Vancouver, British Columbia, in August, 1906. H. V. Hordern of the University of Pennsylvania established a record for the United States and Canada by securing 213 wickets during 1907. J. B. King and F. F. Kelly are the only two bowlers who have taken over 2,000 wickets. A. C. MacLaren scored 424 for Lancashire vs. Somerset at Taunton, England, July, 1895—the record in a first-class match. A. F. J. Collins, playing at Clifton June, 1899, for Clarke's House against North Town, scored 628, not out—the record in any match. Melbourne University scored 1,094 runs against Essenden at Melbourne (Australia), 1898—the highest authenticated record. In a match between A. E. Stoddart's English team and New South Wales 1,739 runs were scored—a record in first-class cricket. The longest partnership on record was 623 runs by Captain Oakes and Private Fitzgerald, First Royal Munster Fusiliers vs. Army Service Corps at Curragh, 1895. In a small match in Australia F. R. Spofforth bowled down all 10 wickets of his opponents in each inning—a feat without parallel. F. R. Spofforth on the Australian tour in 1878 took 764 wickets—a world's record. Dr. W. G. Grace, the world's greatest cricketer, died October 23, 1915. He hit up 217 centuries during his career, which will not likely ever be equalled.

Best records in the United States and Canada are by G. S. Patterson eleven playing against A. M. Woods eleven at Philadelphia, scoring 689 runs, in 1894. Australians against Vancouver scored 633 for 8 wickets in 1913. J. B. King scored 344 runs for Belmont against Merion B. in 1906. W. Robertson, 206, not out, and A. G. Sheath, 118, not out, scored 340 runs in partnership, without the loss of a wicket, at San Francisco in 1894. Smallest score, Americas 0 against Roseville at Guttenberg, N. J., in 1897. The smallest score in international match in United States, West Indians 13 against Australians, 1913. Smallest score in Canada, Winnipeg 6 against Australians, 1913. Largest score in the Metropolitan District Cricket League Championship, New Jersey Athletic Club 385 runs for 5 wickets against Manhattan, at Bayonne, N. J., 1897.

Seven centuries in a season, P. J. Higgins of Los Angeles in 1912, 159, 100, 100, 121, 132, 110, 240.

G. S. Patterson of the Germantown C. C. scored 1,748 runs in season of 1892—a record for the United States. Rev. F. W. Terry of Toronto C. C. scored 1,509 runs in season of 1892—a record for Canada.

THE LEAGUE OF AMERICAN SPORTSMEN

This league was organized for the purpose of protecting the game and game fishes, the long insectivorous and other innocent birds. President—G. O. Shields, 1110 Simpson Street, New York City. Secretary—H. M. Beach, 308 Broadway, Paterson, N. J. Treasurer—J. Adams Brown, 41 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York City.

THE HALL OF FAME.

MARCH 5, 1900, the Council of New York University accepted a gift of $100,000, afterward increased to $250,000, from a donor, whose name was withheld, for the erection and completion on University Heights, New York City, of a building to be called "The Hall of Fame for Great Americans." A structure was built in the form of a terrace with superimposed colonnade connecting the University Hall of Philosophy with the Hall of Languages. On the ground floor is a museum 200 feet long by 40 feet wide, consisting of a corridor and six halls to contain mementoes of the names that are inscribed above. The colonnade over this is 600 feet long with provision for 150 panels, each about 2 feet by 6 feet, each to bear the name of a famous American.

Only persons who shall have been dead ten or more years are eligible to be chosen. Fifteen classes of citizens were recommended for consideration, to wit: Authors and editors, business men, educators, inventors, missionaries and explorers, philanthropists and reformers, preachers and theologians, scientists, engineers and architects, lawyers and judges, musicians, painters and sculptors, physicians and surgeons, rulers and statesmen, soldiers and sailors, distinguished men and women outside the above classes. Fifty names were to be inscribed on the tablets at the beginning, and five additional names every fifth year thereafter, until the year 2000, when the 150 inscriptions will be completed. In case of failure to fill all the panels allotted, the vacancies are to be filled in a following year.

In February, 1904, the plan was announced of a Hall of Fame for Women near the former, with places for 50 tablets. Its foundation has been begun.

The rules prescribed that the council should invite nominations from the public. Every nomination seconded by a member of the University Senate should be submitted to an electorate of one hundred eminent citizens selected by the council. Chancellor Emeritus MacCracken presides in the Senate when the Hall of Fame is considered. Address University Heights, New York City.

In October, 1900, the University Senate received the ballots of the electors. Of the one hundred judges selected ninety-seven voted. The number of names which had been submitted to them was 252. Of these each judge returned a vote for fifty. The rule required that no candidate receiving less than fifty-one votes could be accepted. The returns showed that but twenty-nine candidates received the required number and were chosen. These were as follows: George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Daniel Webster, Benjamin Franklin, Ulysses S. Grant, John Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry W. Longfellow, Robert Fulton, Washington Irving, Jonathan Edwards, Samuel F. B. Morse, David G. Farragut, Henry Clay, Nathaniel Hawthorne, George Peabody, Robert E. Lee, Peter Cooper, Eli Whitney, John J. Audubon, Horace Mann, Henry Ward Beecher, James Kent, Joseph Story, John Adams, William E. Channing, Gilbert Stuart and Asa Gray.

In October, 1905, under the rules named above, the Senate received the ballots of 95 electors out of 101 appointed, of whom only 85 undertook to consider the names of women. A majority of 51 was demanded, but in the case of the names of women, a majority of only 47. The following persons were found to be duly chosen: John Quincy Adams, 59; James Russell Lowell, 58; William Tecumseh Sherman, 58; James Madison, 56; John Greenleaf Whittier, 53; Mary Lyon, 58; Emma Willard, 50, and Maria Mitchell, 48.

The hall was dedicated May 30, 1901, when twenty-five or more National associations each unveiled one of the bronze tablets in the colonnade, and on May 30, 1907, eleven new tablets were unveiled, orations being given by the Governors of New York and Massachusetts.

In October, 1910, the next ballot was taken, the number cast being 97 and the number required for a choice being 51. The following persons had the requisite number of votes: Harriet Beecher Stowe, 74; Oliver Wendell Holmes, 69; Edgar Allan Poe, 69; James Fenimore Cooper, 62; Phillips Brooks, 60; William Cullen Bryant, 59; Frances E. Willard, 56; Andrew Jackson, 53, George Bancroft, 53; John Lothrop Motley, 51. There were 211 nominees.

The fourth quinquennial election in 1915 secured the ballots of ninety-seven electors, three electors having died within the year, nine names were admitted, viz., Alexander Hamilton, 70 votes; Mark Hopkins, 69; Francis Parkman, 68; Elias Howe, 61; Joseph Henry, 56; Rufus Choate, 52; Daniel Boone, 52; with one woman, Charlotte Cushman, 53. Of these Hamilton and Agassiz had been elected in 1905 to the separate hall proposed for famous foreign-born Americans. When the Constitution was amended in 1914, to do away with the line of discrimination between native-born and foreign-born, it was required that the four foreign-born, already chosen, be re-elected in competition with the native-born put in nomination. The two above named were approved, while John Paul Jones and Roger Williams lacked a majority, but remain in nomination for the year 1920. The total names admitted in the four quinquennial elections is 50 men and 6 women. The hall has recently received $27,000 toward its completion and $10,000 toward its endowment.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS.

THE Conference Committee on National Preparedness was organized on June 3, 1915, in New York City, by delegates from National defence societies, for the purpose of co-ordinating the efforts of various National defence societies, so that National preparedness may be attained with greater efficiency and economy, and without duplication of effort.

The societies represented by delegates in the Conference Committee are: National Security League, American Legion, Institute of Radio Engineers, United States Power Squadron, American Red Cross, Aero Club of America, American Society Aeronautic Engineers, Patriotic Education Society, Woman's Section of Movement for National Preparedness.

The officers of the committee are: Chairman—Henry A. Wise Wood. Vice-Chairman—Alexander M. White. Treasurer—Raymond B. Price. Recording Secretary—James E. Clark.

The office of the Secretary and the committee's headquarters are at 30 East Forty-second Street, New York City.

THE NEW UNITED STATES ARMY LAW.

AN Act for making further and more effectual provision for the national defence, and for other purposes. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Army of the United States shall consist of the regular army, the volunteer army, the Officers' Reserve Corps, the enlisted reserve corps, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and such other land forces as are now or may hereafter be authorized by law.

COMPOSITION OF THE REGULAR ARMY.

SEC. 2. The regular army of the United States, including the existing organizations, shall consist of sixty-four regiments of Infantry, twenty-five regiments of Cavalry, twenty-one regiments of Field Artillery, a Coast Artillery Corps, the brigade, division, army corps, and army headquarters, with their detachments and troops, a General Staff Corps, an Adjutant General's Department, an Inspector General's Department, a Judge Advocate General's Department, a Quartermaster Corps, a Medical Department, a Corps of Engineers, an Ordnance Department, a Signal Corps, the officers of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, the Militia Bureau, the detached officers, the detached non-commissioned officers, the chaplains, the Regular Army Reserve, all organized as hereinafter provided, and the following as now authorized by law: The officers and enlisted men on the retired list; the additional officers; the professors, the Corps of Cadets, the general army service detachment, and detachments of Cavalry, Field Artillery, and Engineers, and the band of the United States Military Academy; the post non-commissioned staff officers; the recruiting parties, the recruit depot detachments, and unassigned recruits; the service school detachments; the disciplinary guards; the disciplinary organizations; the Indian Scouts; and such other officers and enlisted men as are now or may be hereafter provided for: Provided, That hereafter the enlisted personnel of all organizations of the regular army shall at all times be maintained at a strength not below the minimum strength fixed by law: Provided further, That the total enlisted force of the line of the regular army, excluding the Philippine Scouts and the enlisted men of the Quartermaster Corps, of the Medical Department, and of the Signal Corps, and the unassigned recruits, shall not at any one time, except in the event of actual or threatened war or similar emergency in which the public safety demands it, exceed one hundred and seventy-five thousand men: Provided further, That the unassigned recruits at depots or elsewhere shall at no time, except in time of war, exceed by more than seven per centum the total authorized enlisted strength.

COMPOSITION OF BRIGADES, DIVISIONS, ETC.

SEC. 3. The mobile troops of the regular army of the United States shall be organized, as far as practicable, into brigades and divisions. The President is authorized, in time of actual or threatened hostilities, or when in his opinion the interests of the public service demand it, to organize the brigades and divisions into such army corps or armies as may be necessary. The typical infantry brigade shall consist of a headquarters and three regiments of Infantry. The typical Cavalry brigade shall consist of a headquarters and three regiments of Cavalry. The typical Field Artillery brigade shall consist of a headquarters and three regiments of Field Artillery. The typical Infantry division shall consist of a headquarters, three Infantry brigades, one regiment of Cavalry, one Field Artillery brigade, one regiment of Engineers, one Field Signal battalion, one aero squadron, one ammunition train, one supply train, one engineer train, and one sanitary train. The typical Cavalry division shall consist of a headquarters, three Cavalry brigades, one regiment of Field Artillery (horse), one battalion of mounted Engineers, one field signal battalion (mounted), one aero squadron, one ammunition train, one supply train, one engineer train, and one sanitary train. The typical army corps shall consist of a headquarters, two or more Infantry divisions, one or more Cavalry brigades or a Cavalry division, One Field Artillery brigade, one telegraph battalion, and one field signal battalion, and such ammunition, supply, engineer, and sanitary trains as the President may deem necessary. A brigade, a division, an army corps, and an army headquarters shall consist of such officers, enlisted men, and civilians as the President may prescribe. Each supply train, ammunition train, sanitary train, and engineer train shall consist of such officers and enlisted men and shall be organized as the President may prescribe, the line officers necessary therewith to be detailed under the provisions of sections twenty-six and twenty-seven, Act of Congress approved February second, nineteen hundred and one. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the President from increasing or decreasing the number of organizations prescribed for the typical brigades, divisions, and army corps, or from prescribing new and different organizations and personnel as the efficiency of the service may require.

GENERAL OFFICERS OF THE LINE.

SEC. 4. Officers commissioned to and holding in the army the office of a general officer shall hereafter be known as general officers of the line; officers commissioned to and holding in the army an office other than that of a general officer, but to which the rank of a general officer is attached, shall be known as general officers of the staff. The number of general officers of the line now authorized by law is hereby increased by four Major Generals and nineteen Brigadier Generals: Provided, That hereafter in time of peace Major Generals of the line shall be appointed from officers of the grade of Brigadier General of the line, and Brigadier Generals of the line shall be appointed from officers of the grade of Colonel of the line of the regular army.

THE GENERAL STAFF CORPS.

SEC. 5. The General Staff Corps shall consist of one Chief of Staff, detailed in time of peace from Major Generals of the line; two assistants to the Chief of Staff, who shall be general officers of the line, one of whom, not above the grade of Brigadier General, shall be the President of the Army War College; ten Colonels; ten Lieutenant Colonels; 15 Majors, and 17 Captains, to be detailed from corresponding grades in the army, as in this section hereinafter provided. All officers detailed in the General Staff Corps shall be detailed therein for periods of four years, unless sooner relieved. While serving in the General Staff Corps officers may be temporarily assigned to duty with any branch of the army. Upon being relieved from duty in the General Staff Corps officers shall return to the branch of the army in which they hold permanent commissions, and no officer shall be eligible to a further detail in the General Staff Corps until he shall have served two years with the branch of the army in which commissioned, except in time of actual or threatened hostilities. Section twenty-seven of the Act of Congress approved February second, nineteen hundred and one, shall apply to each position vacated by officers below the grade of general officer detailed in the General Staff Corps.

Not more than one-half of all the officers detailed in said corps shall at any time be stationed, or assigned to or employed upon any duty, in or near the District of Columbia. All officers detailed in said corps shall be exclusively employed in the study of military problems, the preparation of plans for the national defence, and the utilization of the military forces in time of war, in investigating and reporting upon the efficiency and state of preparedness of such forces for service in peace or war, or on appropriate General Staff duties in connection with troops, including the National Guard, or as military attachés in foreign countries, or on other duties, not of an administrative nature, on which they can be lawfully and properly employed: Provided, That no officer shall be detailed as a member of the General Staff Corps, other than the Chief of Staff and the general officers herein provided for as assistants to the Chief of Staff, except upon the recommendation of a board of five officers not below the rank of Colonel, who shall be selected by the President or the Secretary of War, and neither the Chief of Staff nor more than two other members of the General Staff Corps, nor any officer not a member of said corps, who shall have been stationed or employed on any duty in or near the District of Columbia within one year prior to the date of convening of any such board, shall be detailed as a member thereof. No recommendation made by any such board shall, for more than one year after the making of such recommendation or at any time after the convening of another such board, unless again recommended by the new board, be valid as a basis for the detail of any officer as a member of the General Staff Corps; and no alteration whatever shall be made in any report or recommendation of any such board, either with or without the consent of members thereof, after the board shall have submitted such report or recommendation and shall have adjourned sine die: Provided further, That the War College shall remain fully subject to the supervising, co-ordinating, and informing powers conferred by law upon members of the General Staff Corps, and officers for duty as instructors or students in or as attachés of said college may be selected and detailed freely from among members of said corps, but any officer so selected and detailed other than one director shall thereupon cease to be a member of said corps and shall not be eligible for redetail therein so long as he shall remain on said duty; and no officer on the active list of the army shall, for more than thirty days in any calendar year, be attached to or assigned to duty in the War College in any capacity other than that of President, director, instructor, or student, or, unless a member of the General Staff Corps, be attached to or employed in the office of the Chief of Staff: Provided further, That the organizations heretofore existing in or in connection with the office of the Chief of Staff under the designations of the mobile army division and the Coast Artillery division be, and they are hereby, abolished and shall not be re-established. The business heretofore transacted in said divisions, except such as comes clearly within the general powers specified in and conferred upon members of the General Staff Corps by the organic Act of Congress approved February fourteenth, nineteen hundred and three, is hereby transferred as follows, to wit, to the office of the Chief of Coast Artillery, all business apportioned to that office by law or army regulations at the time of the creation of the Coast Artillery division of the office of the Chief of Staff; to the office of the Adjutant General or other bureau or bureaus concerned, all other business; and, subject to the exercise of the supervising, co-ordinating, and informing powers conferred upon members of the General Staff Corps by the Act of Congress last hereinbefore cited, the business transferred by this proviso to certain bureaus or offices shall hereafter be transacted exclusively by or under the direction of the respective heads thereof; and the Chief of Coast Artillery shall be an additional member of the General Staff Corps and shall also be advisor to and informant of the Chief of Staff in respect to the business under his charge: Provided further, That hereafter members of the General Staff Corps shall be confined strictly to the discharge of the duties of the general nature of those specified for them in this section and in the organic Act of Congress last hereinbefore cited, and they shall not be permitted to assume or engage in work of an administrative nature that pertains to established bureaus or officers of the War Department, or that, being assumed or engaged in by members of the General Staff Corps, would involve impairment of the responsibility or initiative of such bureaus or offices, or would cause injurious or unnecessary duplication of or delay in the work thereof: Provided further, That all pay and allowances shall be forfeited by any superior for any period during which, by his order or his permission, or by reason of his neglect, any subordinate shall violate any of the foregoing provisions of this section: Provided further, That if any officer detailed in the General Staff Corps, or as an officer of any staff corps or department of the army, shall be promoted to the next higher grade while so serving he may be permitted to serve out the period of his detail, and the number of officers in the organization in which he shall be serving and in the grade to which he shall have been promoted shall be increased by one for such time as he shall be an additional number in said organization and grade; but the whole number of officers detailed to said organization shall at no time exceed the aggregate of the numbers allowed to the several grades thereof by law other than this proviso.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 6. The Adjutant General's Department shall consist of the Adjutant General with the rank of Brigadier General; seven Adjutants General with the rank of Colonel; thirteen Adjutants General with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; and thirty Adjutants General with the rank of Major.

THE INSPECTOR GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 7. The Inspector General's Department shall consist of one Inspector General with the rank of Brigadier General; four Inspectors General with the rank of Colonel; eight Inspectors General with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; and sixteen Inspectors General with the rank of Major.

THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 8. The Judge Advocate General's Department shall consist of one Judge Advocate General with the rank of Brigadier General; four Judge Advocates with the rank of Colonel; seven Judge Advocates with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel; and twenty Judge Advocates with the rank of Major: Provided, That acting Judge Advocates may be detailed under the provisions of existing law for separate brigades and for separate general court-martial jurisdictions, and when not immediately required for service with a geographical department, tactical division, separate brigade, or other separate general court-martial jurisdiction, acting Judge Advocates may be assigned to such other legal duty as the exigencies of the service may require: Provided further, That, of the vacancies created in the Judge Advocate General's Department by this act, one such vacancy, not below the grade of Major, shall be filled by the appointment of a person from civil life, not less then forty-five nor more than fifty years of age, who shall have been for ten years a Judge of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands, shall have served for two years as a Captain in the regular or volunteer army, and shall be proficient in the Spanish language and laws: Provided further, That so much of the Act of Congress approved August twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and twelve, as relates to the detachment or detail of officers for duty in the Judge Advocate General's Department shall hereafter be held to apply only to the acting Judge Advocates authorized by law; and hereafter no officer shall be or remain detached from any command or assigned to any duty or station with intent to enable or aid him to pursue the study of law: And provided further, That no officer of the Judge Advocate General's Department below the rank of Colonel shall be promoted therein until he shall have successfully passed a written examination before a board consisting of not less than two officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department to be designated by the Secretary of War, such examination to be prescribed by the Secretary of War and to be held at such time anterior to the accruing of the right to promotion as may be for the best interests of the service: Provided, That should any officer in the grade of Major of the Judge Advocate General's Department fail in his physical examination and be found incapacitated for service by reason of physical disability contracted in the line of duty, he shall be retired with the rank to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted; but if he should be found disqualified for promotion for any other reason, a second examination shall not be allowed, but the Secretary of War shall appoint a board of review to consist of two officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department superior in rank to the officer examined, none of whom shall have served as a member of the board which examined him. If the unfavorable finding of the examining board is concurred in by the board of review, the officer reported disqualified for promotion shall be honorably discharged from the service with one year's pay. If the action of the examining board is disapproved by the board of review, the officer shall be considered qualified and shall be promoted: Provided further, That any Lieutenant Colonel of the Judge Advocate General's Department who, at his first examination for promotion to the grade of Colonel, has been found disqualified for such promotion for any reason other than physical disability incurred in the line of duty shall be suspended from promotion and his right thereto shall pass successively to such officers next below him in rank as are or may become eligible to promotion under existing law during the period of his suspension; and any such officer suspended from promotion shall be re-examined as soon as practicable after the expiration of one year from the date of the completion of the examination that resulted in his suspension; and if on such re-examination he is found qualified for promotion, he shall again become eligible thereto; but if he is found disqualified by reason of physical disability incurred in line of duty in either examination, he shall be retired with the rank to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted; and if he is not found disqualified by reason of such physical disability, but is found disqualified for promotion for any other reason in the second examination, he shall be retired without promotion.

THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS.

SEC. 9. The Quartermaster Corps shall consist of one Quartermaster General with the rank of Major General; two assistants to the Quartermaster General with the rank of Brigadier General; twenty-one Colonels; twenty-four Lieutenant Colonels; sixty-eight Majors; one hundred and eighty Captains; and the pay clerks now in active service, who shall hereafter have the rank, pay, and allowances of a Second Lieutenant, and the President is hereby authorized to appoint and commission them, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, Second Lieutenants in the Quartermaster Corps, United States Army. The total enlisted strength of the Quartermaster Corps and the number in each grade shall be limited and fixed from time to time by the President in accordance with the needs of the army, and shall consist of Quartermaster Sergeant, senior grade; Quartermaster Sergeants; Sergeants, first class; Sergeants; Corporals; cooks; privates, first class; and privates. Provided, That the master electricians now authorized by law for the Quartermaster Corps shall hereafter be known as Quartermaster Sergeants, senior grade, and shall be included in the number of Quartermaster Sergeants, senior grade, herein authorized: And provided further, That all work pertaining to construction and repair that has heretofore been done by or under the direction of officers of the Quartermaster Corps shall, except as otherwise now provided by laws or regulations, hereafter be done by or under the direction of officers of said corps.

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 10. The Medical Department shall consist of one Surgeon General, with the rank of Major General during the active service of the present incumbent of that office, and thereafter with the rank of Brigadier General, who shall be chief of said department, a Medical Corps, a Medical Reserve Corps within the limit of time fixed by this act, a Dental Corps, a Veterinary Corps, and enlisted force, the Nurse Corps and contract surgeons as now authorized by law, the commissioned officers of which shall be citizens of the United States.

The Medical Corps shall consist of commissioned officers below the grade of Brigadier General, proportionally distributed among the several grades as in the Medical Corps now established by law. The total number of such officers shall approximately be equal to, but not exceed, except as hereinafter provided, seven for every one thousand of the total enlisted strength of the regular army authorized from time to time by law; Provided, That if by reason of a reduction by law in the authorized enlisted strength of the army aforesaid, the total number of officers in the Medical Corps commissioned previously to such reduction shall for the time being exceed the equivalent of seven to one thousand of such reduced enlisted strength no original appointment to commissioned rank in said corps shall be made until the total number of commissioned officers thereof shall have been reduced below the equivalent of seven to the thousand of the said reduced enlisted strength, nor thereafter so as to make the total number of commissioned officers thereof in excess of the equivalent of seven to the thousand of said reduced enlisted strength; and no promotion shall be made above the grade of Captain in said corps until the number of officers in the grade above that of Captain to which the promotion is due shall have been reduced below the proportional number authorized for such grade on the basis of the reduced enlisted strength, nor thereafter so as to make the number of officers in such grade in excess of the proportional number authorized on the basis of said reduced enlisted strength: Provided further, That when in time of war the regular army shall have been increased by virtue of the provisions of this or any other act, the medical officers appointed to meet such increase shall be honorably discharged from the service of the United States when the reduction of the enlisted strength of the army shall take place: Provided further, That persons hereafter commissioned in the Medical Corps shall be citizens of the United States between the ages of twenty-two and thirty years and shall be promoted to the grade of Captain upon the completion of five years' service in the Medical Corps and upon passing the examinations prescribed by the President for promotion to the grade of Captain in the Medical Corps: Provided further, That relative rank among Captains in the Medical Corps, who have or shall have attained that rank by operation of law after a period of service fixed thereby, shall be determined by counting all the service rendered by them as officers in said corps and as assistant surgeons in the regular army, subject, however, to loss of files by reason of sentence of court-martial or by reason of failure to pass examination for promotion: Provided further, That hereafter the President shall be authorized to detail not to exceed five officers of the Medical Department of the army for duty with the military relief division of the American National Red Cross.

The enlisted force of the Medical Department shall consist of the following personnel, who shall not be included in the effective strength of the army nor counted as a part of the enlisted force provided by law: Master hospital Sergeants, hospital Sergeants, Sergeants (first-class), Sergeants, Corporals, cooks, horseshoers, saddlers, farriers, mechanics, privates (first-class), and privates: Provided, That master hospital Sergeants shall be appointed by the Secretary of War, but no person shall be appointed master hospital Sergeant until he shall have passed a satisfactory examination under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe before a board of one or more medical officers as to his qualifications for the position, including knowledge of pharmacy, and demonstrated his fitness therefor by service of not less than twelve months as hospital Sergeant or Sergeant, first-class, Medical Department, or as Sergeant, first-class, in the Hospital Corps now established by law; and no person shall be designated for such examination except by written authority of the Surgeon General: Provided further, That original enlistments for the Medical Department shall be made in the grade of private, and re-enlistments and promotions of enlisted men therein, except as hereinbefore prescribed, and transfers thereto from the enlisted force of the line of other staff departments and corps of the army shall be governed by such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe: Provided further, That the enlisted men of the Hospital Corps who are in active service at the time of the approval of this act are hereby transferred to the corresponding grades of the Medical Department established by this act: Provided further, That the total number of enlisted men in the Medical Department shall be approximately equal to, but not exceed, except as hereinafter provided, the equivalent of five per centum of the total enlisted strength of the army authorized from time to time by law: Provided further, That in time of actual or threatened hostilities, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to enlist or cause to be enlisted in the Medical Department such additional number of men as the service may require: Provided further, That the number of enlisted men in each of the several grades designated below shall not exceed, except as hereinafter provided, the following percentages of the total authorized enlisted strength of the Medical Department, to wit: Master hospital Sergeants, one-half of one per centum; hospital Sergeants, one-half of one per centum; Sergeants, first-class, seven per centum; Sergeants, eleven per centum; Corporals, five per centum; and cooks, six per centum: Provided further, That the number of horseshoers, saddlers, farriers, and mechanics in the Medical Department shall not exceed one each to each authorized ambulance company or like organization: Provided further, That privates, first-class, of the Medical Department shall be eligible for ratings for additional pay as follows: As dispensary assistants, $2 a month; as nurse, $3 a month; as surgical assistant, $5 a month: Provided further, That no enlisted man shall receive more than one rating for additional pay under the provisions of this section, nor shall any enlisted man receive any additional pay under such rating unless he shall have actually performed the duties for which he shall be rated.

The President is hereby authorized to appoint and commission, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, dental surgeons, who are citizens of the United States between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years, at the rate of one for each one thousand enlisted men of the line of the army. Dental surgeons shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of First Lieutenants until they have completed eight years' service. Dental surgeons of more than eight but less than twenty-four years' service shall, subject to such examination as the President may prescribe, have the rank, pay, and allowances of Captains. Dental surgeons of more than twenty-four years' service shall, subject to such examination as the President may prescribe, have the rank, pay, and allowances of Major: Provided, That the total number of dental surgeons with rank, pay, and allowances of Major shall not at any time exceed fifteen: And provided further, That all laws relating to the examination of officers of the Medical Corps for promotion shall be applicable to dental surgeons.

Authority is hereby given to the Secretary of War to grant permission, by revocable license, to the American National Red Cross to erect and maintain on any military reservations within the jurisdiction of the United States buildings, suitable for the storage of supplies, or to occupy for that purpose buildings erected by the United States, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, such supplies to be available for the aid of the civilian population in case of serious national disaster.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

SEC. 11. The Corps of Engineers shall consist of one Chief of Engineers, with the rank of Brigadier General; twenty-three Colonels; thirty Lieutenant Colonels; seventy-two Majors; one hundred and fifty-two Captains; one hundred and forty-eight First Lieutenants; seventy-nine Second Lieutenants; and the enlisted men hereinafter enumerated. The Engineer troops of the Corps of Engineers shall consist of one band, seven regiments, and two mounted battalions.

Each regiment of Engineers shall consist of one Colonel; one Lieutenant Colonel; two Majors; eleven Captains; twelve First Lieutenants; six Second Lieutenants; two master engineers, senior grade; one regimental Sergeant Major; two regimental supply Sergeants; two Color Sergeants; one Sergeant bugler; one cook; one wagoner for each authorized wagon of the field and combat train, and two battalions.

Each battalion of a regiment of Engineers shall consist of one Major, one Captain, one Battalion Sergeant Major; three master engineers, junior grade; and three companies.

The enlisted force of the Corps of Engineers and the officers serving therewith shall constitute a part of the line of the army.

THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 12. The Ordnance Department shall consist of one Chief of Ordnance, with the rank of Brigadier General; ten Colonels; fifteen Lieutenant Colonels; thirty-two Majors; forty-two Captains; forty-two First Lieutenants; the Ordnance Sergeants, as now authorized by law, and such other enlisted men of grades now authorized by law as the President may direct: Provided, That Ordnance Sergeants shall be selected by the Secretary of War from the Sergeants of the line or Ordnance Department who shall have served faithfully for eight years, including four years in the grade of non-commissioned officer.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

SEC. 13. The Signal Corps shall consist of one Chief Signal Officer, with the rank of Brigadier General; three Colonels; eight Lieutenant Colonels; ten Majors; thirty Captains; seventy-five First Lieutenants; and the aviation section, which shall consist of one Colonel; one Lieutenant Colonel; eight Majors; twenty-four Captains; and one hundred and fourteen First Lieutenants, who shall be selected from among officers of the army at large of corresponding grades or from among officers of the grade below, exclusive of those serving by detail in staff corps or departments, who are qualified as military aviators, and shall be detailed to serve as aviation officers for periods of four years unless sooner relieved; and the provisions of section twenty-seven of the Act of Congress approved February second, nineteen hundred and one, are hereby extended to apply to said aviation officers and to vacancies created in any arm, corps, or department of the army by the detail of said officers therefrom; but nothing in said act or in any other law now in force shall be held to prevent the detail or redetail at any time, to fill a vacancy among the aviation officers authorized by this act, of any officer who, during prior service as an aviation officer of the aviation section, shall have become proficient in military aviation.

Aviation officers may, when qualified therefor, be rated as junior military aviators or as military aviators, but no person shall be so rated until there shall have been issued to him a certificate to the effect that he is qualified for the rating, and no certificate shall be issued to any person until an aviation examining board, which shall be composed of three officers of experience in the aviation service and two medical officers, shall have examined him, under general regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of War and published to the army by the War Department, and shall have reported him to be qualified for the rating. No person shall receive the rating of military aviator until he shall have served creditably for three years as an aviation officer with the rating of a junior military aviator.

Each aviation officer authorized by this act shall, while on duty that requires him to participate regularly and frequently in aerial flights, receive an increase of twenty-five per centum in the pay of his grade and length of service under his commission. Each duly qualified junior military aviator shall, while so serving, have the rank, pay, and allowances of one grade higher than that held by him under his commission if his rank under said commission be not higher than that of Captain, and while on duty requiring him to participate regularly and frequently in aerial flights he shall receive in addition an increase of fifty per centum in the pay of his grade and length of service under his commission. Each military aviator shall, while so serving, have the rank, pay, and allowances of one grade higher than that held by him under his commission if his rank under said commission be not higher than that of Captain, and while on duty requiring him to participate regularly and frequently in aerial flights he shall receive in addition an increase of seventy-five per centum of the pay of his grade and length of service under his commission: Provided further, That the provisions of the act of March second, nineteen hundred and thirteen, allowing increase of pay and allowances to officers detailed by the Secretary of War on aviation duty, are hereby repealed: Provided further, That hereafter married officers of the line of the army shall be eligible equally with unmarried officers, and subject to the same conditions, for detail to aviation duty; and the Secretary of War shall have authority to cause as many enlisted men of the aviation section to be instructed in the art of flying as he may deem necessary: Provided further, That hereafter the age of officers shall not be a bar to their first detail in the aviation section of the Signal Corps, and neither their age nor their rank shall be a bar to their subsequent details in said section: Provided further, That, when it shall be impracticable to obtain from the army officers suitable for the aviation section of the Signal Corps in the number allowed by law the difference between that number and the number of suitable officers actually available for duty in said section may be made up by appointments in the grade of aviator, Signal Corps, and that grade is hereby created. The personnel for said grade shall be obtained from especially qualified civilians who shall be appointed and commissioned in said grade: Provided further, That whenever any aviator shall have become unsatisfactory he shall be discharged from the army as such aviator. The base pay of an aviator, Signal Corps, shall be $150 per month, and he shall have the allowances of a master signal electrician and the same percentage of increase in pay for length of service as is allowed to a master signal electrician.

The total enlisted strength of the Signal Corps shall be limited and fixed from time to time by the President in accordance with the needs of the army, and shall consist of master signal electricians; Sergeants, first class; Sergeants; Corporals; cooks; horseshoers; private, first class, and privates; the number in each grade being fixed from time to time by the President. Authority is hereby given the President to organize, in his discretion, such part of the commissioned and enlisted personnel of the Signal Corps into such number of companies, battalions, and aero squadrons as the necessities of the service may demand.

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS.

SEC. 14. Nothing in this act shall be construed to repeal existing laws relating to the organization of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department.

CHAPLAINS.

SEC. 15. The President is authorized to appoint by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, chaplains in the army at the rate of not to exceed, including chaplains now in service, one for each regiment of Cavalry, Infantry, Field Artillery, and Engineers, and one for each one thousand two hundred officers and men of the Coast Artillery Corps, with rank, pay, and allowances as now authorized by law: Provided, That in the appointment of chaplains in the regular army, preference and priority shall be given to applicant veterans, if otherwise duly qualified and who shall not have passed the age of forty-one years at the time of application, who have rendered honorable war service in the army of the United States or who have been honorably discharged from such army.

VETERINARIANS.

SEC. 16. The President is hereby authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint veterinarians and assistant veterinarians in the army, not to exceed, including veterinarians now in service, two such officers for each regiment of Cavalry, one for every three batteries of Field Artillery, one for each mounted battalion of engineers, seventeen as inspectors of horses and mules and as veterinarians in the Quartermaster Corps, and seven as inspectors of meats for the Quartermaster Corps; and said veterinarians and assistant veterinarians shall be citizens of the United States and shall constitute the Veterinary Corps and shall be a part of the Medical Department of the army.

Hereafter a candidate for appointment as assistant veterinarian must be a citizen of the United States, between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years, a graduate of a recognized veterinary college or university, and shall not be appointed until he shall have passed a satisfactory examination as to character, physical condition, general education, and professional qualifications.

An assistant veterinarian appointed under this act shall, for the first five years of service as such, have the rank, pay, and allowances of Second Lieutenant; that after five years of service he shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of First Lieutenant; that after fifteen years of service he shall be promoted to be a veterinarian with the rank, pay, and allowances of Captain, and that after twenty years' service, he shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of a Major: Provided, That any assistant veterinarian, in order to be promoted as hereinbefore provided, must first pass a satisfactory examination, under such rules as the President may prescribe, as to professional qualifications and adaptability for the military service; and if such assistant veterinarian shall be found deficient at such examination he shall be discharged from the army with one year's pay.

The veterinarians of Cavalry and Field Artillery now in the army, together with such veterinarians of the Quartermaster Corps as are now employed in said corps, who at the date of the approval of this act shall have had less than five years' governmental service, may be appointed in the Veterinary Corps as assistant veterinarians with the rank, pay, and allowances of Second Lieutenant; those who shall have had over five years of such service may be appointed in said corps as assistant veterinarians with the rank, pay, and allowances of First Lieutenant; and those who shall have had over fifteen years of such service may be appointed in said corps as veterinarians with the rank, pay, and allowances of Captain: Provided, That no such appointment of any veterinarian shall be made unless he shall first pass satisfactorily a practical professional and physical examination as to his fitness for the military service: Provided further, That veterinarians now in the army or in the employ of the Quartermaster Corps who shall fail to pass the prescribed physical examination because of disability incident to the service and sufficient to prevent them from the performance of duty valuable to the Government shall be placed upon the retired list of the army with seventy-five per centum of the pay to which they would have been entitled if appointed in the Veterinary Corps as hereinbefore prescribed.

The Secretary of War upon recommendation of the Surgeon General of the army, may appoint in the Veterinary Corps, for such time as their services may be required, such number of reserve veterinarians as may be necessary to attend public animals pertaining to the Quartermaster Corps. Reserve veterinarians so employed shall have the pay and allowances of Second Lieutenant during such employment and no longer: Provided, That such reserve veterinarians shall be graduates of a recognized veterinary college or university and shall pass a satisfactory examination as to character, physical condition, general education, and professional qualifications in like manner as hereinbefore required of assistant veterinarians; such reserve veterinarians shall constitute a list of eligibles for appointment as assistant veterinarians, subject to all the conditions hereinbefore prescribed for the appointment of assistant veterinarians.

Within a limit of time to be fixed by the Secretary of War, candidates for appointment as assistant veterinarians who shall have passed satisfactorily the examinations prescribed for that grade by this act shall be appointed, in the order of merit in which they shall have passed such examination, to vacancies as they occur, such appointments to be for a probationary period of two years, after which time, if the services of the probationers shall have been satisfactory, they shall be permanently appointed with rank to date from the dates of rank of their probationary appointments. Probationary veterinarians whose services are found unsatisfactory shall be discharged at any time during the probationary period, or at the end thereof, and shall have no further claims against the Government on account of their probationary service.

The Secretary of War shall from time to time appoint boards of examiners to conduct the veterinary examinations hereinbefore prescribed, each of said boards to consist of three medical officers and two veterinarians.

COMPOSITION OF INFANTRY UNITS.

SEC. 17. Each regiment of Infantry shall consist of one Colonel, one Lieutenant Colonel, three Majors, fifteen Captains, sixteen First Lieutenants, fifteen Second Lieutenants, one headquarters company, one machine-gun company, one supply company, and twelve infantry companies organized into three battalions of four companies each.

The commissioned officers required for the Infantry headquarters, supply, and machine-gun companies and for the companies organized into battalions shall be assigned for those hereinbefore authorized.

COMPOSITION OF CAVALRY UNITS.

SEC. 18. Each regiment of Cavalry shall consist of one colonel, one Lieutenant Colonel, three Majors, fifteen Captains, sixteen First Lieutenants, sixteen Second Lieutenants, one headquarters troop, one machine-gun troop, one supply troop, and twelve troops organized into three squadrons of four troops each.

The commissioned officers required for the Cavalry headquarters, supply, and machine-gun troops, and for the troops organized into squadrons, shall be assigned from those hereinbefore authorized.

COMPOSITION OF FIELD ARTILLERY UNITS.

SEC. 19. The Field Artillery, including mountain artillery, light artillery, horse artillery, heavy artillery (field and siege types), shall consist of one hundred and twenty-six gun or howitzer batteries organized into twenty-one regiments.

In time of actual or threatened hostilities the President is authorized to organize such number of ammunition batteries and battalions, depot batteries and battalions, and such artillery parks with such numbers and grades of personnel and such organizations as he may deem necessary. The officers necessary for such organization shall be supplied from the Officers' Reserve Corps provided by this act and by temporary appointment as authorized by section eight of the Act of Congress approved April twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and fourteen. The enlisted men necessary for such organizations shall be supplied from the Regular Army Reserve provided by this act or from the regular army.

Each regiment of Field Artillery shall consist of one Colonel, one Lieutenant Colonel, one Captain, one headquarters company, one supply company, and such number of gun and howitzer battalions as the President may direct. Nothing shall prevent the assembling, in the same regiment, of gun and howitzer battalions of different calibres and classes.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS.

SEC. 20. The Coast Artillery Corps shall consist of one Chief of Coast Artillery, with the rank of Brigadier General; twenty-four Colonels; twenty-four Lieutenant Colonels; seventy-two Majors; three hundred and sixty Captains; three hundred and sixty First Lieutenants; three hundred and sixty Second Lieutenants, thirty-one Sergeants Major, senior grade; sixty-four Sergeants Major, junior grade; forty-one master electricians; seventy-two engineers; ninety-nine electrician Sergeants, first class; two hundred and seventy-five assistant engineers; ninety-nine electrician Sergeants, second class; one hundred and six firemen; ninety-three radio Sergeants; sixty-two master gunners; two hundred and sixty-three First Sergeants; two hundred and sixty-three supply Sergeants; two hundred and sixty-three mess Sergeants; two thousand one hundred and four Sergeants; three thousand one hundred and fifty-six Corporals; five hundred and twenty-six cooks; five hundred and twenty-six mechanics; five hundred and twenty-six buglers; five thousand two hundred and twenty-five privates, first class; fifteen thousand six hundred and seventy-five privates; and eighteen bands, organized as hereinbefore provided for the engineer band. The rated men of the Coast Artillery Corps shall consist of casemate electricians; observers, first class; plotters; chief planters; coxswains; chief loaders; observers, second class; gun commanders and gun pointers. The total number of rated men shall not exceed one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four. Coxswains shall receive $9 per month in addition to the pay of their grade.

PORTO RICO REGIMENT OF INFANTRY.

SEC. 21. The Porto Rico Regiment of Infantry of the United States Army shall hereafter have the same organization, and the same grades and numbers of commissioned officers and enlisted men, as are by this act or shall hereafter be prescribed by law for other regiments of Infantry of the army. All vacancies created by this act or occurring hereafter in commissioned offices of said regiment above the grade of Second Lieutenant and below the grade of Colonel shall, except as hereinafter provided to the contrary, be filled by promotion according to seniority in the several grades and within the regiment, subject to the examination prescribed by section three of the Act of Congress approved October first, eighteen hundred and ninety, and said section is hereby extended so as to apply in the cases of all officers below the grade of Lieutenant Colonel, who shall hereafter be examined for promotion in the Porto Rico Regiment of Infantry, except that the President may prescribe such a system of examination for the promotion of officers of said regiment as he may deem advisable.

The Colonel of said regiment shall be detailed by the President, from among officers of Infantry of the army not below the grade of Lieutenant Colonel, for a period of four years unless sooner relieved. Vacancies created by this act in the grades of Lieutenant Colonel and Major in said regiment shall be filled by appointments from the senior Captains in regimental rank of the Porto Rico regiment mentioned in the act of March fourth, nineteen hundred and fifteen; and Captains and Lieutenants of said regiment shall also be eligible for such detached service, transfer, or assignment to duty with other organizations as may be approved by the Secretary of War; but vacancies created by such detachment of officers shall not be filled by promotions or appointments.

All men hereafter enlisting in said regiment shall be natives of Porto Rico. All enlistments in the regiment shall hereafter be the same as is provided herein for the regular army, and the regiment, or any part thereof, may be ordered for service outside the island of Porto Rico. The pay and allowances of members of said regiment shall be the same as provided by law for officers and enlisted men of like grades in the regular army.

Vacancies created by this act or occurring hereafter in the grade of Second Lieutenant in said regiment shall be filled during any calendar year by the appointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, of any native of Porto Rico graduated from the United States Military Academy, and, after such appointment shall have been made or provided for, by like appointment of native citizen of Porto Rico between twenty-one and twenty-seven years of age.

Provided, That officers of the Porto Rico Regiment of Infantry, United States Army, who held commissions in the Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry on June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and eight, shall now and hereafter take rank in their grades in the same relative order held by them in said Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry on June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and eight, subject to any loss in rank due to failure to pass examinations for promotion or to sentence of court-martial.

SEC. 22. All existing laws pertaining to or affecting the United States Military Academy and civilian or military personnel on duty thereat in any capacity whatever, the officers and enlisted men on the retired list, the detached and additional officers under the Act of Congress approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, recruiting parties, recruit depots and unassigned recruits, service school detachments, United States disciplinary barracks guards, disciplinary organizations, the Philippine Scouts, and Indian Scouts shall continue and remain in force except as herein specifically provided otherwise.

ORIGINAL APPOINTMENTS TO BE PROVISIONAL.

SEC. 23. Hereafter all appointments of persons other than graduates of the United States Military Academy to the grade of Second Lieutenant in the regular army shall be provisional for a period of two years, at the close of which period such appointments shall be made permanent if the appointees shall have demonstrated, under such regulations as the President may prescribe, their suitability and moral, professional, and physical fitness for such permanent appointment, but should any appointee fail so to demonstrate his suitability and fitness, his appointment shall terminate; and should any officer become eligible for promotion to a vacancy in a higher grade and qualify therefor before the expiration of two years from the date of his original appointment, he shall receive a provisional appointment in such higher grade, which appointment shall be made permanent when he shall have qualified for permanent appointment upon the expiration of two years from the date of his original appointment, or shall terminate if he shall fail so to qualify.

INCREASE TO BE MADE IN FIVE INCREMENTS.

SEC. 24. Except as otherwise specifically provided by this act, the increases in the commissioned and enlisted personnel of the regular army provided by this act shall be made in five annual increments, each of which shall be, in each grade of each arm, corps, and department, as nearly as practicable, one-fifth of the total increase authorized for each arm, corps, and department. Officers promoted to vacancies created or caused by the addition of the first increment shall be promoted to rank from July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and those promoted to vacancies created or caused by the second increment shall be promoted to rank from July first, nineteen hundred and seventeen; those promoted to vacancies created or caused by the addition of the third increment shall be promoted to rank from July first, nineteen hundred and eighteen; those promoted to vacancies created or caused by the addition of the fourth increment shall be promoted to rank from July first, nineteen hundred and nineteen; and those promoted to vacancies created or caused by the addition of the fifth increment shall be promoted to rank from July first, nineteen hundred and twenty: Provided, That in the event of actual or threatened war or similar emergency in which the public safety demands it the President is authorized to immediately organize the entire increase authorized by this act, or so much thereof as he may deem necessary, and when, in the judgment of the President, war becomes imminent, all of said organizations that shall then be below the maximum enlisted strength authorized by law shall be raised forthwith to that strength, and shall be maintained as nearly as possible thereat so long as war, or the imminence of war, shall continue.

Vacancies in the grade of Second Lieutenant, created or caused by the increases due to this act, in any fiscal year shall be filled by appointment in the following order: (1) Of cadets graduated from the United States Military Academy during the preceding fiscal year for whom vacancies did not become available during the fiscal year in which they were graduated; (2) under the provisions of existing law, of enlisted men, including officers of the Philippine Scouts, whose fitness for promotion shall have been determined by competitive examination; (3) of members of the Officers' Reserve Corps between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years; (4) of commissioned officers of the National Guard between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years; (5) of such honor graduates, between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years, of distinguished colleges as are now or may hereafter be entitled to preference by general orders of the War Department; and (6) of candidates from civil life between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years; and the President is authorized to make the necessary rules and regulations to carry these provisions into effect: Provided, That any such original vacancies not to be filled and remaining at the time of graduation of any class at the United States Military Academy, may be filled by the appointment of members of that class; and all vacancies in the grade of Second Lieutenant not created or caused by the increases due to this act shall be filled as provided in the act making appropriation for the support of the army, approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven: Provided further, That enlisted men of the regular army who have completed one year's service with an organization may become candidates for vacancies in the grade of Second Lieutenant created or caused by the increases due to the operation of this act: Provided further, That appointments to the grade of Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers, including those created by this act, shall continue to be made as now provided by law, but that officers of the army or navy of the United States may become candidates for said appointments under the provisions of section five of the Act of Congress approved February twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and eleven, without previously vacating their commissions as officers and that the Secretary of War may, in his discretion, allow persons to become candidates without previously establishing eligibility for appointment as junior engineer under the Engineer Bureau of the War Department: Provided further, That officers appointed to original vacancies in the grade of Second Lieutenant created or caused by this act shall take lineal and relative rank according to dates of appointment, and the lineal and relative rank of Second Lieutenants appointed on the same date shall be determined under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe: Provided further, That the President may recommission persons who have heretofore held commissions in the regular army and have left the service honorably, after ascertaining that they are qualified for service physically, morally, and as to age and military fitness; such recommissioned officers shall take rank at the foot of the respective grades which they held at the time of their separation from the army: Provided further, That the provisions of existing law requiring examinations to determine fitness for promotion of officers of the army are hereby extended to include promotions to all grades below that of Brigadier General: Provided further, That examinations of officers in the grades of Major and Lieutenant Colonel shall be confined to problems involving the higher functions of staff duties and command: And provided further, That in time of war retired officers of the army may be employed on active duty, in the discretion of the President, and when so employed they shall receive the full pay and allowances of their grade: And provided further, That hereafter any retired officer, who has been or shall be detailed on active duty, shall receive the rank, pay, and allowances of the grade, not above that of Major, that he would have attained in due course of promotion if he had remained on the active list for a period beyond the date of his retirement equal to the total amount of time during which he has been detailed on active duty since his retirement.

THE DETACHED OFFICERS.

SEC. 25. That on July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, the line of the army shall be increased by eight hundred and twenty-two extra officers of the Cavalry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, and Infantry arms of the service, of grades from First Lieutenant to Colonel, inclusive, lawfully available for detachment from their proper arms for duty with the National Guard, or other duty, the usual period of which exceeds one year. Said extra officers, together with the two hundred detached officers provided for by the Act of Congress approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, shall, on and after July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, constitute the Detached Officers' List, and all positions vacated by officers assigned to said list, and the officers so assigned, shall be subject to the provisions of section twenty-seven of the Act of Congress approved February second, nineteen hundred and one, with reference to details to the staff corps. The total number of officers hereby authorized for each grade on said list entire shall be in proportion to the total number of officers of the corresponding grade now authorized by law other than this act for all of the said four arms combined, exclusive of Second Lieutenants and of the two hundred extra officers authorized by the Act of Congress approved March third, nineteen hundred and eleven, and exclusive also of the additional officers authorized by the act to restore lineal rank lost through the system of regimental promotion formerly in force; and the total number of officers hereby authorized for each grade in each of said arms on said list shall be in the proportion borne by the number of officers now authorized by law other than this act for such grade and arm to the total number of officers now authorized by law other than this act for the corresponding grade in all of the said four arms combined, exclusive of the extra and additional officers last hereinbefore specified and excluded: Provided, that all vacancies created or caused by the foregoing provisions of this section in grades above that of Second Lieutenant shall be filled by promotion according to law existing on and before the date of approval of this act, and subject to the examinations prescribed by existing law. As soon as practicable after such promotions shall have been made, there shall be detached from each arm and assigned to the Detached Officers' List a number of officers of each grade equal to the number of officers of said grade by which said arm shall have been increased by the foregoing provisions of this section; and thereafter any vacancy created or caused in any of the said arms of the service by the assignment of an officer of any grade to said Detached Officers' List shall be filled, subject to such examination as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law, by the promotion of the officer who shall be the senior in length of commissioned service of those eligible to promotion in the next lower grade in the arm in which such vacancy shall occur: Provided further, That no officer of any of said arms of the service shall be permitted to remain on said Detached Officers' List for more than forty-five days unless he shall have been actually present for duty for at least two years out of the last preceding six years with an organization composed of one or more statutory units, or the equivalent thereof, of the arm to which he shall belong. Any vacancy created in said list by the removal of any officer therefrom because he shall not have been present for duty as before prescribed in this proviso shall be filled by the transfer to said list of an officer having the same grade and belonging to the same arm as the officer whose removal from said list shall have created said vacancy; but, except as before prescribed in this proviso, all officers who shall have been assigned to said list shall remain thereon for not less than four years from the respective dates of their assignment thereto, unless in the mean time they shall have been separated entirely from the army, or shall have been promoted or appointed to higher offices, or shall have been retired from active service: Provided further, That after the apportionment of officers to said Detached Officers' List shall have been made as authorized by this act, whenever any vacancy shall have been caused in said list by the separation of an officer of any grade therefrom, such vacancy shall, except as prescribed in the last preceding proviso, be filled by the detail and assignment to said list of an officer of the corresponding grade in that arm in which there shall be found the officer of the next lower grade who at that time shall be the senior in length of commissioned service of all the officers of the said lower grade in all of the four arms hereinbefore specified; if two or more officers of different arms shall be found to have equal seniority in length of commissioned service in said lower grade, the question of seniority shall be decided by their relative standing on the list of the commissioned officers of the army: Provided further, That, with a view further to equalize inequalities in past promotions of officers of the line of the army, on July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, the Cavalry shall be increased by seventeen Colonels, and the Infantry by four Colonels, all of whom shall be additional officers in that grade, and shall not bar nor retard the promotion to which any officer would be entitled if the appointment of the said additional officers had never been authorized; and after July first, nineteen hundred and nineteen, no vacancies occurring among the said additional officers shall be filled and the offices so vacated shall cease and determine: And provided further, That for the purpose of lessening as much as possible inequalities of promotion due to the increase in the number of officers of the line of the army under the provisions of this act, any vacancies created or caused by this act in commissioned grades below that of Lieutenant Colonel in any arm of said line may, in the discretion of the President and under such regulations as he may prescribe in furtherance of the purpose stated in this proviso, be filled by the promotion or transfer without promotion of officers of other branches of the line of the army; but no such promotion or transfer shall be made in the case of any officer unless it shall have been recommended by an examining board composed of five officers, senior in rank to such officer, and of the arm to which the promotion or transfer of such officer shall have been proposed, who, after having made a personal examination of such officer and of his official record, shall have reported him qualified for service in said arm in the grade to which his promotion or transfer shall have been proposed.

RETIREMENT OF OFFICERS OF PHILIPPINE SCOUTS.

SEC. 26. Captains and Lieutenants of Philippine Scouts who are citizens of the United States shall hereafter be entitled to retirement under the laws governing the retirement of enlisted men of the regular army, except that they shall be retired in the grade held by them at the date of retirement, shall be entitled to retirement for disability under the same conditions as officers of the regular army, and that they shall receive, as retired pay, the amounts allowed by law, as retired pay and allowances of master signal electricians of the United States Army, and no more: Provided, That double time for service beyond the continental limits of the United States shall not be counted for the purposes of this section so as to reduce the actual period of service below twenty years: Provided further, That former officers of the Philippine Scouts who, because of disability occasioned by wounds received in action, have resigned or been discharged from the service, or who have heretofore served as such for a period of more than five years and have been retired as enlisted men, shall be placed upon the retired list as officers of Philippine Scouts and thereafter receive the retired pay and allowances provided by this section for other officers of Philippine Scouts: And provided further, That any former officer of Philippine Scouts who vacated his office in the Philippine Scouts by discharge or resignation on account of disability contracted in the line of duty and who was subsequently retired as an enlisted man, except any former officer of Philippine Scouts who has been retired as an enlisted man by special Act of Congress, shall be transferred to the retired list created by this section and shall thereafter receive the retired pay and allowances authorized by this section, and no more. Officers of Philippine Scouts retired under the provisions of this section shall not form part of the limited retired list now authorized by law.

ENLISTMENTS IN THE REGULAR ARMY.

SEC. 27. On and after the first day of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen, all enlistments in the regular army shall be for a term of seven years, the first three years to be in the active service with the organizations of which those enlisted form a part and, except as otherwise provided herein, the last four years in the Regular Army Reserve hereinafter provided for: Provided, That at the expiration of three years' continuous service with such organizations, either under a first or any subsequent enlistment, any soldier may be re-enlisted for another period of seven years, as above provided for in which event he shall receive his final discharge from his prior enlistment: Provided further, That after the expiration of one year's honorable service any enlisted man serving within the continental limits of the United States whose company, troop, battery, or detachment commander shall report him as proficient and sufficiently trained may, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, be furloughed to the Regular Army Reserve under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, but no man furloughed to the reserve shall be eligible to re-enlist in the service until the expiration of his term of seven years: Provided further, That in all enlistments hereafter accomplished under the provisions of this act three years shall be counted as an enlistment period in computing continuous service pay: Provided further, That any non-commissioned officer discharged with an excellent character shall be permitted at the expiration of three years in the active service, to re-enlist in the organization from which discharged with the rank and grade held by him at the time of his discharge if he re-enlists within twenty days after the date of such discharge: Provided further, That no person under the age of eighteen years shall be enlisted or mustered into the military service of the United States without the written consent of his parents or guardians, provided that such minor has such parents or guardians entitled to his custody and control: And provided further, That the President is authorized in his discretion to utilize the services of postmasters of the second, third, and fourth classes in procuring the enlistments of recruits for the army, and for each recruit accepted for enlistment in the army, the postmaster procuring his enlistment shall receive the sum of $5.

In addition to military training, soldiers while in the active service shall hereafter be given the opportunity to study and receive instruction upon educational lines of such character as to increase their military efficiency and enable them to return to civil life better equipped for industrial, commercial, and general business occupations. Civilian teachers may be employed to aid the army officers in giving such instruction, and part of this instruction may consist of vocational education either in agriculture or the mechanic arts. The Secretary of War, with the approval of the President, shall prescribe rules and regulations for conducting the instruction herein provided for, and the Secretary of War shall have the power at all times to suspend, increase, or decrease the amount of such instruction offered as may in his judgment be consistent with the requirements of military instruction and service of the soldiers.

PAY OF CERTAIN ENLISTED MEN.

SEC. 28. Hereafter the monthly pay of enlisted men of certain grades of the army created in this act shall be as follows, namely: Quartermaster Sergeant, senior grade, Quartermaster Corps; master hospital Sergeant, Medical Department; master engineer, senior grade, Corps of Engineers; and band leader, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers, $75; hospital Sergeant, Medical Department, and master engineer, junior grade, Corps of Engineers, $65; Sergeant, first-class, Medical Department, $50; Sergeant, first class, Corps of Engineers; regimental supply Sergeant, Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, and Corps of Engineers; battalion supply Sergeant, Corps of Engineers; and assistant engineer, Coast Artillery Corps, $45; assistant band leader, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers; and Sergeant bugler, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers, $40; musician, first class, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers; supply Sergeant, mess Sergeant, and stable Sergeant, Corps of Engineers; Sergeant Medical Department, $36; supply Sergeant, Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery; mess Sergeant, Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery; cook, Medical Department; horseshoer, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, and Medical Department; stable Sergeant, Infantry and Cavalry; radio Sergeant, Coast Artillery Corps; and musicians, second class, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers, $30; musician, third class, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Corps of Engineers; Corporal, Medical Department, $24; saddler, Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Corps of Engineers and Medical Department; mechanic, Infantry, Cavalry and Field Artillery and Medical Department; farrier, Medical Department; and wagoner, Infantry, Field Artillery, and Corps of Engineers, $21; private, first class, Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Medical Department, $18; Private, Medical Department, and bugler, $15. Nothing herein contained shall operate to reduce the pay or allowances now authorized by law for any grade of enlisted men of the army.

FINAL DISCHARGE OF ENLISTED MEN.

SEC. 29. No enlisted man in the regular army shall receive his final discharge until the termination of his seven-year term of enlistment except upon re-enlistment as provided for in this act or as provided by law for discharge prior to expiration of term of enlistment, but when an enlisted man is furloughed to the Regular Army Reserve his account shall be closed and he shall be paid in full to the date such furlough becomes effective, including allowances provided by law for discharged soldiers: Provided, That when by reason of death or disability of a member of the family of an enlisted man occurring after his enlistment members of his family become dependent upon him for support, he may, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, be discharged from the service of the United States or be furloughed to the Regular Army Reserve, upon due proof being made of such condition: Provided further, That when an enlisted man is discharged by purchase while in active service he shall be furloughed to the Regular Army Reserve, unless, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, he is given a final discharge from the army.

COMPOSITION OF THE REGULAR ARMY RESERVE.

SEC. 30. The Regular Army Reserve shall consist of, first, all enlisted men now in the Army Reserve or who shall hereafter become members of the Army Reserve under the provisions of existing law; second, all enlisted men furloughed to or enlisted in the Regular Army Reserve under the provisions of this act; and, third, any person holding an honorable discharge from the regular army with character reported at least good, who is physically qualified for the duties of a soldier and not over forty-five years of age who enlists in the Regular Army Reserve for a period of four years.

SEC. 31. The President is authorized to assign members of the Regular Army Reserve as reserves to particular organizations of the regular army, or to organize the Regular Army Reserve, or any part thereof, into units or detachments of any arm, corps, or department in such manner as he may prescribe, and to assign to such units and detachments officers of the regular army or of the Officers' Reserve Corps herein provided for; and he may summon the Regular Army Reserve or any part thereof for field training for a period not exceeding fifteen days in each year, the reservists to receive travel expenses and pay at the rate of their respective grades in the regular army during such periods of training; and in the event of actual or threatened hostilities he may mobilize the Regular Army Reserve in such manner as he may determine, and thereafter retain it, or any part thereof, in active service for such period as he may determine the conditions demand: Provided, That all enlistments in the regular army, including those in the Regular Army Reserve, which are in force on the date of the outbreak of war shall continue in force for one year, unless sooner terminated by order of the Secretary of War, but nothing herein shall be construed to shorten the time of enlistment prescribed: Provided further, That subject to such regulations as the President may prescribe for their proper identification, and location, and physical condition, the members of the Regular Army Reserve shall be paid semi-annually at the rate of $24 a year while in the reserve.

REGULAR ARMY RESERVE IN TIME OF WAR.

SEC. 32. When mobilized by order of the President, the members of the Regular Army Reserve shall, so long as they may remain in active service, receive the pay and allowances of enlisted men of the regular army of like grades: Provided, That any enlisted man who shall have re-enlisted in the Regular Army Reserve shall receive during such active service the additional pay now provided by law for enlisted men in his arm of the service in the second enlistment period: Provided further, That upon reporting for duty, and being found physically fit for service, members of the Regular Army Reserve shall receive a sum equal to $3 per month for each month during which they shall have belonged to the reserve, as well as the actual necessary cost of transportation and subsistence from their homes to the places at which they may be ordered to report for duty under such summons: And provided further, That service in the Regular Army Reserve shall confer no right to retirement or retired pay, and members of the Regular Army Reserve shall become entitled to pension only through disability incurred while on active duty in the service of the United States.

USE OF OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

SEC. 33. The President may, subject to such rules and regulations as in his judgment may be necessary, utilize the services of members and employés of all departments of the Government of the United States, without expense to the individual reservist, for keeping in touch with, paying, and mobilizing the Regular Army Reserve, the enlisted Reserve Corps, and other reserve organizations.

RE-ENLISTMENT IN TIME OF WAR.

SEC. 34. For the purpose of utilizing as an auxiliary to the Regular Army Reserve the services of men who have had experience and training in the regular army, or in the United States Volunteers, outside of the continental limits of the United States, in time of actual or threatened hostilities, and after the President shall by proclamation, have called upon honorably discharged soldiers of the regular army to present themselves for re-enlistment therein within a specified period, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, any person who shall have been discharged honorably from said army, with character reported as at least good, and who, having been found physically qualified for the duties of a soldier, if not over fifty years of age, shall re-enlist in the line of said army, or in the Signal, Quartermaster, or Medical Department thereof, within the period that shall be specified in said proclamation, shall receive on so re-enlisting a bounty which shall be computed at the rate of $8 for each month for the first year of the period that shall have elapsed since his last discharge from the regular army and the date of his re-enlistment therein under the terms of said proclamation; at the rate of $6 per month for the second year of such period; at the rate of $4 per month for the third year of such period; and at the rate of $2 per month for any subsequent year of such period; but no bounty in excess of $300 shall be paid to any person under the terms of this section.

ENLISTED MEN PROHIBITED FROM CIVIL EMPLOYMENT.

SEC. 35. Hereafter no enlisted man in the active service of the United States in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, respectively, whether a noncommissioned officer, musician, or private, shall be detailed, ordered, or permitted to leave his post to engage in any pursuit, business, or performance in civil life, for emolument, hire, or otherwise, when the same shall interfere with the customary employment and regular engagement of local civilians in the respective arts, trades, or professions.

SERGEANTS FOR DUTY WITH THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 36. For the purpose of assisting in the instruction of the personnel and care of property in the hands of the National Guard the Secretary of War is authorized to detail from the Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Coast Artillery Corps, Medical Department, and Signal Corps of the regular army not to exceed one thousand Sergeants for duty with corresponding organizations of the National Guard and not to exceed one hundred Sergeants for duty with the disciplinary organizations at the United States Disciplinary Barracks, who shall be additional to the Sergeants authorized by this act for the corps, companies, troops, batteries, and detachments from which they may be detailed.

THE OFFICERS' RESERVE CORPS.

SEC. 37. For the purpose of securing a reserve of officers available for service as temporary officers in the regular army, as provided for in this act and in section eight of the act approved April twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, as officers of the Quartermaster Corps and other staff corps and departments, as officers for recruit rendezvous and depots, and as officers of volunteers, there shall be organized under such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, an Officers' Reserve Corps of the regular army. Said corps shall consist of sections corresponding to the various arms, staff corps, and departments of the regular army. Except as otherwise herein provided, a member of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall not be subject to call for service in time of peace, and whenever called upon for service shall not, without his consent, be so called in a lower grade than that held by him in said Reserve Corps.

The President alone shall be authorized to appoint and commission as reserve officers in the various sections of the Officers' Reserve Corps, in all grades up to and including that of Major, such citizens as, upon examination prescribed by the President, shall be found physically, mentally, and morally qualified to hold such commissions: Provided, That the proportion of officers in any section of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall not exceed the proportion for the same grade in the corresponding arm, corps, or department of the regular army, except that the number commissioned in the lowest authorized grade in any section of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall not be limited.

All persons now carried as duly qualified and registered pursuant to section twenty-three of the Act of Congress approved January twenty-first, nineteen hundred and three, shall, for a period of three years after the passage of this act, be eligible for appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps in the section corresponding to the arm, corps, or department for which they have been found qualified, without further examination, except a physical examination, and subject to the limitations as to age and rank herein prescribed: Provided, That any person carried as qualified and registered in the grade of Colonel or Lieutenant Colonel pursuant to the provisions of said act on the date when this act becomes effective may be commissioned and recommissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps with the rank for which he has been found qualified and registered, but when such person thereafter shall become separated from the Officers' Reserve Corps for any reason the vacancy so caused shall not be filled, and such office shall cease and determine.

No person shall, except as hereinafter provided, be appointed or reappointed a Second Lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps after he shall have reached the age of thirty-two years, a First Lieutenant after he shall have reached the age of thirty-six years, a Captain after he shall have reached the age of forty years, or a Major after he shall have reached the age of forty-five years. When an officer of the Reserve Corps shall reach the age limit fixed for appointment or reappointment in the grade in which commissioned he shall be honorably discharged from the service of the United States, and be entitled to retain his official title and, on occasions of ceremony, to wear the uniform of the highest grade he shall have held in the Officers' Reserve Corps: Provided, That nothing in the foregoing provisions as to the ages of officers shall apply to the appointment or reappointment of officers of the Quartermaster, Engineer, Ordnance, Signal, Judge Advocate, and Medical sections of said Reserve Corps.

One year after the passage of this act the Medical Reserve Corps, as now constituted by law, shall cease to exist. Members thereof may be commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps, subject to the provisions of this act, or may be honorably discharged from the service. The Secretary of War may, in time of peace, order First Lieutenants of the medical section of the Officers' Reserve Corps, with their consent, to active duty in the service of the United States in such numbers as the public interests may require and the funds appropriated may permit, and may relieve them from such duty when their services are no longer necessary. While on such duty they shall receive the pay and allowances, including pay for periods of sickness and leaves of absence, of officers of corresponding rank and length of active service in the regular army.

The commissions of all officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall be in force for a period of five years unless sooner terminated in the discretion of the President. Such officers may be recommissioned, either in the same or higher grades, for successive periods of five years, subject to such examinations and qualifications as the President may prescribe and to the age limits prescribed herein: Provided, That officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall have rank therein in the various sections of said Reserve Corps according to grades and to length of service in their grades.

THE OFFICERS' RESERVE CORPS IN WAR.

SEC. 38. In time of actual or threatened hostilities the President may order officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps, subject to such subsequent physical examinations as he may prescribe, to temporary duty with the regular army in grades thereof which cannot, for the time being, be filled by promotion, or as officers in volunteer or other organizations that may be authorized by law, or as officers at recruit rendezvous and depots, or on such other duty as the President may prescribe. While such reserve officers are on such service they shall, by virtue of their commissions as reserve officers, exercise command appropriate to their grade and rank in the organizations to which they may be assigned, and shall be entitled to the pay and allowances of the corresponding grades in the regular army, with increase of pay for length of active service, as allowed by law for officers of the regular army, from the date upon which they shall be required by the terms of their orders to obey the same: Provided, That officers so ordered to active service shall take temporary rank among themselves, and in their grades in the organizations to which assigned, according to the dates of orders placing them on active service; and they may be promoted, in accordance with such rank, to vacancies in volunteer organizations or to temporary vacancies in the regular army thereafter occurring in the organizations in which they shall be serving: Provided further, That officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps shall not be entitled to retirement or retired pay, and shall be entitled to pension only for disability incurred in the line of duty and while in active service.

Any officer who, while holding a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps, shall be ordered to active service by the Secretary of War shall, from the time he shall be required by the terms of his order to obey the same, be subject to the laws and regulations for the government of the Army of the United States, in so far as they are applicable to officers whose permanent retention in the military service is not contemplated.

INSTRUCTION OF OFFICERS OF THE OFFICERS' RESERVE CORPS.

SEC. 39. To the extent provided for from time to time by appropriations for this specific purpose, the Secretary of War is authorized to order reserve officers to duty with troops or at field exercises, or for instruction, for periods not to exceed fifteen days in any one calendar year, and while so serving such officers shall receive the pay and allowances of their respective grades in the regular army: Provided, That, with the consent of the reserve officers concerned, and within the limit of funds available for the purpose, such periods of duty may be extended for reserve officers as the Secretary of War may direct: Provided further, That in time of actual or threatened hostilities, after all available officers of any section of the Officers' Reserve Corps corresponding to any arm, corps, or department of the regular army shall have been ordered into active service, officers of volunteers may be appointed in such arm, corps, or department as may be authorized by law: Provided further, That nothing herein shall operate to prevent the appointment of any officer of the regular army as an officer of volunteers before all the officers of the Officer's Reserve Corps or any section thereof shall have been ordered into active service: And provided further, That in determining the relative rank and the right to retirement of an officer of the regular army, active duty performed by him while serving in the Officers' Reserve Corps shall not be reckoned.

THE RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS.

SEC. 40. The President is hereby authorized to establish and maintain in civil educational institutions a Reserve Officers' Training Corps, which shall consist of a senior division organized at universities and colleges requiring four years of collegiate study for a degree, including State universities and those State institutions that are required to provide instruction in military tactics under the provisions of the Act of Congress of July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, donating lands for the establishment of colleges where the leading object shall be practical instruction in agriculture and the mechanic arts, including military tactics, and a junior division organized at all other public or private educational institutions, except that units of the senior division may be organized at those essentially military schools which do not confer an academic degree but which, as a result of the annual inspection of such institutions by the War Department, are specially designated by the Secretary of War as qualified for units of the senior division, and each division shall consist of units of the several arms or corps in such number and of such strength as the President may prescribe.

SEC. 41. The President may, upon the application of any State institution described in section forty of this act, establish and maintain at such institution one or more units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps: Provided, That no such unit shall be established or maintained at any such institution until an officer of the army shall have been detailed as professor of military science and tactics, nor until such institution shall maintain under military instruction at least one hundred physically fit male students.

SEC. 42. The President may, upon the application of any established educational institution in the United States other than a State institution described in section forty of this act, the authorities of which agree to establish and maintain a two years' elective or compulsory course of military training as a minimum for its physically fit male students, which course when entered upon by any student shall, as regards such student, be a prerequisite for graduation. establish and maintain at such institution one or more units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps: Provided, That no such unit shall be established or maintained at any such institution until an officer of the army shall have been detailed as professor of military science and tactics, nor until such institution shall maintain under military instruction at least one hundred physically fit male students.

SEC. 43. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to prescribe standard courses of theoretical and practical military training for units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and no unit of the senior division shall be organized or maintained at any educational institution the authorities of which fail or neglect to adopt into their curriculum the prescribed courses of military training for the senior division or to devote at least an average of three hours per week per academic year to such military training; and no unit of the junior division shall be organized or maintained at any educational institution the authorities of which fail or neglect to adopt into their curriculum the prescribed courses of military training for the junior division, or to devote at least an average of three hours per week per academic year to such military training.

SEC. 44. Eligibility to membership in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps shall be limited to students of institutions in which units of such corps may be established who are citizens of the United States, who are not less than fourteen years of age, and whose bodily condition indicates that they are physically fit to perform military duty, or will be so upon arrival at military age.

SEC. 45. The President is hereby authorized to detail such numbers of officers of the army, either active or retired, not above the grade of Colonel, as may be necessary, for duty as professors and assistant professors of military science and tactics at institutions where one or more units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps are maintained; but the total number of active officers so detailed at educational institutions shall not exceed three hundred, and no active officer shall be so detailed who has not had five years' commissioned service in the army. In time of peace retired officers shall not be detailed under the provisions of this section without their consent. Retired officers below the grade of Lieutenant Colonel so detailed shall receive the full pay and allowances of their grade, and retired officers above the grade of Major so detailed shall receive the same pay and allowances as a retired Major would receive under a like detail. No detail of officers on the active list of the regular army under the provisions of this section shall extend for more than four years.

SEC. 46. The President is hereby authorized to detail for duty at institutions where one or more units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps are maintained such number of enlisted men, either active or retired or of the Regular Army Reserve, as he may deem necessary, but the number of active non-commissioned officers so detailed shall not exceed five hundred, and all active non-commissioned officers so detailed shall be additional in their respective grades to those otherwise authorized for the army. Retired enlisted men or members of the Regular Army Reserve shall not be detailed under the provisions of this section without their consent. While so detailed they shall receive active pay and allowances.

SEC. 47. The Secretary of War, under such regulations as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized to issue to institutions at which one or more units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps are maintained such public animals, arms, uniforms, equipment, and means of transportation as he may deem necessary, and to forage at the expense of the United States public animals so issued. He shall require from each institution to which property of the United States is issued a bond in the value of the property issued for the care and safe-keeping thereof, and for its return when required.

SEC. 48. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to maintain camps for the further practical instruction of the members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, no such camps to be maintained for a period longer than six weeks in any one year, except in time of actual or threatened hostilities; to transport members of such corps to and from such camps at the expense of the United States so far as appropriations will permit; to subsist them at the expense of the United States while travelling to and from such camps and while remaining therein so far as appropriations will permit; to use the regular army, such other military forces as Congress from time to time authorizes, and such Government property as he may deem necessary for the military training of the members of such corps while in attendance at such camps; to prescribe regulations for the government of such corps; and to authorize, in his discretion, the formation of company units thereof into battalion and regimental units.

SEC. 49. The President alone, under such regulations as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized to appoint in the Officers' Reserve Corps any graduate of the senior division of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps who shall have satisfactorily completed the further training provided for in section fifty of this act, or any graduate of the junior division who shall have satisfactorily completed the courses of military training prescribed for the senior division and the further training provided for in section fifty of this act, and shall have participated in such practical instruction subsequent to graduation as the Secretary of War shall prescribe, who shall have arrived at the age of twenty-one years and who shall agree, under oath in writing, to serve the United States in the capacity of a reserve officer of the army during a period of at least ten years from the date of his appointment as such reserve officer, unless sooner discharged by proper authority; but the total number of reserve officers so appointed shall not exceed fifty thousand: Provided, That any graduate qualified under the provisions of this section undergoing a post-graduate course at any institution shall not be eligible for appointment as a reserve officer while undergoing such post-graduate course, but his ultimate eligibility upon completion of such post-graduate course for such appointment shall not be affected because of his having undergone such post-graduate course.

SEC. 50. When any member of the senior division of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps has completed two academic years of service in that division, and has been selected for further training by the President of the institution and by its professor of military science and tactics, and has agreed in writing to continue in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps for the remainder of his course in the institution, devoting five hours per week to the military training prescribed by the Secretary of War, and has agreed in writing to pursue the courses in camp training prescribed by the Secretary of War, he may be furnished, at the expense of the United States, with commutation of subsistence at such rate, not exceeding the cost of the garrison ration prescribed for the army, as may be fixed by the Secretary of War, during the remainder of his service in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

SEC. 51. Any physically fit male citizen of the United States, between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven years, who shall have graduated prior to the date of this act from any educational institution at which an officer of the army was detailed as professor of military science and tactics, and who, while a student at such institution, completed courses of military training under the direction of such professor of military science and tactics substantially equivalent to those prescribed pursuant to this act for the senior division, shall, after satisfactorily completing such additional practical military training as the Secretary of War shall prescribe, be eligible for appointment to the Officers' Reserve Corps and as a temporary additional Second Lieutenant in accordance with the terms of this act.

SEC. 52. The President alone is hereby authorized to appoint and commission as a temporary Second Lieutenant of the regular army in time of peace for purposes of instruction, for a period not exceeding six months, with the allowances now provided by law for that grade, but with pay at the rate of $100 per month, any reserve officer appointed pursuant to sections forty-nine and fifty-one of this act and to attach him to a unit of the regular army for duty and training during the period covered by his appointment as such temporary Second Lieutenant, and upon the expiration of such service with the regular army such officer shall revert to his status as a reserve officer.

SEC. 53. No reserve officer or temporary Second Lieutenant appointed pursuant to this act shall be entitled to retirement or to retired pay and shall be eligible for pension only for disability incurred in line of duty in active service or while serving with the regular army pursuant to the provisions of this act: Provided, That in time of war the President may order reserve officers appointed under the provisions of this act to active duty with any of the military forces of the United States in any grades not below that of Second Lieutenant, and while on such active duty they shall be subject to the Rules and Articles of War: And provided further, That the Adjutant General of the army shall, under the direction and supervision of the Secretary of War, obtain, compile, and keep continually up to date all obtainable information as to the names, ages, addresses, occupations, and qualifications for appointment as commissioned officers of the army, in time of war or other emergency, of men of suitable ages who, by reason of having received military training in civilian educational institutions or elsewhere, may be regarded as qualified and available for appointment as such commissioned officers.

TRAINING CAMPS.

SEC. 54. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to maintain, upon military reservations or elsewhere, camps for the military instruction and training of such citizens as may be selected for such instruction and training, upon their application and under such terms of enlistment and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War, to use, for the purpose of maintaining said camps and imparting military instruction and training thereat, such arms, ammunition, accoutrements, equipments, tentage, field equipage, and transportation belonging to the United States as he may deem necessary; to furnish at the expense of the United States, uniforms, subsistence, transportation by most usual and direct route within such limits as to territory as the Secretary of War may prescribe, and medical supplies to persons receiving instruction at said camps during the period of their attendance thereat, to authorize such expenditures, from proper army appropriations as he may deem necessary for water, fuel, light, temporary structures, not including quarters for officers nor barracks for men, screening, and damages resulting from field exercises, and other expenses incidental to the maintenance of said camps, and the theoretical Winter instruction in connection therewith; and to sell to persons receiving instruction at said camps, for cash and at cost price plus ten per centum, Quartermaster and ordnance property, the amount of such property sold to any one person to be limited to that which is required for his proper equipment. All moneys arising from such sales shall remain available throughout the fiscal year following that in which the sales are made, for the purpose of that appropriation from which the property sold was authorized to be supplied at the time of the sale. The Secretary of War is authorized further to prescribe the courses of theoretical and practical instruction to be pursued by persons attending the camps authorized by this section; to fix the periods during which such camps shall be maintained; to prescribe rules and regulations for the government thereof; and to employ thereat officers and enlisted men of the regular army in such numbers and upon such duties as he may designate.

THE ENLISTED RESERVE CORPS.

SEC. 55. For the purpose of securing an additional reserve of enlisted men for military service with the Engineer, Signal, and Quartermaster Corps and the Ordnance and Medical Departments of the regular army, an Enlisted Reserve Corps, to consist of such number of enlisted men of such grade or grades as may be designated by the President from time to time, is hereby authorized, such authorization to be effective on and after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and sixteen.

There may be enlisted in the grade or grades hereinbefore specified, for a period of four years, under such rules as may be prescribed by the President, citizens of the United States, or persons who have declared their intentions to become citizens of the United States, subject to such physical, educational, and practical examination as may be prescribed in said rules. For men enlisting in said grade or grades certificates of enlistment in the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall be issued by the Adjutant General of the army, but no such man shall be enlisted in said corps unless he shall be found physically, mentally, and morally qualified to hold such certificate and unless he shall be between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years. The certificates so given shall confer upon the holders when called into active service or for purposes of instruction and training, and during the period of such active service, instruction, or training, all the authority, rights, and privileges of like grades of the regular army. Enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall take precedence in said corps according to the dates of their certificates of enlistment therein and when called into active service or when called out for purposes of instruction or training shall take precedence next below all other enlisted men of like grades in the regular army. And the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to issue to members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps and to persons who have participated in at least one encampment for the military instruction of citizens, conducted under the auspices of the War Department, distinctive rosettes or knots designed for wear with civilian clothing, and whenever a rosette or knot issued under the provisions of this section shall have been lost, destroyed, or rendered unfit for use without fault or neglect upon the part of the person to whom it is issued, the Secretary of War shall cause a new rosette or knot to be issued to such person without charge therefor. Any person who is not an enlisted man of the Enlisted Reserve Corps and shall not have participated in at least one encampment for the military instruction of citizens, conducted under the auspices of the War Department, and who shall wear such rosette or knot shall be guilty of misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not exceeding $300, or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both.

The President is authorized to assign members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps as reserves to particular organizations of the regular army, or to organize the Enlisted Reserve Corps, or any part thereof, into units or detachments of any arm, corps or department in such manner as he may prescribe, and to assign to such units and detachments officers of the regular army or of the Officers' Reserve Corps, herein provided for.

To the extent provided from time to time by appropriations the Secretary of War may order enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps to active service for purposes of instruction or training for periods not to exceed fifteen days in any one calendar year: Provided, That, with the consent of such enlisted men and within the limits of funds available for such purposes, such periods of active service may be extended for such number of enlisted men as may be deemed necessary.

Enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall receive the pay and allowances of their respective grades, but only when ordered into active service, including the time required for actual travel from their homes to the places to which ordered and return to their homes: Provided, That said enlisted men shall not be entitled to retirement or retirement pay, nor shall they be entitled to pensions except for physical disability incurred in line of duty while in active service or while travelling under orders of competent authority to or from designated places of duty

The uniform to be worn by enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, except corps insignia, shall be the same as prescribed for enlisted men of the regular army reserve, and that in lieu of any money allowance for clothing there shall be issued to each enlisted man of the Enlisted Reserve Corps in time of peace such articles of clothing and equipment as the President may direct: Provided, That any clothing or other equipment issued to any enlisted man of the said corps shall remain the property of the United States, and in case of loss or destruction of any article, the article so lost or destroyed shall be replaced by issue to the enlisted man and the value thereof deducted from any pay due or to become due him, unless it shall be made to appear that such loss or destruction was not due to neglect or other fault on his part: Provided further, That any clothing or other equipment issued to enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps which shall have become unserviceable through ordinary wear and tear in the service of the United States shall be received back by the United States and serviceable like articles issued in lieu thereof: Provided further, That when enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall be discharged or otherwise separated from the service, all arms, equipage, clothing, and other property issued to them shall be accounted for under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War.

Any enlisted man of the Enlisted Reserve Corps ordered to active service or for purposes of instruction or training shall, from the time he is required by the terms of the order to obey the same, be subject to the laws and regulations for the government of the army of the United States.

The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to discharge any enlisted member of the Enlisted Reserve Corps when his services shall be no longer required, or when he shall have by misconduct unfitted himself for further service in the said corps: Provided, That any enlisted man of said corps who shall be ordered upon active duty as herein provided and who shall wilfully fail to comply with the terms of the order so given him shall, in addition to any other penalty to which he may be subject, forfeit his certificate of enlistment.

In time of actual or threatened hostilities the President may order the Enlisted Reserve Corps, in such numbers and at such times as may be considered necessary, to active service with the regular army, and while on such service members of said corps shall exercise command appropriate to their several grades and rank in the organizations to which they shall be assigned and shall be entitled to the pay and allowances of the corresponding grades in the regular army, with increase of pay for length of service as now allowed by law for the regular army: Provided, That upon a call by the President for a volunteer force the members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps may be mustered into the service of the United States as volunteers for duty with the army in the grades held by them in the said corps, and shall be entitled to the pay and allowances of the corresponding grades in the regular army, with increase of pay for length of service, as now provided by law for the regular army: And provided further, That enlisted men of the Enlisted Reserve Corps shall not acquire by virtue of issuance of certificates of enlistment to them a vested right to be mustered into the volunteer service of the United States.

MILITARY EQUIPMENT AND INSTRUCTORS AT OTHER SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

SEC. 56. Such arms, tentage, and equipment as the Secretary of War shall deem necessary for proper military training shall be supplied by the Government to schools and colleges, other than those provided for in section forty-seven of this act, having a course of military training prescribed by the Secretary of War and having not less than one hundred physically fit male students above the age of fourteen years, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe; and the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to detail such commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the army to said schools and colleges, other than those provided for in sections forty-five and forty-six of this act, detailing not less than one such officer or non-commissioned officer to each five hundred students under military instruction.

COMPOSITION OF THE MILITIA.

SEC. 57. The militia of the United States shall consist of all able-bodied male citizens of the United States and all other able-bodied males who have or shall have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, who shall be more than eighteen years of age and, except as hereinafter provided, not more than forty-five years of age, and said militia shall be divided into three classes, the National Guard, the Naval Militia, and the Unorganized Militia.

COMPOSITION OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 58. The National Guard shall consist of the regularly enlisted militia between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, organized, armed, and equipped as hereinafter provided, and of commissioned officers between the ages of twenty-one and sixty-four years.

EXEMPTIONS FROM MILITIA DUTY.

SEC. 59. The Vice-President of the United States; the officers, judicial and executive, of the Government of the United States and of the several States and Territories; persons in the military or naval service of the United States; custom-house clerks; persons employed by the United States in the transmission of the mail; artificers and workmen employed in the armories, arsenals, and navy yards of the United States; pilots; mariners actually employed in the sea service of any citizen or merchant within the United States shall be exempt from militia duty without regard to age, and all persons who because of religious belief shall claim exemption from military service, if the conscientious holding of such belief by such person shall be established under such regulations as the President shall prescribe, shall be exempted from militia service in a combatant capacity; but no person so exempted shall be exempt from militia service in any capacity that the President shall declare to be noncombatant.

ORGANIZATION OF NATIONAL GUARD UNITS.

SEC. 60. Except as otherwise specifically provided herein, the organization of the National Guard, including the composition of all units thereof, shall be the same as that which is or may hereafter be prescribed for the regular army, subject in time of peace to such general exceptions as may be authorized by the Secretary of War. And the President may prescribe the particular unit or units, as to branch or arm of service, to be maintained in each State, Territory, or the District of Columbia in order to secure a force which, when combined, shall form complete higher tactical units.

MAINTENANCE OF OTHER TROOPS BY THE STATES.

SEC. 61. No State shall maintain troops in time of peace other than as authorized in accordance with the organization prescribed under this act: Provided, That nothing contained in this act shall be construed as limiting the rights of the States and Territories in the use of the National Guard within their respective borders in time of peace: Provided further, That nothing contained in this act shall prevent the organization and maintenance of State police or constabulary.

NUMBER OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 62. The number of enlisted men of the National Guard to be organized under this act within one year from its passage shall be for each State in the proportion of two hundred such men for each Senator and Representative in Congress from such State, and a number to be determined by the President for each Territory and the District of Columbia, and shall be increased each year thereafter in the proportion of not less than fifty per centum until a total peace strength of not less than eight hundred enlisted men for each Senator and Representative in Congress shall have been reached: Provided, That in States which have but one Representative in Congress such increase shall be at the discretion of the President: Provided further, That this shall not be construed to prevent any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia from organizing the full number of troops required under this section in less time than is specified in this section, or from maintaining existing organizations if they shall conform to such rules and regulations regarding organization, strength, and armament as the President may prescribe: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any State with but one Representative in Congress from organizing one or more regiments of troops, with such auxiliary troops as the President may prescribe; such organizations and members of such organizations to receive all the benefits accruing under this act under the conditions set forth herein: Provided further, That the word Territory as used in this act and in all laws relating to the land militia and National Guard shall include and apply to Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico, and the Canal Zone, and the militia of the Canal Zone shall be organized under such rules and regulations, not in conflict with the provisions of this act, as the President may prescribe.

SEC. 63. Any corps of Artillery, Cavalry, or Infantry existing in any of the States on the passage of the act of May eighth, seventeen hundred and ninety-two, which by the laws, customs, or usages of said States has been in continuous existence since the passage of said act, under its provisions and under the provisions of section two hundred and thirty-two and sections sixteen hundred and twenty-five to sixteen hundred and sixty, both inclusive, of title sixteen of the Revised Statutes of eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and the act of January twenty-first, nineteen hundred and three, relating to the militia, shall be allowed to retain its ancient privileges, subject, nevertheless, to all duties required by law of militia: Provided, That said organizations may be a part of the National Guard and entitled to all the privileges of this act, and shall conform in all respects to the organization, discipline, and training of the National Guard in time of war: Provided further, That for purposes of training and when on active duty in the service of the United States they may be assigned to higher units, as the President may direct, and shall be subject to the orders of officers under whom they shall be serving.

ASSIGNMENT OF NATIONAL GUARD TO BRIGADES AND DIVISIONS.

SEC. 64. For the purpose of maintaining appropriate organization and to assist in instruction and training, the President may assign the National Guard of the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia to divisions, brigades and other tactical units, and may detail officers either from the National Guard or the regular army to command such units: Provided, That where complete units are organized within a State, Territory, or the District of Columbia the commanding officers thereof shall not be displaced under the provisions of this section.

CHIEFS OF STAFF OF NATIONAL GUARD DIVISIONS.

SEC. 65. The President may detail one officer of the regular army as chief of staff and one officer of the regular army or the National Guard as assistant to the chief of staff of any division of the National Guard in the service of the United States as a National Guard organization: Provided, That in order to insure the prompt mobilization of the National Guard in time of war or other emergency, the President may, in time of peace, detail an officer of the regular army to perform the duties of chief of staff for each fully organized tactical division of the National Guard.

ADJUTANTS GENERAL OF STATES, AND SO FORTH.

SEC. 66. The Adjutants General of the States, Territories, and the District of Columbia and the officers of the National Guard shall make such returns and reports to the Secretary of War, or to such officers as he may designate, at such times and in such form as the Secretary of War may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That the Adjutants General of the Territories and of the District of Columbia shall be appointed by the President with such rank and qualifications as he may prescribe, and each Adjutant General for a Territory shall be a citizen of the Territory for which he is appointed.

APPROPRIATION, APPORTIONMENT, AND DISBURSEMENT OF FUNDS FOR THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 67. A sum of money shall hereafter be appropriated annually, to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the support of the National Guard, including the expense of providing arms, ordnance stores, quartermaster stores and camp equipage, and all other military supplies for issue to the National Guard, and such other expenses pertaining to said guard as are now or may hereafter be authorized by law.

The appropriation provided for in this section shall be apportioned among the several States and Territories under just and equitable procedure to be prescribed by the Secretary of War and in direct ratio to the number of enlisted men in active service in the National Guard existing in such States and Territories at the date of apportionment of said appropriation, and to the District of Columbia, under such regulations as the President may prescribe: Provided, That the sum so apportioned among the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia, shall be available under such rules as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War for the actual and necessary expenses incurred by officers and enlisted men of the regular army when travelling on duty in connection with the National Guard; for the transportation of supplies furnished to the National Guard for the permanent equipment thereof; for office rent and necessary office expenses of officers of the regular army on duty with the National Guard; for the expenses of the Militia Bureau, including clerical services, now authorized for the Division of Militia Affairs; for expenses of enlisted men of the regular army on duty with the National Guard, including quarters, fuel, light, medicines, and medical attendance; and such expenses shall constitute a charge against the whole sum annually appropriated for the support of the National Guard, and shall be paid therefrom and not from the allotment duly apportioned to any particular State, Territory, or the District of Columbia; for the promotion of rifle practice, including the acquisition, construction, maintenance, and equipment of shooting galleries and suitable target ranges; for the hiring of horses and draught animals for the use of mounted troops, batteries, and wagons; for forage for the same; and for such other incidental expenses in connection with lawfully authorized encampments, manoeuvres, and field instruction as the Secretary of War may deem necessary, and for such other expenses pertaining to the National Guard as are now or may hereafter be authorized by law.

The Governor of each State and Territory and the Commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia shall appoint, designate, or detail, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War, an officer of the National Guard of the State, Territory, or District of Columbia who shall be regarded as property and disbursing officer for the United States. He shall receipt and account for all funds and property belonging to the United States in possession of the National Guard of his State, Territory, or District, and shall make such returns and reports concerning the same as may be required by the Secretary of War. The Secretary of War is authorized, on the requisition of the Governor of a State or Territory or the commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, to pay to the property and disbursing officer thereof so much of its allotment out of the annual appropriation for the support of the National Guard as shall, in the judgment of the Secretary of War, be necessary for the purposes enumerated therein. He shall render, through the War Department, such accounts of Federal funds intrusted to him for disbursement as may be required by the Treasury Department. Before entering upon the performance of his duties as property and disbursing officer he shall be required to give good and sufficient bond to the United States, the amount thereof to be determined by the Secretary of War, for the faithful performance of his duties and for the safe-keeping and proper disposition of the Federal property and funds intrusted to his care. He shall, after having qualified as property and disbursing officer, receive pay for his services at a rate to be fixed by the Secretary of War, and such compensation shall be a charge against the whole sum annually appropriated for the support of the National Guard: Provided, That when travelling in the performance of his official duties under orders issued by the proper authorities he shall be reimbursed for his actual necessary travelling expenses, the sum to be made a charge against the allotment of the State, Territory, or District of Columbia: Provided further, That the Secretary of War shall cause an inspection of the accounts and records of the property and disbursing officer to be made by an Inspector General of the army at least once each year: And provided further, That the Secretary of War is empowered to make all rules and regulations necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this section.

LOCATION OF UNITS.

SEC. 68. The States and Territories shall have the right to determine and fix the location of the units and headquarters of the National Guard within their respective borders: Provided, That no organization of the National Guard, members of which shall be entitled to and shall have received compensation under the provisions of this act, shall be disbanded without the consent of the President, nor, without such consent, shall the commissioned or enlisted strength of any such organization be reduced below the minimum that shall be prescribed therefor by the President.

ENLISTMENTS IN THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 69. Hereafter the period of enlistment in the National Guard shall be for six years, the first three years of which shall be in an active organization and the remaining three years in the National Guard Reserve, hereinafter provided for, and the qualifications for enlistment shall be the same as those prescribed for admission to the regular army: Provided, That in the National Guard the privilege of continuing in active service during the whole of an enlistment period and of re-enlisting in said service shall not be denied by reason of anything contained in this act.

FEDERAL ENLISTMENT CONTRACT.

SEC. 70. Enlisted men in the National Guard of the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia now serving under enlistment contracts which contain an obligation to defend the Constitution of the United States and to obey the orders of the President of the United States shall be recognized as members of the National Guard under the provisions of this act for the unexpired portion of their present enlistment contracts. When any such enlistment contract does not contain such obligation, the enlisted man shall not be recognized as a member of the National Guard until he shall have signed an enlistment contract and taken and subscribed to the following oath of enlistment, upon signing which credit shall be given for the period already served under the old enlistment contract: "I do hereby acknowledge to have voluntarily enlisted this— day of ———, 19—, as a soldier in the National Guard of the United States and of the State of ———, for the period of three years in service and three years in the reserve, under the conditions prescribed by law, unless sooner discharged by proper authority. And I do solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America and to the State of ———, and that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States and of the Governor of the State of ———, and of the officers appointed over me according to law and the rules and articles of war."

SEC. 71. Hereafter all men enlisting for service in the National Guard shall sign an enlistment contract and take and subscribe to the oath prescribed in the preceding section of this act.

DISCHARGE OF ENLISTED MEN FROM THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 72. An enlisted man discharged from service in the National Guard shall receive a discharge in writing in such form and with such classification as is or shall be prescribed for the regular army, and in time of peace discharges may be given prior to the expiration of terms of enlistment under such regulations as the President may prescribe.

FEDERAL OATH FOR NATIONAL GUARD OFFICERS.

SEC. 73. Commissioned officers of the National Guard of the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia now serving under commissions regularly issued shall continue in office, as officers of the National Guard, without the issuance of new commissions: Provided, That said officers have taken, or shall take and subscribe to the following oath of office: "I, ———, do solemnly swear that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of ———, against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States and of the Governor of the State of ———; that I make this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office of ——— in the National Guard of the United States and of the State of ——— upon which I am about to enter, so help me God."

QUALIFICATIONS FOR NATIONAL GUARD OFFICERS.

SEC. 74. Persons hereafter commissioned as officers of the National Guard shall not be recognized as such under any of the provisions of this act unless they shall have been selected from the following classes and shall have taken and subscribed to the oath of office prescribed in the preceding section of this act: Officers or enlisted men of the National Guard; officers on the reserve or unassigned list of the National Guard; officers, active or retired, and former officers of the United States Army, Navy, and Marine Corps; graduates of the United States Military and Naval Academies and graduates of schools, colleges, and universities where military science is taught under the supervision of an officer of the regular army, and, for the technical branches and staff corps or departments, such other civilians as may be especially qualified for duty therein.

SEC. 75. The provisions of this act shall not apply to any person hereafter appointed an officer of the National Guard unless he first shall have successfully passed such tests as to his physical, moral, and professional fitness as the President shall prescribe. The examination to determine such qualifications for commission shall be conducted by a board of three commissioned officers appointed by the Secretary of War from the regular army or the National Guard, or both.

FILLING OF VACANCIES WHEN DRAFTED INTO FEDERAL SERVICE.

SEC. 76. All vacancies occurring in any grade of commissioned officers in any organization in the military service of the United States and composed of persons drafted from the National Guard under the provisions of this act shall be filled by the President, as far as practicable, by the appointment of persons similarly taken from said guard, and in the manner prescribed by law for filling similar vacancies occurring in the volunteer forces.

ELIMINATION AND DISPOSITION OF OFFICERS.

SEC. 77. At any time the moral character, capacity, and general fitness for the service of any National Guard officer may be determined by an efficiency board of three commissioned officers, senior in rank to the officer whose fitness for service shall be under investigation, and if the findings of such board be unfavorable to such officer and be approved by the official authorized to appoint such an officer, he shall be discharged. Commissions of officers of the National Guard may be vacated upon resignation, absence without leave for three months, upon the recommendation of an efficiency board, or pursuant to sentence of a court-martial. Officers of said guard rendered surplus by the disbandment of their organizations shall be placed in the National Guard Reserve. Officers may, upon their own application, be placed in the said reserve.

THE NATIONAL GUARD RESERVE.

SEC. 78. Subject to such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe, a National Guard Reserve shall be organized in each State, Territory, and the District of Columbia, and shall consist of such organizations, officers, and enlisted men as the President may prescribe, or members thereof may be assigned as reserves to an active organization of the National Guard: Provided, That members of said reserve, when engaged in field or coast-defence training with the active National Guard, shall receive the same Federal pay and allowances as enlisted men of like grade on the active list of said guard when likewise engaged: Provided further, That, except as otherwise specifically provided in this act, no commissioned or enlisted reservist shall receive any pay or allowances out of any appropriation made by Congress for National Guard purposes.

RESERVE BATTALIONS FOR RECRUIT TRAINING.

SEC. 79. When members of the National Guard and the enlisted reserve thereof of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall have been brought into the service of the United States in time of war, there shall be immediately organized, either from such enlisted reserve or from the unorganized militia, in such State, Territory, or District, one reserve battalion for each regiment of Infantry or Cavalry, or each nine batteries of Field Artillery, or each twelve companies of Coast Artillery, brought into the service of the United States, and such reserve battalion shall constitute the fourth battalion of any such regiment or twelve companies of Coast Artillery. Reserve battalions shall consist of four companies of such strength as may be prescribed by the President of the United States. When the members of three or more regiments of the National Guard of any State, Territory, or District shall have been brought into the service of the United States, the reserve battalions of such regiments may be organized into provisional regiments and higher units. If for any reason there shall not be enough voluntary enlistments to keep the reserve battalions at the prescribed strength, a sufficient number of the unorganized militia shall be drafted into the service of the United States to maintain each of such battalions at the proper strength. As vacancies occur from death or other causes in any organization in the service of the United States and composed of men taken from the National Guard, men shall be transferred from the reserve battalions to the organizations in the field so that such organizations may be maintained at war strength. Officers for the reserve battalions provided for herein shall be drafted from the National Guard Reserve or Coast Artillery companies of the National Guard or the Officers' Reserve Corps, such officers to be taken, if practicable, from the States, respectively, in which the battalions shall be organized. Officers and noncommissioned officers returned to their home stations because of their inability to perform active field service may be assigned to reserve battalions for duty, and all soldiers invalided home shall be assigned to and carried on the rolls of reserve battalions until returned to duty or until discharged.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE FOR CERTAIN GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES.

SEC. 80. All officers and employés of the United States and of the District of Columbia who shall be members of the National Guard shall be entitled to leave of absence from their respective duties, without loss of pay, time, or efficiency rating, on all days during which they shall be engaged in field or coast-defence training ordered or authorized under the provisions of this act.

MILITIA BUREAU OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

SEC. 81. The National Militia Board created by section eleven of the act of May twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and eight, amending section twenty of the act of January twenty-first, nineteen hundred and three, shall, from the date of the approval of this act, be abolished. The Militia Division now existing in the War Department shall hereafter be known as the Militia Bureau of said department, shall, like other bureaus of said department, be under the immediate supervision of the Secretary of War, and shall not form a part of any other bureau, office, or other organization, but the Chief of the Militia Bureau shall be ex-officio a member of the Genral Staff Corps: Provided, That the President may, in his discretion, assign to duty in the Militia Bureau as assistants to the chief thereof not to exceed one Colonel and one Lieutenant Colonel of the National Guard, for terms of four years, and any such officer while so assigned shall, subject to such regulations as the President may prescribe, receive out of the whole fund appropriated for the support of the militia the pay and allowances of a regular army officer having the same rank and length of service as said National Guard officer, whose prior service in the Organized Militia shall be counted in ascertaining his rights under this proviso.

ARMAMENT, EQUIPMENT, AND UNIFORM OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 82. The National Guard of the United States shall, as far as practicable, be uniformed, armed, and equipped with the same type of uniforms, arms, and equipments as are or shall be provided for the regular army.

SEC. 83. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to procure, under such regulations as the President may prescribe, by purchase or manufacture, within the limits of available appropriations made by Congress, and to issue from time to time to the National Guard, upon requisition of the Governors of the several States and Territories or the Commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, such number of United States service arms, with all accessories, field artillery matériel, engineer, coast artillery, signal, and sanitary matériel, accoutrements, field uniforms, clothing, equipage, publications, and military stores of all kinds, including public animals, as are necessary to arm, uniform, and equip for field service the National Guard in the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia: Provided, That as a condition precedent to the issue of any property as provided for by this act, the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia desiring such issue shall make adequate provision, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War, for the protection and care of such property: Provided further, That, whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War that the National Guard of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, is properly organized, armed, and equipped for field service, funds allotted to that State, Territory, or District for the support of its National Guard may be used for the purchase, from the War Department, of any article issued by any of the supply departments of the army.

SEC. 84. Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, whenever a new type of equipment, small arm, or field gun shall have been issued to the National Guard of the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia, such equipment, small arms, and field guns, including all accessories, shall be furnished without charging the cost or value thereof or any expense connected therewith against the appropriations provided for the support of the National Guard.

SEC. 85. Each State, Territory, and the District of Columbia shall, on the receipt of new property issued to replace obsolete or condemned prior issues, turn in to the War Department or otherwise dispose of, in accordance with the directions of the Secretary of War, all property so replaced or condemned, and shall not receive any money credit therefor.

SEC. 86. Any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia may, with the approval of the Secretary of War, purchase for cash from the War Department for the use of the National Guard, including the officers thereof, any stores, supplies, material of war, and military publications furnished to the army in addition to those issued under the provisions of this act, at the price at which they shall be listed to the army, with cost of transportation added. The funds received from such sale shall be credited to the appropriation to which they shall belong, shall not be covered into the Treasury, and shall be available until expended to replace therewith the supplies sold to the States in the manner herein authorized: Provided, That stores, supplies, and matériel of war so purchased by a State, Territory, or the District of Columbia may, in time of actual or threatened war, be requisitioned by the United States for use in the military service thereof, and when so requisitioned by the United States and delivered credit for the ultimate return of such property in kind shall be allowed to such State, Territory, or the District of Columbia.

DISPOSITION AND REPLACEMENT OF DAMAGED PROPERTY, AND SO FORTH.

SEC. 87. All military property issued to the National Guard as herein provided shall remain the property of the United States. Whenever any such property issued to the National Guard in any State or Territory, or the District of Columbia shall have been lost, damaged, or destroyed, or become unserviceable or unsuitable by use in service or from any other cause, it shall be examined by a disinterested surveying officer of the regular army or the National Guard, detailed by the Secretary of War, and the report of such surveying officer shall be forwarded to the Secretary of War, or to such officer as he shall designate to receive such reports; and if it shall appear to the Secretary of War from the record of survey that the property was lost, damaged, or destroyed through unavoidable causes, he is hereby authorized to relieve the State or Territory, or the District of Columbia from further accountability therefor. If it shall appear that the loss, damage, or destruction of property was due o carelessness or neglect, or that its loss, damage, or destruction could have been avoided by the exercise of reasonable care, the money value of such property shall be charged to the accountable State, Territory, or District of Columbia, to be paid from the State, Territory, or District funds, or any funds other than Federal. If the articles so surveyed are found to be unserviceable or unsuitable, the Secretary of War shall direct what disposition, by sale or otherwise, shall be made of them; and if sold, the proceeds of such sale, as well as stoppages against officers and enlisted men, and the net proceeds of collections made from any person or from any State, Territory, or District to reimburse the Government for the loss, damage, or destruction of any property, shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States as a credit to said State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, accountable for said property, and as a part of and in addition to that portion of its allotment set aside for the purchase of similar supplies, stores, or material of war: Provided further, That if any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall neglect or refuse to pay, or to cause to be paid, the money equivalent of any loss, damage, or destruction of property charged against such State, Territory, or the District of Columbia by the Secretary of War after survey by a disinterested officer appointed as hereinbefore provided, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to debar such State, Territory, or the District of Columbia from further participation in any and all appropriations for the National Guard until such payment shall have been made.

SEC. 88. The net proceeds of the sale of condemned stores issued to the National Guard and not charged to State allotments shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States, as shall also stoppages against officers and enlisted men, and the net proceeds of collections made from any person to reimburse the Government for the loss, damage, or destruction of said property not charged against the State allotment issued for the use of the National Guard.

HORSES FOR CAVALRY AND FIELD ARTILLERY OF NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 89. Funds allotted by the Secretary of War for the support of the National Guard shall be available for the purchase, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, of horses conforming to the regular army standards for the use of Field Artillery and Cavalry of the National Guard, said horses to remain the property of the United States and to be used solely for military purposes.

Horses so purchased may be issued not to exceed thirty-two to any one battery or troop, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe; and the Secretary of War is further authorized to issue, in lieu of purchase, for the use of such organizations, condemned army horses which are no longer fit for service, but which may be suitable for the purposes of instruction, such horses to be sold as now provided by law when said purposes shall have been served.

SEC. 90. Funds allotted by the Secretary of War for the support of the National Guard shall be available for the purchase and issue of forage, bedding, shoeing, and veterinary services, and supplies for the Government horses issued to any battery or troop, and for the compensation of competent help for the care of the material, animals, and equipment thereof, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe: Provided, That the men to be compensated, not to exceed five for each battery or troop, shall be duly enlisted therein and shall be detailed by the battery or troop commander, under such regulations as the Secretary of War may prescribe, and shall be paid by the United States disbursing officer in each State, Territory, and the District of Columbia.

DISCIPLINE TO CONFORM TO THAT OF REGULAR ARMY.

SEC. 91. The discipline (which includes training) of the National Guard shall conform to the system which is now or may hereafter be prescribed for the regular army, and the training shall be carried out by the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia so as to conform to the provisions of this act.

TRAINING OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 92. Each company, troop, battery, and detachment in the National Guard shall assemble for drill and instruction, including indoor target practice, not less than forty-eight times each year, and shall, in addition thereto, participate in encampments, manoeuvres, or other exercises including outdoor target practice, at least fifteen days in training each year, including target practice, unless such company, troop, battery, or detachment shall have been excused from participation in any part thereof by the Secretary of War: Provided, That credit for an assembly for drill or for indoor target practice shall not be given unless the number of officers and enlisted men present for duty at such assembly shall equal or exceed a minimum to be prescribed by the President, nor unless the period of actual military duty and instruction participated in by each officer and enlisted man at each such assembly at which he shall be credited as having been present shall be of at least one and one-half hours' duration and the character of training such as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War.

INSPECTIONS OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 93. The Secretary of War shall cause an inspection to be made at least once each year by Inspectors General, and if necessary by other officers, of the regular army, detailed by him for that purpose, to determine whether the amount and condition of the property in the hands of the National Guard is satisfactory; whether the National Guard is organized as hereinbefore prescribed; whether the officers and enlisted men possess the physical and other qualifications prescribed; whether the organization and the officers and enlisted men thereof are sufficiently armed, uniformed, equipped, and being trained and instructed for active duty in the field or coast defence, and whether the records are being kept in accordance with the requirements of this act. The reports of such inspections shall serve as the basis for deciding as to the issue to and retention by the National Guard of the military property provided for by this act, and for determining what organizations and individuals shall be considered as constituting parts of the National Guard within the meaning of this act.

ENCAMPMENTS AND MANOEUVRES.

SEC. 94. Under such regulations as the President may prescribe the Secretary of War is authorized to provide for the participation of the whole or any part of the National Guard in encampments, manœuvres, or other exercises, including outdoor target practice, for field or coast-defence instruction, either independently or in conjunction with any part of the regular army, and there may be set aside from the funds appropriated for that purpose and allotted to any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, such portion of said funds as may be necessary for the payment, subsistence, transportation, and other proper expenses of such portion of the National Guard of such State, Territory, or the District of Columbia as shall participate in such encampments, manœuvres, or other exercises, including outdoor target practice, for field and coast-defence instruction; and the officers and enlisted men of such National Guard while so engaged shall be entitled to the same pay, subsistence, and transportation as officers and enlisted men of corresponding grades of the regular army are or hereafter may be entitled by law.

SEC. 95. When any part of the National Guard participates in encampments, manœuvres, or other exercises, including outdoor target practice, for field or coast-defence instruction at a United States military post, or reservation, or elsewhere, if in conjunction with troops of the United States, the command of such military post or reservation and of the officers and troops of the United States on duty there or elsewhere shall remain with the commander of the United States troops without regard to the rank of the commanding or other officer of the National Guard temporarily engaged in the encampment, manœuvres, or other exercises.

USE OF REGULAR ARMY PERSONNEL.

SEC. 96. The Secretary of War may detail one or more officers and enlisted men of the regular army to attend any encampment, manœuvre, or other exercise for field or coast-defence instruction of the National Guard, who shall give such instruction and information to the officers and men assembled for such encampment, manœuvre, or other exercise as may be directed by the Secretary of War or requested by the Governor or by the commanding officer of the National Guard there on duty.

SEC. 97. Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, the Secretary of War may provide camps for the instruction of officers and enlisted men of the National Guard. Such camps shall be conducted by officers of the regular army detailed by the Secretary of War for that purpose, and may be located either within or without the State, Territory, or District of Columbia to which the members of the National Guard designated to attend said camps shall belong. Officers and enlisted men attending such camps shall be entitled to pay and transportation, and enlisted men to subsistence in addition, at the same rates as for encampments or manœuvres for field or coast-defence instruction.

SEC. 98. When any portion of the National Guard shall participate in encampments, manœuvres, or other exercises, including outdoor target practice, for field or coast-defence instruction, under the provisions of this act, it may, after being duly mustered, be paid at any time after such muster for the period from the date of leaving the home rendezvous to date of return thereto as determined in advance, both dates inclusive; and such payment, if otherwise correct, shall pass to the credit of the disbursing officer making the same.

NATIONAL GUARD OFFICERS AND MEN AT SERVICE SCHOOLS, AND SO FORTH.

SEC. 99. Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, the Secretary of War may, upon the recommendation of the Governor of any State or Territory or the commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, authorize a limited number of selected officers or enlisted men of the National Guard to attend and pursue a regular course of study at any military service school of the United States, except the United States Military Academy; or to be attached to an organization of the same arm, corps, or department to which such officer or enlisted man shall belong, for routine practical instruction at or near an army post during a period of field training or other outdoor exercises; and such officer or enlisted man shall receive, out of any National Guard allotment of funds available for the purpose, the same travel allowances and quarters, or commutation of quarters, and the same pay, allowances, and subsistence to which an officer or enlisted man of the regular army would be entitled for attending such school, college, or practical course of instruction under orders from proper military authority, while in actual attendance at such school, college, or practical course of instruction: Provided, That in no case shall the pay and allowances authorized by this section exceed those of a Captain.

DETAIL OF OFFICERS OF REGULAR ARMY TO DUTY WITH THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 100. The Secretary of War shall detail officers of the active list of the army to duty with the National Guard in each State, Territory, or District of Columbia, and officers so detailed may accept commissions in the National Guard, with the permission of the President and terminable in his discretion, without vacating their commissions in the regular army or being prejudiced in their relative or lineal standing therein. The Secretary of War may, upon like application, detail one or more enlisted men of the regular army with each State, Territory, or District of Columbia for duty in connection with the National Guard. But nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prevent the detail of retired officers as now provided by law.

NATIONAL GUARD, WHEN SUBJECT TO LAWS GOVERNING REGULAR ARMY.

SEC. 101. The National Guard when called as such into the service of the United States shall, from the time they are required by the terms of the call to respond thereto, be subject to the laws and regulations governing the regular army, so far as such laws and regulations are applicable to officers and enlisted men whose permanent retention in the military service, either on the active list or on the retired list, is not contemplated by existing law.

SYSTEM OF COURTS-MARTIAL FOR NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 102. Except in organizations in the service of the United States, court-martial in the National Guard shall be of three kinds, namely, general courts-martial, special courts-martial, and summary courts-martial. They shall be constituted like, and have cognizance of the same subjects, and possess like powers, except as to punishments, as similar courts provided for by the laws and regulations governing the Army of the United States, and the proceedings of courts-martial of the National Guard shall follow the forms and modes of procedure prescribed for said similar courts.

SEC. 103. General courts-martial of the National Guard not in the service of the United States may be convened by orders of the President, or of the Governors of the respective States and Territories, or by the commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, and such courts shall have the power to impose fines not exceeding $200; to sentence to forfeiture of pay and allowances; to a reprimand; to dismissal or dishonorable discharge from the service; to reduction of non-commissioned officers to the ranks; or any two or more of such punishments may be combined in the sentences imposed by such courts.

SEC. 104. In the National Guard, not in the service of the United States, the commanding officer of each garrison, fort, post, camp, or other place, brigade, regiment, detached battalion, or other detached command, may appoint special courts-martial for his command; but such special courts-martial may in any case be appointed by superior authority when by the latter deemed desirable. Special courts-martial shall have power to try any person subject to military law, except a commissioned officer, for any crime or offence made punishable by the military laws of the United States, and such special courts-martial shall have the same powers of punishment as do general courts-martial, except that fines imposed by such courts shall not exceed $100.

SEC. 105. In the National Guard, not in the service of the United States, the commanding officer of each garrison, fort, post, or other place, regiment or corps, detached battalion, company or other detachment of the National Guard may appoint for such place or command a summary court to consist of one officer, who shall have power to administer oaths and to try the enlisted men of such place or command for breaches of discipline and violations of laws governing such organizations; and said court, when satisfied of the guilt of such soldier, may impose fines not exceeding $25 for any single offence; may sentence non-commissioned officer to reduction to the ranks; may sentence to forfeiture of pay and allowances. The proceedings of such court shall be informal, and the minutes thereof shall be the same as prescribed for summary courts of the Army of the United States.

SEC. 106. All courts-martial of the National Guard, not in the service of the United States, including summary courts, shall have power to sentence to confinement in lieu of fines authorized to be imposed: Provided, That such sentences of confinement shall not exceed one day for each dollar of fine authorized.

SEC. 107. No sentence of dismissal from the service or dishonorable discharge, imposed by a National Guard court-martial, not in the service of the United States, shall be executed until approved by the Governor of the State or Territory concerned, or by the commanding General of the National Guard of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 108. In the National Guard, not in the service of the United States, Presidents of courts-martial and summary court officers shall have power to issue warrants to arrest accused persons and to bring them before the court for trial whenever such persons shall have disobeyed an order in writing from the convening authority to appear before such court, a copy of the charge or charges having been delivered to the accused with such order, and to issue subpœnas and subpoenas duces tecum and to enforce by attachment attendance of witnesses and the production of books and papers, and to sentence for a refusal to be sworn or to answer as provided in actions before civil courts.

All processes and sentences of said courts shall be executed by such civil officers as may be prescribed by the laws of the several States and Territories, and in any State where no provision shall have been made for such action, and in the Territories and the District of Columbia, such processes and sentences shall be executed by a United States marshal or his duly appointed deputy, and it shall be the duty of any United States marshal to execute all such processes and sentences and make return thereof to the officer issuing or imposing the same.

PAY FOR NATIONAL GUARD OFFICERS.

SEC. 109. Certain commissioned officers on the active list belonging to organizations of the National Guard of each State, Territory, and the District of Columbia participating in the apportionment of the annual appropriation for the support of the National Guard shall receive compensation for their services, except during periods of service for which they may become lawfully entitled to the same pay as officers of corresponding grades of the regular army, as follows, not to include longevity pay: A Captain $500 per year, and the same pay shall be paid to every officer of higher rank than that of Captain, a First Lieutenant $240 per year, and a Second Lieutenant $200 per year. Regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of War shall determine the amount and character of service that must be rendered by officers to entitle them to the whole or specific parts of the maximum pay hereinbefore authorized: Provided, That all staff officers, aides-de-camp, and chaplains shall receive not to exceed one-half of the pay of a Captain, except that regimental Adjutants, and Majors and Captains in command of machine-gun companies, ambulance companies, field hospital companies, or sanitary troops shall receive the pay hereinbefore authorized for a Captain.

PAY FOR NATIONAL GUARD ENLISTED MEN.

SEC. 110. Each enlisted man on the active list belonging to an organization of the National Guard of a State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, participating in the apportionment of the annual appropriation for the support of the National Guard, shall receive compensation for his services, except during periods of service for which he may become lawfully entitled to the same pay as an enlisted man of corresponding grade in the regular army, at a rate equal to twenty-five per centum of the initial pay now provided by law for enlisted men of corresponding grades of the regular army: Provided, That such enlisted man shall receive the compensation herein provided if he shall have attended not less than forty-eight regular drills during any one year, and a proportionate amount for attendance upon a lesser number of such drills, not less than twenty-four; and no such enlisted man shall receive any part of said compensation except as authorized by this proviso and the three provisos next following: Provided further, That the compensation provided herein shall be computed for semi-annual periods, beginning the first day of January and the first day of July of each year, in proportion to the number of drills attended; and no compensation shall be paid to any enlisted man for the first semi-annual period of any year unless he shall have attended during said period at least twenty-four drills, but any lesser number of drills attended during said period shall be reckoned with the drills attended during the second semi-annual period in computing the compensation, if any, due him for that year: Provided further, That when any man enters into an enlistment other than an immediate re-enlistment he shall be entitled to proportional compensation for that year if during the remainder of the year he shall attend a number of drills whose ratio to twenty-four is not less than the ratio of the part of the year so served to the whole year; and when any man's enlistment shall expire, the compenstion, if any, to which he may be entitled shall be determined in like manner: Provided, further, That periods of any actual military duty equivalent to the drills herein prescribed (except those periods of service for which members of the National Guard may become lawfully entitled to the same pay as officers and enlisted men of the corresponding grades in the regular army) may be accepted as service in lieu of such drills when so provided by the Secretary of War.

All amounts appropriated for the purpose of this and the last preceding section shall be disbursed and accounted for by the officers and agents of the Quartermaster Corps of the army, and all disbursements under the foregoing provisions of this section shall be made as soon as practicable after the thirty-first day of December and the thirtieth day of June of each year upon pay rolls prepared and authenticated in the manner to be prescribed by the Secretary of War: Provided, That stoppages may be made against the compensation payable to any officer or enlisted man hereunder to cover the cost of public property lost or destroyed by and chargeable to such officer or enlisted man.

Except as otherwise specifically provided herein, no money appropriated under the provisions of this or the last preceding section shall be paid to any person not on the active list, nor to any person over sixty-four years of age, nor to any person who shall fail to qualify as to fitness for military service under such regulations as the Secretary of War shall prescribe, nor to any State, Territory, or District, or officer or enlisted man in the National Guard thereof, unless and until such State, Territory, or District provides by law that staff officers, including officers of the Pay, Inspection, Subsistence, and Medical Departments, hereafter appointed shall have had previous military experience and shall hold their positions until they shall have reached the age of sixty-four years, unless retired prior to that time by reason of resignation, disability, or for cause to be determined by a court-martial legally convened for that purpose, and that vacancies among said officers shall be filled by appointment from the officers of the militia of such State, Territory, or District: Provided, further, That the preceding proviso shall not apply to any State, Territory, or District until sixty days next after the adjournment of the next session of its Legislature held after the approval of this act.

NATIONAL GUARD WHEN DRAFTED INTO FEDERAL SERVICE.

SEC. 111. When Congress shall have authorized the use of the armed land forces of the United States, for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the regular army, the President may, under such regulations, including such physical examination as he may prescribe, draft into the military service of the United States, to serve therein for the period of the war unless sooner discharged, any or all members of the National Guard and of the National Guard Reserve. All persons so drafted shall, from the date of their draft, stand discharged from the militia, and shall from said date be subject to such laws and regulations for the government of the Army of the United States as may be applicable to members of the volunteer army, and shall be embodied in organizations corresponding as far as practicable to those of the regular army or shall be otherwise assigned as the President may direct. The commissioned officers of said organizations shall be appointed from among the members thereof, officers with rank not above that of Colonel to be appointed by the President alone, and all other officers to be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Officers and enlisted men in the service of the United States under the terms of this section shall have the same pay and allowances as officers and enlisted men of the regular army of the same grades and the same prior service.

RIGHTS TO PENSIONS.

SEC. 112. When any officer or enlisted man of the National Guard drafted into the service of the United States in time of war is disabled by reason of wounds or disability received or incurred while in the active service of the United States in time of war, he shall be entitled to all the benefits of the pension laws existing at the time of his service, and in case such officer or enlisted man dies in the active service of the United States in time of war or in returning to his place of residence after being mustered out of such service, or at any other time in consequence of wounds or disabilities received in such active service, his widow and children, if any, shall be entitled to all the benefits of such pension laws.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

SEC. 113. The Secretary of War shall annually submit to Congress recommendations and estimates for the establishment and maintenance of indoor and outdoor rfle ranges, under such a comprehensive plan as will ultimately result in providing adequate facilities for rifle practice in all sections of the country. And that all ranges so established and all ranges which may have already been constructed, in whole or in part, with funds provided by Congress shall be open for use by those in any branch of the military or naval service of the United States nd by all able-bodied males capable of bearing arms, inder reasonable regulations to be prescribed by the ontrolling authorities and approved by the Secrearry of War. That the President may detail capable officers and non-commissioned officers of the regular army and National Guard to duty at such ranges as nstructors for the purpose of training the citizenry n the use of the military arm. Where rifle ranges hall have been so established and instructors asligned to duty thereat, the Secretary of War shall be authorized to provide for the issue of a reasonable number of standard military rifles and such quantiies of ammunition as may be available for use in conducting such rifle practice.

TEMPORARY VACANCIES IN REGULAR ARMY DUE TO DETAILS TO THE NATIONAL GUARD.

SEC. 114. In time of war the temporary vacancies created in any grade not above that of Colonel among the commissioned personnel of any arm, staff corps, or department of the regular army, through appointments of officers thereof to higher rank in organizations composed of members taken from the National Guard, shall be filled by temporary promotions according to seniority in rank from officers holding commissions in the next lower grade in said arm, staff corps, or department, and all vacancies created in any grade by such temporary promotions shall be in like manner filled from, and thus create temporary vacancies in, the next lower grade, and the vacancies that shall remain thereafter in said arm, staff corps, or department and that can not be filled by temporary promotions, as prescribed in this section, may be filled by the temporary appointment of officers of such number and grade or grades as shall maintain said arm, corps, or department at the full commissioned strength authorized by law: Provided, That in the staff corps and departments subject to the provisions of sections twenty-six and twenty-seven of the act of February second, nineteen hundred and one, and acts amendatory thereof, temporary vacancies that can not be filled by temporary promotions as hereinbefore prescribed shall be filled by temporary details in the manner prescribed in said sections twenty-six and twenty-seven, and acts amendatory thereof, and the resulting temporary vacancies in the branches of the army from which the details shall be so made shall be filled as hereinbefore in this section prescribed: Provided further, That officers temporarily promoted or appointed under the terms of this section shall be promoted or appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for terms that shall not extend beyond the war or the passing of the emergency for which additional forces were brought into the military service of the United States, and at the termination of the war or the passing of the emergency said officers shall be discharged from the positions held by them under their temporary commissions or appointments, and officers detailed as herein authorized shall be relieved from their temporary details: And provided further, That officers temporarily promoted under the provisions of this section shall not vacate their permanent commissions nor be prejudiced in their relative or lineal standing in the regular army.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION.

SEC 115. Every officer and enlisted man of the National Guard who shall be called into the service of the United States as such shall be examined as to his physical fitness under such regulations as the President may prescribe without further commission or enlistment: Provided, That immediately preceding the muster out of an officer or enlisted man called into the active service of the United States he shall be physically examined under rules prescribed by the President of the United States, and the record thereof shall be filed and kept in the War Department.

NON-COMPLIANCE WITH FEDERAL ACT.

SEC. 116. Whenever any State shall, within a limit of time to be fixed by the President, have failed or refused to comply with or enforce any requirement of this act, or any regulation promulgated thereunder and in aid thereof by the President or the Secretary of War, the National Guard of such State shall be debarred, wholly or in part, as the President may direct, from receiving from the United States any pecuniary or other aid, benefit, or privilege authorized or provided by this act or any other law.

APPLICABLE TO LAND FORCES ONLY.

SEC. 117. The provisions of this act in respect to the militia shall be applicable only to militia organized as a land force and not to the Naval Militia, which shall consist of such part of the militia as may be prescribed by the President for each State, Territory, or District: Provided, That each State, Territory, or District maintaining a Naval Militia as herein prescribed may be credited to the extent of the number thereof in the quota that would otherwise be required by section sixty-two of this act.

NECESSARY RULES AND REGULATIONS.

SEC. 118. The President shall make all necessary rules and regulations and issue such orders as may be necessary for the thorough organization, discipline, and government of the militia provided for in this act.

ANNUAL ESTIMATES REQUIRED.

SEC. 119. The Secretary of War shall cause to be estimated annually the amount necessary for carrying out the provisions of so much of this act as relates to the militia, and no money shall be expended under said provisions except as shall from time to time be appropriated for carrying them out.

PURCHASE OR PROCUREMENT OF MILITARY SUPPLIES IN TIME OF ACTUAL OR IMMINENT WAR.

SEC. 120. The President, in time of war or when war is imminent, is empowered, through the head of any department of the Government, in addition to the present authorized methods of purchase or procurement, to place an order with any individual, firm, association, company, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry for such product or material as may be required, and which is of the nature and kind usually produced or capable of being produced by such individual, firm, company, association, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry.

Compliance with all such orders for products or material shall be obligatory on any individual, firm, association, company, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry or the responsible head or heads thereof and shall take precedence over all other orders and contracts theretofore placed with such individual, firm, company, association, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry, and any individual, firm, association, company corporation, or organized manufacturing industry or the responsible head or heads thereof owning or operating any plant equipped for the manufacture of arms or ammunition, or parts of ammunition, or any necessary supplies or equipment for the army, and any individual, firm, association, company, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry or the responsible head or heads thereof owning or operating any manufacturing plant, which, in the opinion of the Secretary of War shall be capable of being readily transformed into a plant for the manufacture of arms or ammunition, or parts thereof, or other necessary supplies or equipment, who shall refuse to give to the United States such preference in the matter of the execution of orders, or who shall refuse to manufacture the kind, quantity, or quality of arms or ammunition, or the parts thereof, or any necessary supplies or equipment, as ordered by the Secretary of War, or who shall refuse to furnish such arms, ammunitions, or parts of ammunition, or other supplies or equipment, at a reasonable price as determined by the Secretary of War, then, and in either such case, the President, through the head of any department of the Government, in addition to the present authorized methods of purchase or procurement herein provided for, is hereby authorized to take immediate possession of any such plant or plants, and through the Ordnance Department of the United States Army, to manufacture therein in time of war, or when war shall be imminent, such product or material as may be required, and any individual, firm, company, association, or corporation, or organized manufacturing industry, or the responsible head or heads thereof, failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than three years and by a fine not exceeding $50,000.

The compensation to be paid to any individual, firm, company, association, corporation, or organized manufacturing industry for its products or material, or as rental for use of any manufacturing plant while used by the United States, shall be fair and just.

The Secretary of War shall also make, or cause to be made, a complete list of all privately owned plants in the United States equipped to manufacture arms or ammunition, or the component parts thereof. He shall obtain full and complete information regarding the kind of arms or ammunition, or the component parts thereof, manufactured or that can be manufactured by each such plant, the equipment in each plant, and the maximum capacity thereof. He shall also prepare, or cause to be prepared, a list of privately owned manufacturing plants in the United States capable of being readily transformed into ammunition factories, where the capacity of the plant is sufficient to warrant transforming such plant or plants into ammunition factories in time of war or when war shall be imminent; and as to all such plants the Secretary of War shall obtain full and complete information as to the equipment of each such plant, and he shall prepare comprehensive plans for transforming each such plant into an ammunition factory, or a factory in which to manufacture such parts of ammunition as in the opinion of the Secretary of War such plant is best adapted.

The President is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to appoint a Board on Mobilization of Industries Essential for Military Preparedness, nonpartisan in character, and to take all necessary steps to provide for such clerical assistance as he may deem necessary to organize and co-ordinate the work hereinbefore described.

INVESTIGATION AS TO GOVERNMENT MANUFACTURE OF ARMS, AND SO FORTH.

SEC. 121. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to appoint a board of five citizens, two of whom shall be civilians and three of whom shall be officers of the army, to investigate and report to him the feasibility, desirability, and practicability of the Government manufacturing arms, munitions, and equipment, showing in said report the comparative prices of the arms, munitions, and equipment manufactured in Government plants and those manufactured in private plants, the amount of money necessary to build and operate Government plants for the manufacture of arms, munitions, and equipment; showing also what the Government plants and arsenals are now doing in the way of manufacturing arms, munitions, and equipment, and what saving has accrued to the Government by reason of its having manufactured a large part of its own arms, munitions, and equipment for the last four years. And the Secretary of War is hereby directed to transmit said report to Congress on or before January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen.

INVESTIGATION CONCERNING MEDALS OF HONOR.

SEC 122. A board to consist of five general officers on the retired list of the army shall be convened by the Secretary of War, within sixty days after the approval of this act, for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon past awards or issues of the so-called Congressional Medal of Honor by or through the War Department; this with a view to ascertain what medals of honor, if any, have been awarded or issued for any cause other than distinguished conduct by an officer or enlisted man in action involving actual conflict with an enemy by such officer or enlisted man or by troops with which he was serving at the time of such action. And in any case in which said board shall find and report that said medal was issued for any cause other than that hereinbefore specified the name of the recipient of the medal so issued shall be stricken permanently from the official medal of honor list. It shall be a misdemeanor for him to wear or publicly display said medal, and, if he shall still be in the army, he shall be required to return said medal to the War Department for cancellation. Said board shall have full and free access to and use of all records pertaining to the award or issue of medals of honor by or through the War Department. The actual and necessary expenses of said board and its members shall be paid out of any appropriations available for contingent expenses of the army or the War Department.

PROCUREMENT OF GAUGES, DIES, JIGS, ETC., NECESSARY FOR MANUFACTURE OF ARMS, ETC.

SEC. 123. The Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to prepare or cause to be prepared, to purchase or otherwise procure, such gauges, dies, jigs, tools, fixtures, and other special aids and appliances, including specifications and detailed drawings, as may be necessary for the immediate manufacture, by the Government and by private manufacturers, of arms, ammunition, and special equipment necessary to arm and equip the land forces likely to be required by the United States in time of war: Provided, That in the expenditure of any sums appropriated to carry out the purposes of this section the existing laws prescribing competition in the procurement of suplies by purchase shall not govern, whenever in the opinion of the Secretary of War such action will be for the best interest of the public service.

NITRATE SUPPLY.

SEC. 124. The President of the United States is hereby authorized and empowered to make, or cause to be made, such investigation as in his judgment is necessary to determine the best, cheapest, and most available means for the production of nitrates and other products for munitions of war and useful in the manufacture of fertilizers and other useful products by water power or any other power as in his judgment is the best and cheapest to use; and is also hereby authorized and empowered to designate for the exclusive use of the United States, if in his judgment such means is best and cheapest, such site or sites, upon any navigable or non-navigable river or rivers or upon the public lands, as in his opinion will be necessary for carrying out the purposes of this act; and is further authorized to construct, maintain, and operate, at or on any site or sites so designated, dams, locks improvements to navigation, power houses, and other plants and equipment or other means than water power as in his judgment is the best and cheapest, necessary or convenient for the generation of electrical or other power and for the production of nitrates or other products needed for munitions of war and useful in the manufacture of fertilizers and other useful products.

The President is authorized to lease, purchase, or acquire, by condemnation, gift, grant, or devise, such lands and rights of way as may be necessary for the construction and operation of such plants, and to take from any lands of the United States, or to purchase or acquire by condemnation materials, minerals and processes, patented or otherwise, necessary for the construction and operation of such plants and for the manufacture of such products.

The products of such plants shall be used by the President for military and naval purposes to the extent that he may deem necessary, and any surplus which he shall determine is not required shall be sold and disposed of by him under such regulations as he may prescribe.

The President is hereby authorized and empowered to employ such officers, agents, or agencies as may in his discretion be necessary to enable him to carry out the purposes herein specified, and to authorize and require such officers, agents, or agencies to perform any and all of the duties imposed upon him by the provisions hereof.

The sum of $20,000,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, available until expended, to enable the President of the United States to carry out the purposes herein provided for.

The plant or plants provided for under this act shall be constructed and operated solely by the Government and not in conjunction with any other industry or enterprise carried on by private capital.

In order to raise the money appropriated by this act and necessary to carry its provisions into effect, the Secretary of the Treasury, upon the request of the President of the United States, may issue and sell, or use for such purpose or construction hereinabove authorized, any of the bonds of the United States now available in the Treasury of the United States under the Act of August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine, the Act of February fourth, nineteen hundred and ten, and the Act of March second, nineteen hundred and eleven, relating to the issue of bonds for the construction of the Panama Canal, to a total amount not to exceed $20,000,000: Provided, That any Panama Canal bonds issued and sold or used under the provisions of this section may be made payable at such time after issue as the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, may deem advisable, and fix, instead of fifty years after date of issue, as in said Act of August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine, not exceeding fifty years.

PROTECTION OF THE UNIFORM.

SEC. 125. It shall be unlawful for any person not an officer or enlisted man of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, to wear the duly prescribed uniform of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, or any distinctive part of such uniform, or a uniform any part of which is similar to a distinctive part of the duly prescribed uniform of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps: Provided, That the foregoing provision shall not be construed so as to prevent officers or enlisted men of the National Guard from wearing, in pursuance of law and regulations, the uniform lawfully prescribed to be worn by such officers or enlisted men of the National Guard; nor to prevent members of the organization known as the Boy Scouts of America, or the Naval Militia, or such other organizations as the Secretary of War may designate, from wearing their prescribed uniforms; nor to prevent persons who in time of war have served honorably as officers of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, regular or volunteer, and whose most recent service was terminated by an honorable discharge, muster out, or resignation, from wearing, upon occasions of ceremony, the uniform of the highest grade they have held by brevet or other commission in such regular or volunteer service; nor to prevent any person who has been honorably discharged from the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, regular or volunteer, from wearing his uniform from the place of his discharge to his home, within three months after the date of such discharge; nor to prevent the members of military societies composed entirely of honorably discharged officers or enlisted men, or both, of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, regular or volunteer, from wearing, upon occasions of ceremony, the uniform duly prescribed by such societies to be worn by the members thereof; nor to prevent the instructors and members of the duly organized cadet corps of a State university, State college, or public high school offering a regular course in military instruction from wearing the uniform duly prescribed by the authorities of such university, college, or public high school for wear by the instructors and members of such cadet corps; nor to prevent the instructors and members of the duly organized cadet corps of any other institution of learning offering a regular course in military instruction, and at which an officer or enlisted man of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps is lawfully detailed for duty as instructor in military science and tactics, from wearing the uniform duly prescribed by the authorities of such institution of learning for wear by the instructors and members of such cadet corps; nor to prevent civilians attendant upon a course of military or naval instruction authorized and conducted by the military or naval authorities of the United States from wearing, while in attendance upon such course of instruction, the uniform authorized and prescribed by such military or naval authorities for wear during such course of instruction; nor to prevent any person from wearing the uniform of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps in any playhouse or theatre or in moving-picture films while actually engaged in representing therein a military or naval character not tending to bring discredit or reproach upon the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps: Provided further, That the uniforms worn by officers or enlisted men of the National Guard, or by the members of the military societies or the instructors and members of the cadet corps referred to in the preceding proviso shall include some distinctive mark or insignia to be prescribed by the Secretary of War to distinguish such uniforms from the uniforms of the United States Army, Navy, and Marine Corps: And provided further, That the members of the military societies and the instructors and members of the cadet corps hereinbefore mentioned shall not wear the insignia of rank prescribed to be worn by officers of the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, or any insignia of rank similar thereto.

Any person who offends against the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding $300, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 126. On and after July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, an enlisted man when discharged from the service, except by way of punishment for an offence, shall receive 3½ cents per mile from the place of his discharge to the place of his acceptance for enlistment, enrolment, or original muster into the service, at his option: Provided, That for sea travel on discharge, transportation and subsistence only shall be furnished to enlisted men.

SEC. 127. Nothing in this act shall be held or construed so as to discharge any officer from the regular army or to deprive him of the commission which he now holds therein.

SEC. 128. All laws and parts of laws in so far as they are inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved, June 3, 1916.

THE WORLD'S COURT LEAGUE.

For the purpose of securing concerted action to establish an International Court of Justice.

Platform—We believe it to be desirable that a league among nations should be organized for the following purposes:

1. A World court, in general similar to the Court of Arbitral Justice, already agreed upon at the Second Hague Conference, should be, as soon as possible, established as an international court of justice, representing the nations of the world, and, subject to the limitations of treaties, empowered to assume jurisdiction over international questions in dispute that are justiciable in character, and that are not settled by negotiation.

2. All other international controversies not settled by negotiation should be referred to the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague, or submitted to a council of conciliation, or International Commission of Inquiry, for hearing, consideration and recommendation.

3. Soon after peace is declared there should be held either "a conference of all great governments," as described in the United States Naval Appropriation Act of 1916, or a similar assembly, formally designated as the Third Hague Conference, and the sessions of such international conferences should become permanently periodic at shorter intervals than formerly.

Such conference or conferences should

(a) Formulate and adopt plans for the establishment of a World Court and an International Council of Conciliation, and

(b) From time to time formulate and codify rules of international law, which, unless some constituent State shall signify its dissent within a stated period, shall govern in the decisions of the World Court.

4. In connection with the establishment of automatically periodic sessions of an international conference the constituent governments should establish a permanent continuation committee of the conference, with such administrative powers as may be delegated to it by the conference.

The organization of an international court of justice with the necessary attendant institutional machinery, sustained by a strong public opinion, is the irreducible minimum in the demands of all workers for peace with justice. Hence the league stands for common ground upon which all such workers can meet and co-operate. Official organ, The World Court, published monthly.

AMERICAN PIONEERS OF '98.

This organization was formed and registered with headquarters in San Juan, Porto Rico, December, 1913, for the purpose of promoting social intercourse and friendship, and providing means for closer ties of friendship, between the American pioneers of Porto Rico, who constitute its membership, and to maintain a register of American pioneers in Porto Rico. President—Noah Shepard. Secretary—H. L. Moore. Treasurer—John E. Heinzman.

KNIGHTS OF WASHINGTON.

THE GIRLS NATIONAL HONOR GUARD

Founded and organized by Miss Theodora Booth, for the purpose of creating a spirit of patriotism and duty among the girls of America.

The duties of "The Girls National Honor Guard" shall be to inculcate the spirit of unity and learning to do one thing well, which shall prove of helpfulness and value both in duration of peace as well as times of war. Hence it shall be the duty of each girl of the Honor Guard to maintain the honor of the country, the principles of the Government of the United States and the respect and honor of its flag.

Any girl while having full freedom to express her views respecting any policy, action or conduct on the part of those holding executive office in the United States, shall yet respect the position of the same and accord that position the sustained respect and deference due it.

Any young woman between the ages of fourteen and thirty years with a knowledge of the working of her Government and a recognition of the needs of her country and an appreciation of the sacredness of her obligations, is eligible for admission.

There are three divisions—

First aid to the wounded—Comprising emergency treatment in accidents, sterilizing, bandaging, diet-cooking, etc.

The second division—First aid to families, comprising care of children, plain cooking, sewing, social service, nursing, etc.

The third division—First aid in general utility, comprising riding, swimming, telegraphy, stenography, agriculture, etc.

The Honor Guard is a strictly first aid organization. In all disasters, local or National, the Honor Guard girls will be ready to give practical aid. Co-operation with the Government eliminates confliction. No one in the organization receives a salary. Dues are twenty-five (25) cents a year. There are no creed or social restrictions. There are members of the Guard in almost every State in the Union. Over five thousand girls are enrolled in the organization, each one of whom is earnestly and efficiently preparing to serve her country in at least one definite way.

Forty-five active Governors have indorsed "The Girls National Honor Guard." It has the approval of the leading preparedness organizations and the officials of the country. It is financially supported by benefits given by the members themselves, each local Guard always having a reserve fund. The National advisers of the Honor Guard are as follows:

Edward J. Wheeler, Editor Current Opinion; William Conant Church, Editor Army and Navy Journal; Nathaniel R. Usher, Rear-Admiral U. S. Navy; Ballington Booth, President Volunteers of America; Leonard Wood, Major-General U. S. Army; James E. Clarke, National Secretary Conference Common National Preparedness; Henry L. West, National Secretary National Security League; John F. O'Ryan, Major-General New York National Guard.

The National officers of "The Girls National Honor Guard" are: President, Miss Theodora Booth; Vice-President, Miss Agnes Smith; Treasurer, Miss Reed Askin; Secretary, Miss Dorothy Hoar.

National headquarters, 64 West Twenty-eighth Street, New York City.

UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY AT WEST POINT.

EACH Senator, Congressional District, and Territory, including Porto Rico, Alaska, and Hawaii, is entitled to have two cadets at the academy; the District of Columbia, four cadets. There are also eighty appointments at large, specially conferred by the President of the United States. The law (act of May 4, 1916) authorizes the President to appoint cadets to the United States Military Academy from among enlisted men in the regular army and National Guard, the total number not to exceed one hundred and eighty at any one time.

Annual Increments—States at large, 21; Congressional Districts, 92; Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Porto Rico, combined, 1 each year to the source longest without an appointment, and when the periods are equal the choice to be by lot; honor schools, 5; regular army, 23 in 1916, 22 in 1917, 23 in 1918, and 22 in 1919; National Guard, 22 in 1916, 23 in 1917, 22 in 1918, and 23 in 1919.

Appointments are usually made one year in advance of date of admission, by the Secretary of War, upon the nomination of the Senator or Representative. These nominations may either be made after competitive examination or given direct, at the option of the Representative. The Representative may nominate two legally qualified second candidates, to be designated first and second alternates. The alternates will receive from the War Department a letter of appointment, and will be examined with the regular appointee, and the better qualified will be admitted to the academy in the event of the failure of the principal to pass the prescribed preliminary examinations. Appointees to the Military Academy must be between seventeen and twenty-two years of age, free from any infirmity which may render them unfit for military service, and able to pass, unless a satisfactory certificate is submitted, a careful examination in English grammar, English composition, English literature, algebra through quadratic equations, plane geometry, descriptive geography and the elements of physical geography, especially the geography of the United States, United States history, the outlines of general history. The Secretary of War is authorized to permit not exceeding four Filipinos, to be designated, one for each class, by the Governor-General of the Philippine Islands, to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy at West Point; Provided, That the Filipinos undergoing instruction shall receive the same pay, allowances, and emoluments as are authorized by law for cadets at the Military Academy appointed from the United States, to be paid out of the same appropriations; And provided further, That said Filipinos undergoing instruction on graduation shall be eligible only to commissions in the Philippine Scouts; serve for eight years, unless sooner discharged.

The course of instruction, which is quite thorough, requires four years, and is largely mathematical and professional. The principal subjects taught are mathematics, English, French, drawing, drill regulations of all arms of the service, natural and experimental philosophy, chemistry, chemical physics, mineralogy, geology, electricity, history, international, constitutional, and military law, Spanish, civil and military engineering, art and science of war, and ordnance and gunnery. About one-fourth of those appointed usually fail to pass the preliminary examinations, and but little over one-half the remainder are finally graduated. The discipline is very strict—even more so than in the army—and the enforcement of penalties for offences is inflexible rather than severe. Academic duties begin September 1 and continue until June 4. Examinations for cadets not having made satisfactory progress in studies are held in each December and June, and cadets found proficient in studies and correct in conduct are given the particular standing in their class to which their merits entitle them.

From about the middle of June to the end of August cadets live in camp, engaged only in military duties and receiving practical military instruction. Cadets are allowed but one leave of absence during the four years' course, and this is granted at the expiration of the first two years. The pay of a cadet is $709.50 per year, and, with proper economy, is sufficient for his support.

Upon graduating, cadets are commissioned as Second Lieutenants in the United States Army. The whole number of graduated from 1802 to 1916, inclusive, has been 5,601. It is virtually absolutely necessary for a person seeking an appointment to apply to his Senator or Member of Congress. The Superintendent is Colonel John Biddle, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., and the military and academic staff consists of 136 persons.

AERONAUTICS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The United States is one of the most backward world powers in the development of aviation. Aircraft of every design and for every purpose is in use abroad, and the aeronautic service of any one of the European belligerents is said to be ten times the strength the United States will have when machines now under order are delivered. The United States has been using only reconnaissance and training type craft. Three new types, pursuit, bomb dropping and scout models, are being developed. One dirigible balloon is in service in the Navy, and captive and migrating balloons are being constructed. The last Congress appropriated $17,457,666 for current maintenance of military aviation and permanent increases in aeronautic strength. This is divided $13,881,666 for the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps of the Army, $3,500,000 for the Naval Flying Corps, $76,000 for special training of National Guardsmen.

The total flying strength of the United States, including aircraft now in service and that under order for delivery early in 1917, is 522 planes, balloons and dirigibles. The men authorized to be utilized for aviation under the National Defense Act are 2,028, being 148 officers and 1,200 enlisted men from the Army, and 150 officers and 350 enlisted men from the Navy. This also includes 30 acting ensigns and 150 student flyers to be appointed respectively to the Navy and Army from civil life. Provision for an Aviation Section Signal Reserve Corps has also been made to consist of 296 reserve officers and 2,000 enlisted reserves from the Army. There are three training schools, and as many of these as consistent with available facilities will be instructed. An effort to encourage the aeroplane manufacturing industry in this country and to standardize types is being made by the Army. Contracts are let to all companies bidding who can construct required designs at reasonable figures, and the Government is willing to buy faster than the contractors can build the planes. There is no official aeroplane model in this country, though the Curtiss machine is more common in the Army. A special committee of the Army General Staff was appointed last Spring to look generally into Army aviation with a view to reorganizing the service. Its recommendations were made and the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps in its present status, resulted from its work. The efforts of that committee are now of a passive and advisory nature. There is a National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, composed of flying and construction experts from the Army and Navy and prominent engineers from civil life. The Technical Aero Advisory and Inspection Committee, composed of five officers of the Aviation Section, is the efficient organization directing the development of Army Aeronautics. The development of naval aviation is handled by the Bureaus of Operation and Construction and Repair. (The Naval Flying Corps, those men engaged in development of naval aviation, may have an official status by January 1.)

The battleship North Carolina has been assigned as the aviation ship of the Navy.

The Army has four aero squadrons organized. Practically all aeroplanes comprising these squadrons are of the "tractor" type, and some of these are "twin tractors."

Aero Squadrons:

First Aero Squadron, Columbus, N. M.

Second Aero Squadron, Manila, P. I. (incomplete).

Third Aero Squadron, San Antonio, Tex.

Fourth Aero Squadron, San Antonio, Tex.

Four planes, with reserve planes, comprise one company.

Three companies, 12 planes with reserve, make one squadron.

There is a company and a half, or 6 planes, with reserve planes, at the Philippine base.

It costs approximately $800,000 to equip a squadron, including transportation vehicles, hangars, planes, reserve planes, extra parts, etc.

AVIATION SECTION, SIGNAL CORPS.

The National Defence Act, approved June 3, 1916, amended the act of July 18, 1914, relating to the aviation section of the Signal Corps, by authorizing a maximum number of officers of each grade from Colonel to First Lieutenant, inclusive, giving an increase to be added in five annual increments, so that on July 1, 1920, the aviation section will consist of 1 Colonel, 1

Lieutenant Colonel, 8 Majors, 24 Captains, and 114 First Lieutenants, inclusive, and such number of enlisted men as may be fixed by the President from time to time. Aviation officers may be detailed from the Army at large from corresponding grades or from grades below; those while on duty that requires them to participate regularly and frequently in aerial flights shall receive an increase of 25 per centum of the pay of their grades and length of service under their commissions; those rated as junior military aviators shall have the rank, pay and allowances of one grade higher than their line commission, and shall have an increase of 50 per centum in the pay of his grade and length of service under their commissions, and similarly those rated as military aviators shall have an increase of 75 per centum in their pay while on duty that requires them to participate regularly and frequently in aerial flights.

MILITARY EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM OF THE UNITED STATES.

THE military educational system of the United States, exclusive of the Military Academy at West Point, comprises the following:

I. The Army War College, Washington, D. C., under the management of a President and directors detailed from officers of the army. The course of instruction is for one year, beginning September 1. A limited number of officers not below the rank of Captain, selected on account of exceptional efficiency and fitness, are detailed annually for instruction. The purpose of the college is to make practical application of knowledge already acquired, not to impart academic instruction.

II. The Army Service Schools. The group of schools established at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., consisting of the Army School of the Line as the basic school, the Army Staff College, the Army Signal School, the Army Field Engineer School, and the Army Field Service and Correspondence School for Medical Officers as special affiliated schools, are designated the Army Service Schools, and are under the direction of a Commandant not of lower grade than that of a Brigadier-General.

The course of instruction at the schools, except as otherwise stated, is included in one term from September 1 to June 30 of the following year.

1. The Army School of the Line. The object of this school is the instruction of selected officers from the line of the army in the leading and care of troops in time of war and their training in time of peace. The Assistant Commandant of the Army Service Schools is also the Director of the School of the Line.

Upon graduation, the student class are graded, in order of merit, as "honor graduates," "distinguished graduates," and "graduates," respectively.

2. The Army Staff College, for the instruction of officers detailed annually from the highest graduates of the latest class of the School of the Line, recommended by the Academic Board of that school. The object of this college is to impart instruction to officers in the duties of the general staff of an army; to prepare them for the Army War College and to investigate military inventions, discoveries and developments.

The Commandant, Assistant Commandant, Secretary and Senior Instructors of the School of the Line hold corresponding positions in the Staff College.

3. The Army Signal School, for instruction of officers of the Signal Corps in their duties, including aeronautics; for instruction of officers of the line, who are designated therefor, in signal duties, and to make research and experiments in subjects pertaining to the work of the Signal Corps. The school is under the general direction of the Commandant of the Army School of the Line.

4. The Army Field Engineer School, for the instruction of officers of the Engineer Corps, not exceeding ten, and engineer officers of the National Guard.

5. The Army Field Service and Correspondence School for Medical Officers, for the instruction of officers of the Medical Corps and of the National Guard. Part one of this school requires attendance in person for a graded course of study, and part two for a course by correspondence. The course of instruction is eight weeks, from April 1 of each year. Students who complete the course satisfactorily receive certificates of proficiency.

III. The Army Medical School, Washington, D. C., for the instruction of medical officers of the army, candidates for appointment in the Medical Corps, and medical officers of the National Guard. The faculty consists of a President and Instructors. The course of instruction is for eight months, from October 1 each year. Graduates receive diplomas.

IV. The Coast Artillery School, Fortress Monroe, Virginia. The object of this school is to enlarge the field of instruction of the garrison schools for Coast Artillery officers by advanced courses of study and practical training in technical duties; to prepare specially selected officers for the more important positions in the Coast Artillery; also to educate and train selected enlisted men for the higher non-commissioned staff grades in the Coast Artillery. The courses of instruction for officers and enlisted men are each comprised in one school year, from January 3 to December 1. Special courses in ballistics are also provided.

Officers who are graduated are furnished with diplomas, as "honor graduates," "distinguished graduates," or "graduates," according to their standing.

V. The Engineer School, Washington Barracks, D. C. This school is under the control of the Chief of Engineers. Its object is to prepare junior officers of engineers for the active duties of their corps; to make experiments and recommendations, and to give instruction pertaining to the civil engineering work of the army. The course of instruction is thirteen months, beginning September 1, and ending September 30, the following year. Diplomas are given to students who successfully complete the course.

VI. The Mounted Service School, Fort Riley, Kansas, is under the command of a field officer detailed for that purpose, who also commands the post of Fort Riley. The object of the school is to give practical instruction to field and company officers of cavalry and field artillery, and to farriers and horseshoers. The courses for field officers begin April 1 and October 10; the courses for company officers are from September 25 to June 30, following, for the first-year course, and from July 1 to June 30, following, for the second-year course, and for farriers and horseshoers two courses of four months each. Company officers who are graduated receive diplomas.

VII. The School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for practical instruction in field artillery firing. Courses of instruction are prescribed: A. for Captains and Lieutenants; B. for field officers of field artillery; C. for non-commissioned officers, and D. for officers of the militia. Officers and enlisted men who complete any course satisfactorily receive certificates of proficiency.

VIII. School of Musketry, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for instruction in small-arms firing.

IX. Garrison Schools, one at each military post, for the instruction of officers of the army and the National Guard, in subjects pertaining to their ordinary duties. The course covers three years and the annual terms five months each, from November 1. Certificates of proficiency in each subject of study are given to those who pass the prescribed examination therein.

X. Post Schools for Instruction of Enlisted Men in the common branches of education and military subjects.

XI. Schools for Bakers and Cooks, at The Presidio of Monterey, California, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort Shafter, Hawaii; Washington, D. C., and Fort Riley, Kansas, for the instruction of selected enlisted men.

XII. The Signal Corps Aviation School. The object of this school is the training of officers and enlisted men in matters of military aviation. For Training Schools see preceding page.

An Act of Congress approved June 30, 1914, provides that "Hereafter the total number of Chaplains and Acting-Chaplains in the Navy shall be one to each twelve hundred and fifty of the total personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps as fixed by law, including Midshipmen, apprentice seamen and naval prisoners, and of the total number of Chaplains and Acting-Chaplains herein authorized, ten per centum thereof shall have the rank of Captain in the Navy, twenty per centum the rank of Commander, twenty per centum the rank of Lieutenant-Commander, and the remainder to have the rank of Lieutenant and Lieutenant (junior grade)." Acting-Chaplains have the rank, pay and allowances of Lieutenant (junior grade), and, after serving as such at sea for three years, are appointed Chaplains. The act provides further that not more than seven Acting-Chaplains shall be commissioned Chaplains in any one year.

(a) Figures to the nearest dollar. The base pay in all armies is increased for length of service by percentages similar in all. In European armies officers receive extensive allowances in addition to their pay. The laws and regulations in the different countries about pay and allowances are so voluminous and cover so many varying conditions that a simple comparison of the amounts received either in pay or allowances is very difficult. The table gives, however, approximately the minimum pay for the grade.

(b) Grade of Lieut.-General discontinued in United States by Act of Congress, March 2, 1907.

(c) In the British army and many others the grade of Brigadier-General is not a permanent grade, but is temporary and ex-officio only.

(d) In United States pay is increased with each enlistment to the seventh. Enlisted men may retire on thirty years' service with 75 per cent. of pay and allowances.

NOTE—The United States and Great Britain are the only countries having volunteer armies, and the United States the only one having a thoroughly democratic army in which both officers and men are drawn from all walks of life and which, therefore, has to offer monetary inducements in competition with the wages of labor.

In a memorandum for the Secretary of War on the subject of the pay and allowances of the different countries Brig.-Gen. M. M. Macomb, President of Army War College, made the following remarks:

"In order to make intelligent comparison of the figures given it is necessary to take into account—

1. The purchasing power of a dollar, or the cost of living in different countries.

2. That the United States and Great Britain are the only countries adhering to a volunteer system and hence having to offer monetary inducements for soldiers in competition with the wages of labor.

3. That as regards officers, the United States has the only democratic volunteer army. Its officers are drawn from all walks of life, and it is supposed that their salaries are sufficient to support them and their families.

In Great Britain officers are drawn almost entirely from the upper and wealthier classes, and it is not supposed that their salaries are sufficient to support them. For example, second sons and remittance men generally, if possible, become officers of the army or navy, enter the diplomatic service or the clergy.

In Germany an officer before receiving permission to marry must show that he or his wife has sufficient private income to maintain himself according to his position.

In the matter of pay a simple comparison of the figures in this table, without having in mind the preceding remarks, can only lead to erroneous conclusions.

ALLOWANCES.

In the matter of allowances, all soldiers in all armies receive quarters, clothing, and rations. All officers receive quarters or allowance in lieu thereof. All mounted officers receive allowances for horse and equipment. Beyond these the allowances in different armies are impossible of comparison. In the United States officers receive allowances for fuel and light, extra pay when on aviation duty, and both officers and soldiers receive additional pay for tropical service.

In European armies the pay for different duties and the allowances for different circumstances are so many that books are required to cover them. In Russia, for example, the subject of pay is covered in four volumes.

In England additional pay is given for foreign service, for command, for armament pay, for engineer pay, for corps pay, and allowances for fuel, light, servants, mess, official entertainments, etc.

In France additional pay is given for children, for belonging to the Legion of Honor, for prison duty, for marches and manœuvres, for being stationed in Paris (on account of the high cost of living), etc., and allowances for service expenses incident to commands, office expenses, etc.

In general, the allowances in Europe for officers are relatively greater than in the United States and the pay less. But the allowances are so varied, not only between different grades but between officers and soldiers of the same grades, and the whole subject so comprehensive that any attempt to reduce the allowances of the armies of the world to a uniform basis so that they can be compared in a table is an impossibility.

INTERNATIONAL ORDER OF THE KING'S DAUGHTERS AND SONS.

Headquarters, 280 Madison Avenue, New York City. Officers: President—Mrs. A. H. Evans. General Secretary—Miss Clara Morehouse. Treasurer—Mrs. K. M. Farnsworth.

The order is an interdenominational, religious and philanthropic society, working locally in Circles, County and City Unions, Chapters, National, State and Provincial organizations. Branches are established in thirty-two States and in eight Canadian provinces.

The objects of the order are "the development of spiritual life and the stimulation of Christian activities." It has a paid membership in all countries of 58,000. The order has established and is supporting several hundred institutions of different kinds in different localities. Its members are engaged in every form of helpful work, religious, educational and philanthropic. The badge is a small silver cross, which is also the corporate seal of the society. A monthly magazine, The Silver Cross, is the official organ of the order.

SOLDIERS' HOMES.

NATIONAL HOME FOR DISABLED VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.

President of the Board of Managers .....Gen. George H. Wood, Dayton, Ohio.
Secretary .....Hon. James S. Catherwood, Hoopeston, Illinois.

There are branches of the National Home at Dayton, Ohio; Milwaukee, Wis.; Togus, Me.; Hampton, Va.; Leavenworth, Kan.; Santa Monica, Cal.; Marion, Ind.; Danville, Ill.; Johnson City, Tenn., and Hot Springs S. Dak. The aggregate number of members cared for is about 32,000.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

1. An honorable discharge from the United States service during a war in which it was engaged.
2. Disability which prevents the applicant from earning his living by labor.
3. Applicants for admission will be required to stipulate and agree to abide by all the rules and regulations made by the Board of Managers, or by its order; to perform all duties required of them, and to obey all the lawful orders of the officers of the Home. Attention is called to the fact that by the law establishing the Home the members are made subject to the Rules and Articles of War, and will be governed thereby in the same manner as if they were in the Army of the United States.
4. A soldier or sailor must forward with his application for admission his Discharge Paper, and when he is a pensioner his Pension Certificate, which papers will be retained at the branch to which the applicant is admitted, to be kept there for him, and returned to him when he is discharged. This rule is adopted to prevent the loss of such papers and certificates, and to hinder fraudulent practices; and no application will be considered unless these papers are sent with it. If the original discharge does not exist, a copy of discharge, certified by the War or Navy Department, or by the Adjutant-General of the State, must accompany the application.

There are State Homes for disabled volunteer soldiers provided by the States of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

UNITED STATES SOLDIERS' HOME FOR THE REGULAR ARMY.

The United States Soldiers' Home in the District of Columbia receives and maintains discharged soldiers of the regular army. All soldiers who have served twenty years as enlisted men in the army (including volunteer service, if any), or who have served in any war, and all soldiers of less than twenty years' service who have incurred such disability, by wounds, disease, or injuries in the line of duty while in the regular army, as unfits them for further service, are entitled to the benefits of the Home.

Pensions of inmates are drawn by the Treasurer of the Home and held in trust for the pensioner, to whom it is paid in such sums as the Governor of the Home deems proper while he is an inmate of the Home, the balance being paid in full when he takes his discharge and leaves the Home.

Inmates are subject to the Rules and Articles of War, the same as soldiers in the army. They are comfortably lodged, fed, and clothed, and receive medical attendance and medicine, all without cost to them. There are 1,453 men now receiving the benefits of the Home.

Applications for admission to the Home may be addressed to the "Board of Commissioners, U. S. Soldiers' Home, War Department, Washington, D. C.," and must give date of enlistment and date of discharge, with letter of company and number of regiment for each and every term of service, and rate of pension, if any, and must be accompanied by a medical certificate showing nature and degree of disability if any exists.

AERO SCIENCE CLUB OF AMERICA.

The Aero Science Club of America was formed in 1914. Its membership consists of college students and others interested in the science. Its purpose is to further the science of aeronautics. The club has branches in all parts of the United States, the branches consisting of the leading model aeroplane clubs in America. Kite flying also forms an important addition to the activities of the club. President—Harry G. Schultz. Secretary—Fred C. Thiele. Treasurer—Ladis Gladki. MILITARY SMALL ARMS.

COMPILED from latest available data. Changes are frequently made, and it is difficult to present accurate statistics.

About 1880 all the civilized countries began rearming their troops with magazine rifles of small calibre, using high power cartridges with smokeless powder. Modifications and improvements in these as well as in carbines and pistols, have materially added to their effectiveness. At the present time no great difference exists in the effectiveness of the kinds of rifles with which the armies of the great powers are supplied with regard to their ranges and shooting qualities. It is well known that the effectiveness of any arm depends greatly on the experience and skill of the men who use it, and that, other things being equal, the troops most thoroughly instructed and drilled in the use of the rifle are the most efficient in battle.

An automatic rifle will be, doubtless, the military weapon of the near future. The United States and nearly all of the principal countries of Europe have been experimenting with rifles of this type. It seems, however, that, as yet, no automatic shoulder rifle has been brought forward that is considered to be sufficiently reliable and effective for war purposes to justify the great expense of adopting it in the place of those now in use.

A few years ago the Mexican Government ordered some 4,000 rifles of the automatic type, known as the "Mondragon," with which to arm part of its army. This gun has the same calibre and uses the same cartridge as the German Mauser, with which the Mexican troops are mostly armed, but information as to the result of this experiment of introducing an automatic rifle to actual military use is lacking.

Germany adopted an automatic pistol for military use in 1908. The United States has adopted for the Army and Navy, in place of the service revolver, the Colt automatic pistol, after extended experiments and tests. This is regarded as a very effective weapon. Its length is 8.5 inches; length of barrel, 5 inches; weight, 2 lbs. 7 oz.; calibre, .45; cartridges in magazine, 7. The German automatic pistol has a length of 8.54 inches; length of barrel, 4.02 inches; weight, 1 lb. 13½ oz.; calibre, .35; cartridges in magazine, 8.

The core of the bullet used in the above mentioned rifles is hard lead, except the German bullet, which is soft lead, the French, copper, and the United States, lead and tin. Mostly all the bu lets are pointed. The pointed bullet was first adopted by the French some years ago. * Springfield type. † 22.55 grams. ‡ Three-line rifle, which refers to calibration. A line is a unit varying in different countries from one-tenth to one-twelfth of an inch. Three-line would be about .30 calibre. In the case of Russia, actually .312 calibre.

AUTOMOBILES IN NEW YORK STATE.

The tremendous growth in the use of motor vehicles in New York State is demonstrated by the registration and license figures, together with the total receipts since 1910. In the early years, however, annual registration was unnecessary, so that the figures up to 1910 do not show the total number of machines in operation, only those registered in each year. When the present law took effect in August, 1910, there was a reregistration of all machines. The official figures for the registration of cars, licensing of chauffeurs, with the total receipts, are:

Alaska has no militia, though provision is made for such if need arises. Guam and Samoa have each a small provisional force, used more for police purposes than for military. The Philippines have a constabulary force which can be used either for police or war purposes, provided the latter is on the islands. Porto Rico has a regiment of eight companies of infantry which is a part of the army The enlisted men of this regiment are natives of Porto Rico. The reserve militia in the Southern States is assumed to include negroes capable of bearing arms.

UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS.

Commandant—Major-General George Barnett.

Adjutant and Inspector's Department—Brig.-Gen. Charles H. Lauchheimer. Quartermaster's Department—Brig.-Gen. Charles L. McCawley. Paymaster's Department—Brig.-Gen. George Richards. Headquarters, Navy Building, Washington, D. C.

The United States Marine Corps is an independent branch of the military service of the United States serving generally under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy. The corps may be detached by order of the President for service with the army, and on various occasions parts of the corps have so served.

Marines served on shore and on board vessels of the navy throughout the Revolutionary War, two battalions having been authorized by the Continental Congress November 10, 1775, but the present organization dates from July 11, 1798, when an Act of Congress was approved establishing and organizing a marine corps to consist of 1 major, 4 captains, 16 first lieutenants, 12 second lieutenants, 48 sergeants, 48 corporals, 32 drums and fifes, and 720 privates.

The authorized strength of the corps is (September 1, 1916) 597 officers, 40 warrant officers, 9 paymaster's clerks, and 14,981 enlisted men, as follows: 1 major-general commandant, 3 brigadier-generals, staff; 4 brigadier-generals, line; 16 colonels, 24 lieutenant-colonels, 68 majors, 180 captains, 150 first lieutenants, 151 second lieutenants, 20 marine gunners, 20 quartermaster clerks, 9 paymaster's clerks, 40 sergeant-majors, 201 quartermaster-sergeants, 1 drum major, 226 first sergeants, 218 gunnery sergeants, 1,011 sergeants, 1,802 corporals, 174 drummers, 174 trumpeters, 1 leader of the band, 1 second leader, 10 principal musicians, 25 first-class musicians, 20 second-class musicians, 10 third-class musicians, and 11,067 privates.

GENERAL OFFICERS OF THE MARINE CORPS, IN ADDITION TO THE COMMANDANT.

Brigadier-Generals, Staff—Charles H. Lauchheimer, Adjutant and Inspector; Charles L. McCawley, Quartermaster; George Richards, Paymaster. Brigadier-Generals, Line—Four, to be selected.

The following duties are assigned to the marine corps: To garrison the different navy yards and naval stations, both within and beyond the continental limits of the United States. To furnish the first line of the mobile defence of naval bases and naval stations beyond the continental limits of the United States. To man such naval defences, and to aid in manning, if necessary, such other defences as may be erected for the defence of naval bases and naval stations beyond the continental limits of the United States. To furnish such garrisons and expeditionary forces for duties beyond the seas as may be necessary in time of peace. To serve on board all battleships, battle cruisers, and armored cruisers of the navy, and such other vessels as may be directed, in detachments of not less than 8 per cent. of the strength of the enlisted men of the navy on such vessels. In case of disturbances in foreign countries marines are landed to protect American interests and to guard embassies and legations.

POINTS CONCERNING UNCLE SAM'S NAVY.

To provide for the welfare and comfort of the officers and enlisted men of the Navy during the fiscal year of 1917, it is going to cost Uncle Sam just $50,226,912.65. Of this amount $13,102,735 is required to pay the officers on the active list, while the retired officers receive the sum of $3.124,527.

The perquisites allowed officers of the Navy will aggregate about three-quarters of a million dollars in 1917. Of this amount $510,000 will be spent in providing quarters for those officers who cannot be accommodated in buildings or houses maintained by the Government. and $200,000 for the item of heat and light for officers using other than Government quarters and in Government quarters where no heating and lighting plant is maintained by the Government; also the item of rations for enlisted men and certain officers, which figured at 30 cents a day amounts to nearly $7,500,000. The sum of $765,000 is required to pay the midshipmen under instruction at the Naval Academy.

The pay of the enlisted men of the Navy is divided into the following items Pay of 68,700 petty officers, seamen, etc., $30,655,704; 6,000 apprentices under training, $999,630: 472 retired enlisted men $443,134, and 1,000 enlisted men in prisons undergoing sentences of court-martial, etc., $225,000

Each man in the Navy holding an honorable discharge receives a bounty This item will cost the Government $1,016,000 in 1917. There is also required the sum of $12,000 for interest on the deposits held by Uncle Sam for the enlisted men of the Navy. One hundred and nineteen thousand one hundred and eighty-two dollars is required to pay the Female Nurse Corps of the Navy and $15,000 is allowed them for commutation of quarters.

Each officer or enlisted man in the Navy who dies from wounds or disease contracted in the line of duty is entitled to have paid to his beneficiary a sum equal to one-half of his annual pay. For this purpose the sum of $75,000 will be required for the fiscal year 1917.

MORTALITY OF THE NAVY AND MARINE CORPS.

For comparison with civil mortality statistics, the following data concerning the mortality of the United States Navy and Marine Corps were supplied by the Surgeon-General of the Navy:

The low rates as compared with those of the registration area are, of course, dependent upon the special age distribution of the naval force, which is for the most part composed of men in the most favorable periods of life. The marked reduction in the mortality of the entire service from 8.88 in 1900 to 3.82 in 1913 is notable. Comparative figures for the English Navy, 1911, are as follows: Average strength of service afloat, 117,100; total deaths, 366, or 3.12 per 1,000; deaths from diseases, 260, or 2.22 per 1,000; deaths from violence, 106, or 0.90 per 1,000.

THE NAVY LEAGUE OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Navy League of the United States was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York on January 2, 1903, its declared object being "to acquire and spread before the citizens of the United States, through branch organizations and otherwise, information as to the condition of the naval forces and equipment of the United States, and to awaken public interest and co-operation in all matters tending to aid, improve and develop their efficiency." It is strictly non-partisan. Men, women and children are eligible to membership. The button of the league is of silver gilt and blue enamel, with letters in white and anchor of gold, and is worn by members. The membership fee is $2 annually. The headquarters of the league is at the Southern Building, Washington, D. C

The general officers are: President—Col. Robert M. Thompson. Secretary—Arthur H. Dadmun. Treasurer—Lewis L. Clarke.

CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS.

The Naval Appropriation Act, approved March 4, 1915, provides that "There shall be a Chief of Naval Operations, who shall be an officer on the active list of the Navy, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, from among the officers of the line of the Navy not below the grade of Captain, for a period of four years, who shall, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, be charged with the operations of the fleet, and with the preparation and readiness of plans for its use in war; Provided: That if an officer of the grade of Captain be appointed Chief of Naval Operations, he shall have the rank, title, and emoluments of a Rear-Admiral while holding that position."

The Naval Appropriation Act, approved August 29, 1916, provides that "Hereafter the Chief of Naval Operations, while so serving as such Chief of Naval Operations, shall have the rank and title of Admiral, to take rank next after the Admiral of the Navy, and shall, while so serving as Chief of Naval Operations, receive the pay of $10,000 per annum and no allowances. All orders issued by the Chief of Naval Operations in performing the duties assigned him shall be performed under the authority of the Secretary of the Navy, and his orders shall be considered as emanating from the Secretary, and shall have full force and effect as such. To assist the Chief of Naval Operations in performing the duties of his office there shall be assigned for this exclusive duty not less than fifteen officers of and above the rank of Lieutenant-Commander of the Navy or Major of the Marine Corps: Provided, That if an officer of the grade of Captain be appointed Chief of Naval Operations he shall have the rank and title of Admiral, as above provided, while holding that position: Provided further, That should an officer, while serving as Chief of Naval Operations, be retired from active service he shall be retired with the lineal rank and the retired pay to which he would be entitled had he not been serving as Chief of Naval Operations." Rear-Admiral William S. Benson, formerly Commandant of the Navy Yard, Philadelphia, Pa., is now serving as Chief of Naval Operations and holds the rank of Admiral while so serving.

The origin of the Navy Department may be said to date from October 13, 1775, when Congress authorized the equipment of two cruisers, mounting respectively 10 and 14 guns. Before the end of that year 15 more vessels of from 20 to 36 guns were authorized. The affairs of the Navy were at that time intrusted to a "Maritime Committee." In 1798 the present department was formally created, and Benjamin Stoddart appointed the first Secretary.

NAVY YARDS.

1. New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.
2. Boston Navy Yard, Boston, Mass.
3. Norfolk Navy Yard, near Norfolk, Va.
4. Portsmouth Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H.
5. Philadelphia Navy Yard, Philadelphia, Pa.
6. Mare Island Navy Yard, near San Francisco, Cal.
7. Washington Navy Yard, Washington, D. C.
8. Puget Sound Navy Yard, Bremerton, Wash.
9. Charleston Navy Yard, Charleston, S. C.
10. New Orleans Navy Yard, New Orleans, La.

There is a naval station at Key West, Fla., a torpedo and training station at Newport, R. I., a training station on Yerba Buena Island, Cal., and a training station at No. Chicago, Ill., an aeronautic station at Pensacola, Fla., and the Naval War College, Newport, R. I.

Naval stations have been established at Tutuila, Samoa; Island of Guam; Guantanamo, Cuba; Honolulu, H. T.; Cavite and Olongapo, Philippine Islands. The latter has become an important naval base for the Asiatic Fleet.

OLD VESSELS.

There are in the Navy a small number of old vessels which are unserviceable for war purposes. A number of these vessels are in service as receiving ships at the principal Navy Yards.

TUGS.

There are 50 tugs in the Naval Service, of which the Ontario and Sonoma have a displacement of 1,102 tons, and the two smallest, the Chickasaw and Waban, 100 and 150 tons respectively. These vessels are distributed among the various naval stations in the United States and the Philippine Islands.

JOINT STATE AND NAVY NEUTRALITY BOARD.

Shortly after the outbreak of the European war the President of the United States appointed a Neutrality Board to advise the Department of State and other departments of the Government regarding the numerous questions with respect to the duties and the rights of the United States as a neutral nation, in cases which have constantly arisen and many of which are of a very delicate character. The Chairman of the Neutrality Board is Dr. James Brown Scott, formerly Solicitor for the Department of State and now Secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and Director of its Division of International Law; associated with him are Capt. Harry S. Knapp, member of the General Board of the Navy and of the joint Army and Navy Board, and Capt. James H. Oliver, Director of the Office of Naval Intelligence and member of the General Board of the Navy. Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

The Neutrality Board holds daily sessions to consider questions referred to it by the Department of State.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ENLISTMENT.

THE term of enlistment in the Navy is four years, except for boys under eighteen, who enlist for minority, with the consent of parents or guardian. Minors over eighteen are enlisted without the consent of parents or guardian, but they must furnish a birth certificate or verified written statement of parent or guardian as to their age. Only American citizens of good character who may reasonably be expected to remain in the service are enlisted, and every applicant must pass the required physical examination, be able to read and write English and take the oath of allegiance. No boy under seventeen can be enlisted except by special permission from the department.

Information regarding rates, with pay, opportunities for advancement, allowances, etc., can be obtained by addressing: BUREAU OF NAVIGATION, NAVY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C.

NAVY RECRUITING SERVICE.

Publicity offices have been established at New York, N. Y. (318 West Thirty-ninth Street) for the Eastern district, and Indianapolis, Ind. (Post-Office Building), for the Western district, where full information regarding the pay, opportunities, etc., of service in the United States Navy may be obtained. Inquiries from the different States should be sent to the nearest of the two districts enumerated above. Address "Publicity Office, Navy Recruiting Service, 318 West Thirty-ninth Street, New York," or "Indianapolis, Ind.," as the case may be. All inquiries will be promptly answered by an officer of the Navy. Better still, if you are in a position to do so, call at the nearest station and get all information first hand from the enlisted men who have seen service in our Navy.

NAVAL CONSULTING BOARD.

The Secretary of the Navy, during the Summer of 1915, organized a Naval Consulting Board composed of a number of scientists for the purpose of making available the latent inventive genius of the country to improve the Navy by the development of inventions and such suggestions as may be of practical utility. In this connection it is the intention to establish an experimental and research laboratory in the Navy Department. The members of the Consulting Board will receive no compensation for their services, there being no provision of law providing therefor. In selecting the members of the board, the Secretary requested Mr. Thomas A. Edison to become Chairman, who has accepted such designation. He further requested eleven great engineering and scientific societies to select by popular election two members each to represent their society on the board. The board has since been legally organized in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Congress of August 29, 1916. A committee was appointed on September 19, 1916, to investigate proposed sites for the establishment of an experimental and research laboratory. The following are the societies with the members selected and accepted:

American Chemical Society—W. R. Whitney and L. H. Baekeland.

American Mathematical Society—Robert Simpson Woodward and Arthur Gordon Webster.

American Society of Civil Engineers—Andrew Murray Hunt and Alfred Craven.

American Aeronautical Society—Matthew Bacon Sellers and Hudson Maxim.

Inventors' Guild—Peter Cooper Hewitt and Thomas Robins.

American Society of Automobile Engineers—Howard E. Coffin and Andrew L. Riker.

American Institute of Mining Engineers—William Lawrence Saunders and Benjamin Bowditch Thayer.

American Electrochemical Society—Joseph William Richards and Lawrence Addicks.

American Society of Mechanical Engineers—William Le Roy Emmet and Spencer Miller.

American Society of Aeronautic Engineers—Elmer A. Sperry and Bion J. Arnold.

The following committees have been formulated to deal with the various kinds o. technical problems submitted by the Navy Department. The name of Chairman is given.

Chemistry and Physics—W. R. Whitney.

Internal Combustion Motors—Andrew L. Riker.

Electricity—Frank J. Sprague.

Submarines—William Le Roy Emmet.

Ordnance and Explosives—Hudson Maxim.

Wireless and Communications—P. C. Hewitt.

Transportation—Benjamin B. Thayer.

Production, Organization, Manufacture, and Standardization—Howard E. Coffin.

Ship Construction—Frank J. Sprague.

Steam Engineering and Ship Propulsion—Andrew M. Hunt.

Life-Saving Apparatus—Spencer Miller.

Aids to Navigation—Elmer A. Sperry.

Food and Sanitation—L. H. Baekeland.

Public Works, Yards, and Docks—Alfred Craven.

Oil Fuel—Spencer Miller.

All matters relating to the Naval Militia come under the cognizance of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who transacts all business with the Naval Militia through the Governors and Adjutants-General (or Quartermasters-General) of the States. The officer in the Navy Department, Washington, having charge of Naval Militia matters is Capt. T. P. Magruder, U. S. N.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY AT ANNAPOLIS.

THE students of the Naval Academy are called midshipmen. Three midshipmen are allowed for each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, two for the District of Columbia, fifteen each year from the United States at large and twenty-five each year from the enlisted personnel of the Navy who have been one year in the service. The appointments from the District of Columbia and fifteen each year at large are made by the President, while the twenty-five each year from the enlisted personnel of the Navy are made by the Secretary of the Navy after a competitive examination. One midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the President, on the recommendation of the Governor of Porto Rico. The Congressional appointments are equitably distributed, so that as soon as practicable each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress may appoint one midshipman during each Congress. The course for midshipmen is four years at the academy, when the succeeding appointment is made and the examination for graduation takes place. Midshipmen who pass the examination for graduation are appointed to fill vacancies in the lower grade of the Line of the Navy, in the order of merit as determined by the Academic Board of the Naval Academy. The act of June 29, 1906, prescribes that the Secretary of the Navy shall as soon as possible after June 1 of each year preceding the graduation of midshipmen in the succeeding year, notify in writing each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress of any vacancy that will exist at the Naval Academy because of such graduation, and which he shall be entitled to fill by nomination of a candidate and one or more alternates therefor. The nomination of candidate and alternate or alternates to fill said vacancy shall be made upon the recommendation of the Senator, Representative or Delegate, if such recommendation is made by March 4 of the year following that in which said notice in writing is given, but if it is not made by that time the Secretary of the Navy shall fill the vacancy by appointment of an actual resident of the State, Congressional District, or Territory, as the case may be, in which the vacancy will exist, who shall have been for at least two years immediately preceding the date of his appointment an actual and bona fide resident of the State, Congressional District, or Territory in which the vacancy will exist, and of the legal qualification under the law as now provided. Candidates allowed for Congressional districts, for Territories and for the District of Columbia must be actual residents. Candidates at the time of their examination must be physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. Attention will also be paid to the stature of the candidate, and no one manifestly under size for his age will be received at the academy. The height of candidates for admission shall not be less than 5 feet 2 inches between the ages of 16 and 18 years, and not less than 5 feet 4 inches between the ages of 18 and 20 years; and the minimum weight at 16 years of age shall be 100 pounds, with an increase of not less than 5 pounds for each additional year or fraction of a year over one-half. Any marked deviation in the relative height and weight to the age of a candidate will add materially to the consideration for rejection. Candidates must be unmarried, and any midshipman who shall marry, or who shall be found to be married, before his graduation, shall be dismissed from the service. All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of 16 and 20 years. The pay of a midshipman is $600, beginning at the date of admission. The regulations regarding places and times of examinations and subjects of examinations may be obtained by addressing the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Dept., Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION.

President—H. M. Rowe. Vice-Presidents—Ralph W. Smith, P. J. Walker, H. J. Clark, Preston Belvin, David Jameson, C. C. Janes, Frank S. Fishback. Chairman of Executive Board—A. G. Batchelder. Secretary—John N. Brooks. Treasurer—H. A. Bonnell. Headquarters, Riggs Building, Washington, D. C., and 437 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The American Automobile Association is the National organization of motor car users. It was organized in 1902 and has a membership of over 100,000, subdivided into State and local clubs, and individual members. Its main objects, briefly stated, are: To unite in one body all the automobile clubs and individual motorists of the country to secure reasonable and just legislation; to aid in proper enforcement of automobile laws and ordinances; to advocate and obtain local, State and Federal aid in the construction and maintenance of good roads; to encourage touring and to secure, prepare and disseminate information relative thereto, and to support sportsmanlike contests and other movements that will advance motoring interests.

THE PHILIPPINE SOCIETY.

President—Gen. Luke E. Wright. Vice-President—Lieut.-Col. E.W. Halford, U. S. A. Secretary—Richard E. Forrest. Treasurer—Chas. D. Palmer. Executive Secretary—William J. Platka, 13 Astor Place, New York City.

The Philippine Society was founded in April, 1913, to diffuse among the American people a more accurate knowledge of the Philippine Islands; to benefit the people of the islands by co-operation in the fields of religion, philanthropy, education and commerce; to promote social intercourse in the United States among those who are interested in the islands—the society will be kept free of all partisanship or sectarianism. Ex-President Taft is the Honorary President.

The society is composed of persons residing in the United States or in the Philippine Islands who are in any way interested in the welfare of the islands. The dues are: Patron $500; life membership $100; annual membership $10 per year; associate membership, limited to officers in the army and navy, Filipinos, and those engaged in educational and religious work, $5 per year.

THE UNITED STATES BOY SCOUTS.

SLOGAN—"The United States of America first, last and all the time."

The United States Boy Scouts, formerly the American Boy Scouts, organized April 8, 1909. The object and purpose of this corporation is: To promote, teach and inculcate in the youth of this State and throughout the United States a spirit of loyalty and obedience to the Government of this Republic, a familiarity with its history, its economic progress and its civil and military institutions; to educate the American Boy to a finer spirit of loyalty and obedience to his parents and to his superiors, and to afford him an opportunity for mental, moral and physical training, to the end that the youth of this State and of the Republic generally may be better and more adequately equipped to perform the duties and obligations of citizenship thereof, and for such purposes to provide and maintain such organizations and equipment of the boys of this country for such training as may best subserve this purpose.

The territory within which the operations of this corporation are to be principally conducted is the United States of America. It is governed along the lines followed by the United States Army and Navy. Boys from eight to eighteen years of age are eligible to membership. Boys are given commissions as Corporals, Sergeants, First and Second Lieutenants.

The smallest unit in the United States Boy Scouts is the squad, consisting of eight boys, the leader of which receives a warrant as Corporal. The next is the company, consisting of from two to twelve squads, commanded as follows: Two to three squads by a Sergeant, from four to five by a Lieutenant, and an additional Sergeant, and when composed of six or more squads it is entitled to the following officers: Captain, First Lieutenant, Second Lieutenant, First Sergeant, Quartermaster-Sergeant, four Sergeants and a Corporal for each squad. Four companies form a battalion and three battalions a regiment.

The organization is non-sectarian. There are no dues, fees or charges. The organization is a National one, having branches in every State and Territory. The movement is intended to build up a moral and a National defence.

The troops in New York City are divided into two brigades. The first, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Edward H. Snyder, is composed of units in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, and consists of the Third, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Twenty-second Regiments of Infantry, a battalion of field artillery, engineers and hospital troops. The second brigade is composed of the troops in Brooklyn and Queens, and is commanded by Brig.-Gen. Ardolph L. Kline, ex-Mayor of New York City. It consists of the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Twelfth Regiments of Infantry, one troop of cavalry, two batteries of artillery, one hospital company and one field hospital.

President—Major-Gen. E. A. McAlpin, New York City. Vice-President—Col. S. L. H. Slocum, Washington, D. C. Second Vice-President—Alex. Van Rensselaer, Philadelphia, Pa. Treasurer—Col. L. W. Amerman, 7 Maiden Lane, New York City.

THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA.

ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF SCOUTING.

LIKE many other things showing permanence and power, the Scout movement can be traced back to widely separated sources where constructive ideas came to boy workers and were tested with varying degrees of success. In America there were a number of originators of methods, plans, and principles that have proved effective. In Great Britain, Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell became active in organization work based partly on the ideas and methods of American workers. He did this so successfully that the enrolment of British Boy Scouts soon grew into the hundred thousands, with the emphasis, not on the military note, but on peace virtues and learning practical trades. Then the movement spread to Germany, France, Italy, Australia, and New Zealand, to Canada and the United States; to South American republics; in short, almost the world over, since it is already established in seventeen different countries in addition to the numerous colonial possessions of Great Britain and the United States. Everywhere it has shown adaptation to new fields and nationalities.

In Germany the boys have engaged in the work with such enthusiasm and in such numbers that the Prussian and Bavarian authorities are giving the movement financial aid. While the number of Boy Scouts enrolled throughout the world is estimated as not less than one million, one-fifth of the whole number are in the United States. The emphasis and ideals of the movement belong here also to the highest plans—that of efficient citizenship service, and character-building.

"The Boy Scouts of America" was incorporated February 8, 1910, and given a Federal charter protecting the name, uniform, badges, insignia, etc., June 15, 1916. It has as its Honorary President the Hon. Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, and Hon. William H. Taft and Col. Theodore Roosevelt as its Honorary Vice-Presidents. Associated with these in approval and promotion of the movement are eminent citizens from all walks of public life, who are members of the National Council and of the local councils in the citites and towns of the whole country, and a host of others who earnestly co-operate in the work.

A group of men, representing the various religious and civic organizations of the community that are engaged in boys' work, are brought together as a local council for the promotion of Scout work. This local council receives a charter from the national organization, giving them full authority to deal with all questions relating to scouting in that district and to pass upon all Scout Masters' applications. In many cases this council engages a Scout Executive to take charge of the work in that community. He is responsible to the local council for the direction and promotion of the work. He is the leader of the Scout Masters, and as such gives such instructions and help as may be necessary, arranges inter-troop meets, games, camps, and in general makes uniform the plan of work conducted in that community. The Scouts are organized in patrols and troops. Eight boys constitute a patrol, one of whom is chosen as the Patrol Leader. Three patrols make up a troop. The Scout Master is the adult leader of the troop. Already there are about 320 local councils in as many cities throughout the United States, and under the direction of each there are from five to one hundred and fifty Scout Masters in charge of troops. In the past year arrangements were completed whereby the isolated boy—the boy who lives in a village or on a farm and cannot organize a troop—may become a Pioneer Scout, officially affiliated with the National Movement and eligible to all the pleasures and benefits of scouting.

The Scout programme is proving practicable as a civic enterprise. There are many cities so thoroughly organized that every phase of boy life in the community is being reached by Scout activities. The movement is adapting itself not only to the wealthy classes, but to the boys of the slums, to the newsboys and to foreign boys alike. Over 9,000 Scout Masters are already registered with the national organization, representing about 200,000 boys that are being reached by the movement. Work to some extent has been started in practically every city in this country having a population of 4,000 or over, besides in the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico and Guam. Any boy, of any class or creed, over 12 years of age, is eligible to become a Scout. The initial requirements are that he know the Scout salute, sign and laws, and that he take the Scout oath. By meeting certain requirements, he is in line to become a Tenderfoot, Second-Class and First-Class Scout.

Scouting means outdoor life, and so health, strength, happiness and practical education. By combining wholesome, attractive outdoor activities with the influence of the Scout oath and law, the movement develops character and worth-while ability.

Scoutcraft includes instruction in first aid, life saving, tracking, signalling, cycling, nature study, seamanship, campcraft, woodcraft, chivalry and all the handicrafts.

It is one of the principal purposes of the Boy Scout movement, abroad, as well as in our own country, to teach boys that to create is better than to destroy, and that peace, not war, will make a great nation. This claim is amply borne out by the splendid first aid and other humanitarian services of the most practical nature rendered by the Scouts in the present European war.

The Scout movement also has done notable pioneer work in the realm of boys' reading, giving counsel to parents and to publishers and authors on books of good and bad influence and publishing lists of approved books—also a library of especial value to boys. It publishes also a monthly illustrated magazine for boys, called Boys' Life, which has a circulation of 100,000.

The national organization is largely maintained by public subscriptions. Sustaining and Contributing Memberships are issued to men and women throughout the country who are financially assisting in the development and promotion of this organization among boys.

The late Queen Mercedes, wife of Alfonso XII., deceased. 3. The Infanta Christina, also deceased.

A second cousin of the King was Don Carlos, born 1848, the pretender to the Spanish throne, who died July 18, 1909, leaving a son, Prince Jaime, born 1870, the present pretender, and four daughters.

The Spanish reigning family are Bourbons, descendants of King Louis XIV. of France.

SWEDEN.

Gustaf V., King of Sweden, born June 16, 1858; son of Oscar II. and Sophie, Princess of Nassau, and great-grandson of Marshal Bernadotte. He married, 1881, the Princess Victoria of Baden, and has had three sons, the eldest of whom is the Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, born 1882, who married, in 1905, Princess Margaret Victoria of Connaught, and has four sons and a daughter: Gustaf Adolf, born 1906; Sigvard, born 1907; Princess Ingrid, born 1910; Bertil, born 1912, and a son, born October 31, 1916. The King's other sons are: Prince Wilhelm, born 1884, and married, 1908, the Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna of Russia (issue one child, Prince Lennart, born 1909), divorced 1914, and Prince Eric, born 1889. The King has three brothers: Prince Oscar, born 1859, married Lady Ebba Munck, one of his mother's maids of honor, and relinquished his rights to the throne; Prince Carl, born 1861, and married, 1897, Princess Ingeborg, daughter of King Frederik of Denmark; offspring: Margaretha, born 1899; Martha, born 1901; Astrid, born 1905, Prince Carl, born 1911. Another brother is Prince Eugene, born 1865. The King has a cousin, Louise; married to the late King Frederik VIII. of Denmark. The royal family comes from Napoleon's Marshal Bernadotte, a Frenchman, who was elected heir-apparent to the crown of Sweden in 1810 and became King in 1818.

WÜRTTEMBERG.

William II., King of Württemberg, born February 25, 1848, son of the late Prince Friedrich and of late Princess Katharine of Württemberg; ascended the throne on the death of Karl I., October 6, 1891. He married, 1877, Princess Marie of Waldeck, who died 1882, leaving a daughter, Pauline, born 1877, and who married, 1898, Prince Friedrich of Wied. The King married, second, Princess Charlotte of Schaumburg-Lippe, by whom he has no children. As the King has no male descendants, the heir-presumptive is his distant kinsman Duke Albert, born 1865, married to the Archduchess Margareta, niece of the Emperor of Austria, who died in 1902, and has three sons and three daughters.

THE FRENCH PRETENDERS.

BONAPARTIST.

Of the Emperor Napoleon I. and his brothers Joseph and Louis, male issue is now extinct. The Emperor's brothers Lucien and Jerôme are represented by the following living descendants, and they constitute the present Imperialist house of France:

Prince Victor Napoleon (of the house of Jerôme), born July 18, 1862, is the son of the late Prince Napoleon, who died March 18, 1891, and the Princess Clotilde, who died June 25, 1911, sister of the late King Humbert of Italy. The Prince has been recognized by his party as the undisputed head of the Bonaparte family. He lived in Brussels before the war, now resides in England, and in 1910 married Clementine, third daughter of Leopold I., King of Belgium. A daughter was born in 1912, and a son in 1914. His only brother, Prince Louis Napoleon, born 1864, is a General in the Russian Army, and is unmarried. His sister, Princess Letitia, born 1866, is the widow of Prince Amedéo of Italy, her own uncle, by whom she had a son, Prince Humbert, born 1889.

The late aunt of Prince Victor Napoleon, the Princess Mathilde, born 1820, married, 1840, Prince Demidoff of Russia; died in 1904 without children.

Prince Charles Napoleon, brother of the late Cardinal Bonaparte, who died February 12, 1899, was the last representative of the eldest son of Napoleon's brother, Lucien, in the male line. He was born 1839, was married, and had two daughters—Marie, wife of Lieutenant Gotti, of the Italian Army, and Eugénie, unmarried. He had three sisters, married respectively to the Marquis of Roccagiovine, Count Primoli, and Prince Gabrelli, who have descendants.

Prince Roland Bonaparte is the only living male cousin of Prince Charles Napoleon. He is a son of the late Prince Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte, was born 1858, married, 1880, the daughter of Blanc, one of the proprietors of the Monte Carlo gambling-hell. His wife died in 1882, leaving him a daughter, who is married to Prince George of Greece. He has one sister, Jeanne, born 1861, and married to the Marquis de Villeneuve, who died in 1910.

Ex-Empress Eugénie, widow of Emperor Napoleon III., was a daughter of Count Cyprien de Montijo, a Spanish grandee, and was born May 5, 1826. She married 1853. Became a widow 1873. Her only son, Prince Louis Napoleon, was killed in Zululand in 1879.

BOURBON—ORLEANIST.

Philippe, Duke of Orleans, born 1869, succeeded his father, the late Count of Paris, in 1894, as the head of the royal family of France. He married, in 1896, the Archduchess Marie-Dorothea, daughter of the Archduke Joseph, cousin of the Emperor of Austria. His mother (still living) was the Spanish Infanta Louise of Montpensier, and he has one brother, the Duke of Montpensier, and four sisters—Princess Amelie, married the late King Charles of Portugal; Helena, married to the Duke of Aosta, nephew of the late King Humbert of Italy; Isabel, married to the Duke of Guise, son of the Duke of Chartres, and Louise, married to Prince Charles of Bourbon, grandson of King Ferdinand II. of Naples.

The only uncle of the Duke of Orleans, who died 1910, was the Duke of Chartres, born 1840. He married, 1863, Frances, Princess of Orleans, and had two children, Marguerite, born 1869, married, 1896, Patrice MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, and Jean, Duke of Guise, born 1874, married, 1899, Isabelle, Princess of France. The issue of the latter are Isabelle, born 1900; Frances, born 1902; Anne, born 1906, and Henry, born 1908.

The grand-uncles of the Duke of Orleans (who were the sons of King Louis Philippe) are dead. They were Louis, Duke of Nemours, born 1814, died 1896, married 1840, Victoria, Princess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; Prince of Joinville, born 1818, died 1900, married, 1843, Frances, Princess of Bragance; Antony, Duke of Montpensier, born 1824, died 1890, married, 1846, Louise, Infanta of Spain. The children of the Duke of Nemours are Gaston, Comte of Eu, born 1842, married, 1864, Isabelle, Princess of Bragança, and has three sons—Pierre of Alcantara, born 1875; Louis, born 1878, and Antony, born 1881; Duke of Alençon, born 1844, died 1910, married, 1868, Sophie, Duchess of Bavaria (who was burned in the Paris bazaar fire in 1897), and Blanche, born 1857. The children of the Prince of Joinville are Frances, born 1844, married, 1863, Robert, Prince of Orleans, Duke of Chartres, and Pierre, Duke of Penthievre, born 1845. The children of the Duke of Montpensier are Isabelle, born 1848, married, 1864, Philippe, Count of Paris, and Antony, Duke of Galliera, born 1866, married, 1886, Eulalie, Infanta of Spain. Prince Pierre of Alcantara, son of the Comte of Eu, has two children, Isabelle, born 1911, and Pierre, born 1913. His brother, Prince Louis, married, 1908, Marie, Princess of Bourbon-Sicilles, and has three children, Pierre, born 1909; Louis, born 1911, and Pie-Marie, born 1913. Another brother, born 1881, is unmarried.

The Duke of Alençon has issue: Princess Louise, born 1869, married, 1891, Prince Alphonse of Bavaria; Emmanuel, Duke of Vendôme, and Alençon, born 1872, married Henrietta, Princess of Belgium. The children of Prince Antony are Alphonse, born 1886, married, 1909, Beatrice, Princess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and Louis Ferdinand, born 1888.

By the death of the Count of Chambord, in 1883, the elder line of the Bourbons of France became extinct, and the right of succession merged in the Count of Paris, grandson of King Louis Philippe, representative of the younger, or Orleans, line.

NEW YORK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

ORGANIZED April 5, 1768. Incorporated by George III. March 13, 1770. Reincorporated by the State of New York. April 13, 1784. Its object is indicated in the following words of the original charter: "Sensible that numberless inestimable benefits have accrued to mankind from commerce; that they are, in proportion to their greater or lesser application to it, more or less opulent and potent in all countries; and that the enlargement of trade will vastly increase the value of real estates as well as the general opulence of our said colony," and "to carry into execution, encourage, and promote, by just and lawful ways and means, such measures as will tend to promote and extend just and lawful commerce."

During the decade 1760-1770, according to Lord Sheffield's Observations, the average yearly value of American Colonial imports from Great Britain was £1,763,409, and of exports to the same country £1,044,591. Up to the evacuation of the city by the British and its occupation by the Americans, on the 25th of November, 1783, the New York Chamber of Commerce had had seven Presidents, thirteen Vice-Presidents, eight Treasurers, one Secretary, and 135 members. In May, 1763, the Sandy Hook Lighthouse was lighted up for the first time. In 1786 the Chamber of Commerce first suggested the construction of the Erie Canal, and in 1784 petitioned the New York Legislature (which so ordered) that duties should be levied under a specific instead of an ad valorem tariff.

As a society the Chamber of Commerce is limited to fifteen hundred resident and two hundred and fifty non-resident members. Initiation fee, $50. Annual dues, $50 per annum. Non-resident members, $25 per annum.

The building of the Chamber is at 65 Liberty Street, New York. Officers: President—E. H. Outerbridge; Secretary—Chas. T. Gwynne; Treasurer—William H. Porter.

* The French Academy is one of five academies, and the most eminent, constituting the Institute of France. It was founded in 1635 by Cardinal Richelieu, and reorganized in 1816. It is composed of 40 members, elected for life, after personal application and the submission of their nomination to the head of the state. It meets twice weekly, at the Palace Mazarin, 23 Quai Conti, Paris, and is "the highest authority on everything appertaining to the niceties of the French language, to grammar, rhetoric, and poetry, and the publication of the French classics." The chief officer is the Secretary, who has a life tenure of his position. The office is at present held by Etienne Lamy. A chair in the Academy is the highest ambition of most literary Frenchmen.

The other academies of the Institute of France are. The Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, with 40 members; Academy of Sciences, with 68 members; Academy of Fine Arts, with 40 members (as follows: Painting, 14; sculpture, 8; architecture, 8; engraving, 4; musical composition, 6), and Academy of Moral and Political Science, with 40 members. All members are elected for life.

THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.—(See foot note.)

THE supreme legislative power of the British Empire is, by its Constitution, vested in Parliament. This body consists of two houses, the Lords and the Commons.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS

The House of Lords is composed of the whole Peerage of England and of the United Kingdom, and of certain representative Peers of Scotland and Ireland, but many members of these latter have also English titles which give them seats in the House. The Duke of Buccleuch sits as Earl of Doncaster, and the Duke of Leinster as Viscount Leinster. The House at present consists of 3 Princes of the Blood, 2 Archbishops, 21 Dukes, 26 Marquesses, 121 Earls, 46 Viscounts, 24 Bishops, 356 Barons, 16 Scottish Representative Peers elected for each Parliament and 27 Irish Representative Peers elected for life.

The Lord Chancellor of England is the Speaker of the House of Lords.

The population returns are from the official census of Great Britain and Ireland taken in the Spring of 1911. The total population of the United Kingdom, a month before the outbreak of war, was officially estimated at 46,089,249. The number of persons to the square mile was in 1911: England, 618.0; Scotland, 156.5; Ireland, 135.6.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS DISMISSED FROM UNITED STATES.

CITIZEN GENET, sent here in 1793, after the execution of Louis XVI. by the French Committee of Safety, tried to commission privateers here to prey on British commerce, besides making inflammatory speeches. Thomas Jefferson asked for his recall.

The Marquis of Casa Yrujo, Spanish Minister in 1805, attempted to bribe a Philadelphia editor to favor Spain in a controversy with the United States. He was handed his passports.

F. J. Jackson, British Minister, was recalled because he tried to arouse feeling against the United States by circularizing British Consuls, in which he accused the American Government of bad faith in 1809.

In 1849 M. Poussin, French Minister, because of insolence to the American Secretary of State, was recalled.

For enlisting soldiers for the Crimean War in 1855 British Minister Crampton was recalled and the exequators of three British Consuls were cancelled.

In 1888 passports were handed Lord Sackville-West, who, in response to a decoy letter, advised Americans of British birth to vote for Grover Cleveland for President.

The Spanish Minister, Dupuy de Lome, wrote disrespectfully of President McKinley to a friend in Cuba, for which he was dismissed in 1898.

During President Taft's term passports were handed to the Nicaraguan Chargé d'Affaires, Mr. Rodrigues, to protest against the judicial murder in Nicaragua of two Americans.

The Turkish Ambassador, Rustem Bey, whose criticisms of the United States aroused so much discussion in 1914, left this country in October of that year "on leave of absence."

Recall of Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, Austrian Ambassador, was requested by United States in September, 1915, as a result of his attempts to cripple American industries.

Formal announcement was made by Secretary of State Lansing on December 3, 1915, that Germany had been requested to immediately recall Captain Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen, the Naval and Military Attachés respectively, on account of what the United States Government considered improper activities in military and naval matters.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

A federation of four British Colonies in South Africa, namely, the Cape Colony, Natal, the Transvaal and Orange Free State, was formed provisionally in 1909 by a convention held at Cape Town. The federation was confirmed by an act passed by the British Parliament August 16, 1909, and the date appointed for the establishment of the Union was fixed for May 31, 1910. Viscount Gladstone was appointed Governor-General and assumed office on that date.

The act of Union vested the executive government in the King and his successors, a Governor-General advised by an Executive Council and Ministers of State. Legislative power was vested in a Parliament composed of the King, a Senate of forty members, eight nominated for ten years by the Governor-General in council, and eight for each original province elected for ten years by the two Houses of the Colonial Legislature sitting together, and a House of Assembly, consisting of members chosen as follows: From the Cape Colony, 51; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 36; Orange Free State, 17. The Governor-General has the power to summon, prorogue and dissolve Parliament, and that body shall sit annually.

Provision is made for an Administrator for each province for five years, appointed by the Governor-General, and a Provincial Council elected for three years.

Pretoria, in the Transvaal, is the seat of Government of the Union, and Cape Town the meeting place of Parliament. The English and Dutch languages are both official. It is provided that the British South African Company's territories may be received into the Union and the government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

The area of the Union of South Africa is as follows, in square miles: Cape Colony, 276,995; Natal, 35,290; Transvaal, 110,426; Orange Free State, 50,389. Total Union, 473,100.

The population is as follows: Cape Colony, 3,000,000; Natal, 1,500,000; Transvaal, 2,000,000; Orange Free State, 586,000. Total Union, 7,086,000.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia consists of the six original Australian Colonies: New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia and Tasmania. Each of these is a self-governing state, except as to the powers reserved to the Confederation. The Commonwealth of Australia was proclaimed at Sydney, January 1, 1901. Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King—represented by a Governor-General—a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate consists of thirty-six Senators—six for each State—chosen for six years. The House of Representatives consists of seventy-five members, distributed as follows: New South Wales, 27; Victoria, 22; Queensland, 9; South Australia, 7; Western Australia, 5; Tasmania, 5.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament embrace commerce, shipping, finance, defence, post-office, telegraph, census and statistics and conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State. Authority is given to the Commonwealth to assume jurisiction regarding railways, lighthouses, marriage and divorce, and emigration and immigration. The executive power is vested in the Governor-General, assisted by an Executive Council of responsible Ministers. There is also a Federal Judicature. The present seat of Government is at Melbourne, the Federal capital (Canberra) being in process of building. The area of the Commonwealth, with the Territories (Northern Territory, Papua) and Federal District (Canberra), is 3,063,041 square miles, and the population is 4,941,000.

Each of the states has its own Parliament, Governor, Ministry and Judiciary.

The island of Newfoundland is situated between 46° 37′-57° 39′ north latitude and 52° 35′-59° 25′ west longitude, on the northeast side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the North American continent by the Straits of Belle Isle. The island is about 317 miles long and 316 miles broad, and is triangular in shape, with Cape Bauld (north), Cape Race (southeast), and Cape Rav (southwest) at the angles. The coast is extremely rugged, and the coastal regions are mountainous, the north and east being moderately cold owing to the quantities of ice brought down from the Greenland seas. The interior is undulating and is covered with tolts (round hills) interspersed with lakes, rivers, and swamps, but containing many fertile valleys where the climate is favorable to agriculture, and a great wealth of forests, mainly of spruce and birch. The climate is salubrious, and the people are a strong, healthy, hardy, industrious race. The thermometer seldom falls below zero in Winter, and ranges in the shade in Summer from 70° to 80°.

* Land and water included in area. †Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces in 1905. By the Extension Act of 1912, the area of Ontario was increased by 146,400 square miles, Quebec by 354,961, and Manitoba by 178,100.

High Commissioner in London, England, Sir George H. Perley (acting).

The Dominion of Canada has an area of 3,729,665 square miles (excluding the Hudson Bay, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and all tidal waters) and comprises one-sixteenth of the land surface of the globe. It is the largest of all the British possessions, Australia, the next in size, containing 2,946,691 square miles. The Government of Canada is federal, centred at Ottawa, which city is the capital of the Dominion, while the provinces have their respective local Legislatures. The head of the Federal Government is the Governor-General, appointed by the King of Great Britain, and holding office for five years, his salary being paid by the Dominion Government.

The Lieutenant-Governors of the several provinces are appointed by the Federal Government for a term of five years. The Legislatures are elected by the people of each province. The highest court in the Dominion is the Supreme Court, composed of a Chief Justice and five Judges, each of whom receives a salary of $9,000 per annum, except the Chief Justice, who is paid an additional $1,000. From the decisions of this court the only tribunal to which appeal can be made is to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council of Great Britain. The only other Federal court is the Exchequer Court, presided over by a single Judge, for trying cases connected with the revenue. Salary $8,000. All others are of a provincial character limited to jurisdiction in their respective provinces only.

CONSTITUTION AND GOVERNMENT.

The Constitution of the United Mexican States, adopted February 5, 1857, provides for a representative, Federal form of Government, the several States of the Union regulating their internal affairs.

The National Congress is composed of a Senate and a Chamber of Deputies, the former consisting of 56 members, 2 for each State and the Federal District, elected indirectly for a term of four years. One-half of the Senate is renewed every two years. The members of the Chamber of Deputies are also elected indirectly, but for a term of two years, in the proportion of one Deputy for 40,000 inhabitants or fraction exceeding 20,000.

Suffrage is possessed by all male citizens who have reached the age of 18 years if married, and of 21 years if not married. Congress meets twice a year. The first session is from September 16 to December 15, and may be extended for 30 legislative days. The second session is from April 1 to May 31, which may be extended for 15 legislative days.

During recess, Congress is represented by a Permanent Committee consisting of 14 Senators and 15 Deputies, which has the power to convene Congress, either upon its own initiative or at the suggestion of the President, in extraordinary session. The duties of the committee are to advise the President relative to matters affecting legislation; to give its consent to the use of the national guard by the President upon certain occasions provided for by the constitution; to prepare a report on all pending legislative matters in order to expedite action by the next Congress; to give or withhold its approval of presidential appointments in the diplomatic and consular services, and to administer the oath of office to the President of the Republic and to the Justices of the Supreme Court in certain cases provided for by the Constitution.

The President and Vice-President are chosen by electors for a term of six years; the President is assisted by a Cabinet of eight Secretaries. His salary is 50,000 pesos, equal to $25,000. The Cabinet officials are appointed by the President and are directly responsible to him for the proper administration of their respective departments, which are as follows:

Department of Foreign Relations, Department of the Interior, Department of Justice, Department of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, Department of Promotion, Department of Communications and Public Works, Department of Finance, Department of War and Marine.

Mexico is divided politically into 27 States, 3 Territories, and 1 Federal District. Governors of the States are elected in the same manner as the President of the Republic, as are also the Legislatures and the judiciary of each State. The Territories are administered by Governors appointed by the President, while the government of the Federal District, which includes the capital, Mexico City, is in the hands of three officials, likewise appointed by the President. The States and Territories are subdivided into municipalities, which elect their own administrative councils and Mayors.

COAST OF MEXICO.

Mexico has a coast line of 1,400 miles along the Mexican Gulf, 327 miles on the Caribbean Sea, and no less than 4,574 miles on the Pacific Ocean, including the Gulf of California between the peninsula of Lower California and the Mexican mainland, measuring indentations.

On the Gulf of Mexico the chief ports are: Matamoros, Tampico, Tuxpan, Vera Cruz, Puerto Mexico (Coatzacoalcos), Frontera, Campeche, and Progreso. On the Caribbean Sea there are two ports of entry: Ascension and Espiritu Santo, also Payo Obispo for Government transports. On the Pacific side there are the ports of Guaymas, Topolobampo, Altata, Mazatlan, San Blas, Manzanillo, Acapulco, Puerto Angeles, Salina Cruz, Tonala, and San Benito, on the mainland, and Ensenada and La Paz on the peninsula of Lower California.

RECENT STATISTICS.

Notable progress has been made in the extension of the post and telegraph service in the Republic. There are now about 3,000 post-offices of all classes, 500 telegraph stations, with 25 telephone and 6 wireless-telegraph stations. The length of wires totals about 75,000 kilometres (46,602 miles), while an equally efficient cable system shows a total length of cable amounting to 775,000 metres (over 480 miles). There has been but little activity in the development of railway systems, owing to the prevailing political unrest. The recent additions make a total of about 16,000 miles.

Mexican trade statistics are not available for a date later than June 30, 1913. The following are estimates:

FOREIGN COMMERCE (IN GOLD):

Year ended June 30, 1914, estimate—

ARGENTINA.

ARGENTINA, the third largest of the American Republics, is situated between latitude 22° and 56° south and longitude west of Greenwich 53° and 57°, being bounded by the Republics of Chile, Bolivia, Paraguay, Brazil, Uruguay, and the Atlantic Ocean.

It is a Federal republic of fourteen Provinces, ten Territories, and one Federal District. The provinces and Federal District are represented in the National Congress, composed of a Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

BRAZIL.

THE Republic of the United States of Brazil is the largest of the South American countries and the second largest of the American republics. It is situated between 4° 22′ north and 33° 45′ south and longitude 34° 40′ and 75° 15′ west, and touches every other South American republic with the exception of Chile; besides, it is bounded by British, Dutch, and French Guiana.

The language of the country is Portuguese. Under the Constitution Brazil is a Federal Union of States, republican and representative. The Union is composed of 21 States, one National Territory, and the Federal District.

CHILE.

THE Republic of Chile extends over more than 38 degrees of latitude, from 17° 57′ to 55° 59′ south, stretching from the Samu River to Cape Horn, and occupying a long, narrow strip of land between the Andean mountain range and the Pacific Ocean, with a coast line of 2,625 miles and an average width of 90 miles. The republic has a single republican form of government, with the customary division into legislative, executive and judicial branches. There are twenty-three provinces and one Territory.

The principal exports are nitrate of soda, copper, wheat, iodine, borate of lime, oats, bran, wool, etc. The principal imports are textiles, mineral products, coal oils, etc., machinery, hardware, carriage, etc., vegetable products, animal products, paper, and manufactures; wines, liquors, and other beverages. For commerce see table of "Latin-American Foreign Trade."

PERU.

PERU became an independent republic July 28, 1821. It is divided into 19 departments and three provinces. The executive power is vested in the President, who is elected for four years. The legislative power is intrusted to a Senate of 52 members and a House of Representatives of 116 members. The Government owns and operates the postal and telegraph lines in Peru, with the exception of the railway telegraphs. Principal exports: Minerals, sugar, rubber, cotton, wool, guano, straw hats, petroleum. For commerce see table of "Latin-American Foreign Trade."

PANAMA.

LIES between Costa Rica and Colombia, with the Caribbean Sea on the north and Pacific Ocean on the south. The Panama Canal Zone runs across this republic. Panama has a single republican form of government with the regular division into legislative, executive and judicial branches. There are eight provinces: Bocas del Toro, Chiriqui, Veraguas, Colon, Los Santos, Cocle, Herrera and Panama as political subdivisions. The capital city is Panama. Panama has no navy and no army, but has a national police corps of 1,000 men. For commerce see table of "Latin-American Foreign Trade."

PARAGUAY.

THE Constitution of Paraguay provides for a republican form of government, with the usual division of legislative, executive, and judicial authority. The National Congress is composed of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, both elected by direct popular vote, all citizens over 18 years of age being entitled to suffrage. Senators are elected for six years on the basis of one for every 12,000 inhabitants, or fraction over 8,000; Deputies are elected for four years at the rate of one for every 6,000 inhabitants, or fraction exceeding 3,000. The Senate is renewed by thirds and the Chamber of Deputies by halves every two years. Congress meets annually on April 1 and continues in session until August 31, but extraordinary sessions may be called at any time by the President or on motion of four Deputies and two Senators. The President and Vice-President are elected by electors chosen for that purpose for a term of four years.

With a subtropical climate considerably modified and made healthful by several mountain chains and an extensive hydrographic system, most of the products of the Tropical and Temperate Zones are successfully cultivated.

Beef products, the valuable quebracho wood, yerba maté or Paraguay tea, and lace are the principal articles of export. Lapacho, curupaz, and cedar are valuable woods found in considerable quantities, and oranges, tobacco, coffee, rice, cotton, mandioca, and sugar are grown and exported. The beautiful nanduti lace is one of the products of native industry. For commerce see table of "Latin-American Foreign Trade."

URUGUAY.

THE Constitution of Uruguay, promulgated on July 18, 1830, is in force. The Senate and House of Representatives compose the General Assembly, in which all legislative power is vested, and meet annually from February 15 to June 15. Representatives, the number of whom varies with the population, are elected directly by popular vote in the proportion of one for every 3,000 inhabitants, or fraction exceeding 2,000, and for a term of three years. The Senate consists of 19 members, who are elected indirectly for a term of six years, one for each department. The Senate is renewed by thirds every two years. Every citizen over 20 years of age, who is physically and mentally able to do so, and is registered, is entitled to vote. In case of the President's disability or death, the presiding officer of the Senate assumes the Presidency, as there is no Vice-President in Uruguay.

The republic of Uruguay lies between the Atlantic Ocean, the Rio de la Plata (River Plate), Brazil, and the Argentine Republic. It is separated from Brazil by the Rivers Cuareim and Yaguaron and by Lake Merim, and from the Argentine Republic by the Rio de la Plata and the Uruguay River. It is the smallest republic in South America. The most notable feature of Uruguay is its extent of long rolling plains, comprising almost the entire length of the country, occasionally broken by low mountain ranges and copiously watered by numerous streams. It is naturally suited for both sheep and cattle, the raising of which is its principal industry. Agriculture is also practiced to a considerable extent, nearly all of the cereals being grown. In the forests are found a number of excellent cabinet and other woods noted for their beauty and durability, and some mining is carried on.

Principal exports: Wool, hides and skins, meats and extracts, grease and tallow, live animals, oil-producing grains, flour, etc. For commerce see table of "Latin-American Foreign Trade."

THE PAN-AMERICAN SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES.

THE objects of this society are: To promote acquaintance among representative men of the United States and those of the other republics of America; to show hospitality and attention to representative men of the other republics of America who visit the United States; to take such other steps, involving no political policy, as the society may deem wise; to develop and conserve mutual knowledge and understanding and true friendship among the American republics and peoples. President—John Bassett Moore. Vice-Presidents—Cabot Ward, John Barrett, and Archibald Cary Coolidge Secretary—Harry Erwin Bard. Treasurer—Lorenzo Daniels. Headquarters, Mills Building, 15 Broad Street, New York City.

PAN-AMERICAN UNION.

THE Pan-American Union is the official international organization maintained in Washington by the 21 American republics for the development of good understanding, friendly intercourse, commerce and peace among them. It is supported by the joint contributions of these Governments, based on population, and controlled by a Governing Board composed of the Secretary of State of the United States and the diplomatic representatives in Washington of the other republics. Its affairs are administered by a Director-General and an Assistant Director, who, in turn, are assisted by a staff of international experts, statisticians, editors, compilers, translators and librarians. It was first established in 1890, and was reorganized in 1906. It occupies a building and grounds at the Seventeenth Street entrance to Potomac Park, representing an expenditure of $1,100,000, toward which Mr. Andrew Carnegie contributed $850,000, and the American republics $250,000. In it is housed the Columbus Memorial Library of 30,000 volumes and 20,000 photographs, which are the best collection of present-day Pan-Americana in the world. The officers are: Director-General—John Barrett. Assistant Director—Francisco J. Yanes. Chief Clerk and Editor—Franklin Adams. All communications should be addressed to the Director-General, Pan-American Union, Washington, D. C.

THE CHINA SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

The object of this society is to promote, foster and perpetuate the friendly relations between the United States and China and to disseminate among the American and Chinese people, each to the other, a correct knowledge of the ideals, culture and progress of the two nations.

The officers are: Honorary President—Andrew D. White. President—Louis L. Seaman, 247 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

On the conclusion of the war between Russia and Japan in 1905 a treaty and additional agreement relating to Manchuria were entered into between Japan and China. By the former the Chinese Government consented to all the transfers and assignments made by Russia to Japan in Manchuria; and by the latter cities and towns in Manchuria were opened as places of international residence and trade. In July, 1910, a convention was signed between Russia and Japan agreeing to co-operate to maintain the status quo in Manchuria in accordance with the treaties and conventions already made. In March, 1915, China agreed to extend the lease of the territory on the peninsula to 99 years.

Latest estimates of the foreign residents at the open ports of China are as follows: British, 8,966; Japanese, 84,950; Americans, 5,340; Russians, 56,765; Germans, 2,949; French, 2,292; Portuguese, 3,486; other nationalities, 3,810; total, 188,558.

Railways—In 1915 there were about 6,500 miles open, inclusive of the Manchurian lines, while 2,500 miles more are projected or under construction.

Shipping—In 1914 there were 1,130 vessels registered for inland waters navigation; of these 194 were foreign and 936 under the Chinese flag. In 1914 the total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared at the treaty ports was 96,326,276, of these 898,750 tons were American, 38,530,500 tons British, 1,926,526 tons French, 4,866,300 tons German, 19,265,000 tons Japanese, 2,889,790 tons Russian, 24,081,574 tons Chinese.

Telegraphs—The total length of line in operation at the end of 1914 was 36,339 miles, with 49,963 miles of wire.

Postal—The number of Chinese post-offices in 1913 was 8,324, and the number of postal articles handled was 544,367,000.

CONSULAR SERVICE.

C. G., Consul-General; C., Consul; V. C., Vice-Consul; D. C., Deputy Consul; C. A., Consular Assistant.

To insure prompt attention letters upon consular business should be addressed "To the American Consul at .....". Such letters are opened and attended to by the person who happens to be in charge of the office. If addressed to the Consul by name they are forwarded to him unopened if he should be absent, and a delay thus intervenes; if he should in the mean time have gone out of office they may wholly escape attention.

Consuls at the principal places in the world are given here. Where there are a Consul and Vice or Deputy Consul at the same place only the Consul is given. Consular officers are ex-officio notaries for all the States of the United States.

EXAMINATIONS FOR THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

In pursuance of the Executive order of June 27, 1906, whereby the President promulgated regulations governing appointments and promotions in the consular service, the following rules have been adopted by the Board of Examiners, who, under that order, have been designated to formulate rules for and hold examinations of applicants for admission to the consular service whom the President shall have designated for examination to determine their eligibility for appointment therein:

1. The examinations will be the same for all grades and will be to determine a candidate's eligibility for appointment in the consular service, irrespective of the grade for which he may have been designated for examination and without regard to any particular office for which he may be selected.

2. The examinations will consist of an oral and a written one, the two counting equally. The object of the oral examination will be to determine the candidate's business ability, alertness, general contemporary information, and natural fitness for the service, including moral, mental, and physical qualifications, character, address, and general education and good command of English. In this part of the examination the applications previously filed will be given due weight by the Board of Examiners, especially as evidence of the applicant's business experience and ability. The written examination will include those subjects mentioned in the Executive order, to wit: French, German, or Spanish; the natural, industrial and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States, especially with reference to possibilities of increasing and extending the foreign trade of the United States; political economy, and the elements of international, commercial and maritime law. It will likewise include American history, government, and institutions; political and commercial geography; arithmetic (as used in commercial statistics, tariff calculations, exchange, accounts, etc.); the modern history, since 1850, of Europe, Latin-America, and the Far East, with particular attention to political, commercial and economic tendencies. In the written examination, composition, grammar, punctuation, spelling, and writing will be given attention.

3. To become eligible for appointment, except as student interpreter, in a country where the United States exercises extra-territorial jurisdiction, the applicant must pass the examination outlined above, but supplemented by questions to determine his knowledge of the fundamental principles of common law, the rules of evidence, and the trial of civil and criminal cases.

4. The examinations to be given candidates for appointment as student interpreters will follow the same course as in the case of other consular officers, provided, however, that no one will be examined for admission to the consular service as a student interpreter who is not between the ages of nineteen and twenty-six, inclusive, and unmarried; and, provided further, that upon appointment each student interpreter shall sign an agreement to continue in the service so long as his services may be required, within a period of five years.

5. Upon the conclusion of the examinations the names of the candidates who shall have attained upon the whole examination an average mark of at least eighty, as required by the Executive order, will be certified by the board to the Secretary of State as eligible for appointment in the consular service, and the successful candidates will be informed that this has been done.

6. The names of candidates will remain on the eligible list for two years, except in the case of such candidates as shall within that period be appointed or shall withdraw their names, and of candidates holding subordinate positions in the consular service, when eligibility shall not expire until appointment to consular rank or until separation from the service. Candidates whose names have thus been dropped from the eligible list will not be eligible for appointment unless upon fresh application, designation anew for examination, and the successful passing of such second examination.

DUTIES OF CONSULAR OFFICERS.

Consular officers are expected to endeavor to maintain and promote all the rightful interests of American citizens, and to protect them in all privileges provided for by treaty or conceded by usage; to visé and, when so authorized, to issue passports; when permitted by treaty, law or usage, to take charge of and settle the personal estates of Americans who may die abroad without legal or other representatives, and remit the proceeds to the Treasury in case they are not called for by a legal representative within one year; to ship, discharge, and, under certain conditions, maintain and send American seamen to the United States; to settle disputes between masters and seamen of American vessels; to investigate charges of mutiny or insubordination on the high seas and send mutineers to the United States for trial; to render assistance in the case of shipwrecked or stranded American vessels, and, in the absence of the master or other qualified person, take charge of the wrecks and cargoes if permitted to do so by the laws of the country; to receive the papers of American vessels arriving at foreign ports and deliver them after the discharge of the obligations of the vessels toward the members of their crews, and upon the production of clearances from the proper foreign port officials; to certify to the correctness of the valuation of merchandise exported to the United States where the shipment amounts to more than $100; to act as official witnesses to marriages of American citizens abroad; to aid in the enforcement of the immigration laws, and to certify to the correctness of the certificates issued by Chinese and other officials to Chinese persons coming to the United States; to protect the health of our seaports by reporting weekly the sanitary and health conditions of the ports at which they reside, and by issuing to vessels clearing for the United States bills of health describing the condition of the ports, the vessels, crews, passengers, and cargoes; and to take depositions and perform other acts which notaries public in the United States are authorized or required to perform. A duty of prime importance is the promotion of American commerce by reporting available opportunities for the introduction of our products, aiding in the establishment of relations between American and foreign commercial houses, and lending assistance wherever practicable to the marketing of American merchandise abroad.

In addition to the foregoing duties, consular officers in China, Turkey, Siam, Maskat, Morocco, and a few other so-called un-Christian countries, are invested with judicial powers over American citizens in those countries. These powers are usually defined by treaty, but generally include the trial of civil cases to which Americans are parties, and in some instances extend to the trial of criminal cases.

GEOGRAPHIC RESEARCH IN 1916.

A REVIEW specially prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC by the National Geographic Society, and covering the year between October 1, 1915, and October 1, 1916.

IN GENERAL.

The European war extended its territory, and the number of people involved, beyond the remarkable bounds of 1915. All other wars in the world's history pale before it in territory involved, in the people affected, in munitions expended, in debts piled up, in sacrifices demanded, in casualties sustained, almost as the moon pales before the sun. All this has left little time in the warring nations for thought of anything else than the fearful competition for survival, and the outstanding events in the year's record of geographic research are few. The work of Sir Ernest Shackleton, Vilhjalmur Stefansson and Robert Griggs, and the reports of Prof. Hiram Bingham and Prof. O. F. Cook to the National Geographic Society on their Peruvian researches are the leading events in the year.

NORTH AMERICA.

Dr. Robert F. Griggs, financed by the National Geographic Society, returned from an important expedition to Katmai volcano, Alaska. Crossing the mountains toward Bering Sea, he entered the wonderful "Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes," where he estimated that there were 1,000 columns of steam more than 500 feet high, even at that time, which seemed to be a period of minimum activity. He also found the crater of Katmai to be almost as large as the whole mountain of Vesuvius, discovered a number of volcanoes of the first magnitude and a canyon rivalling the Grand Canyon in depth and the Canadian Rockies in its bordering mountains. He reported that new seedlings of all the important plants had been able to germinate in the ash deposited by the eruption and had survived the Winter. He also secured incontestable evidence to show that plants regained their vitality after three years' burial in the volcanic ash, during which no vegetative activity was possible.

Ten parties from the United States Geological Survey are engaged in geological exploration in Alaska. Reports on the geological formations and history of the Canal Zone and adjacent regions are approaching completion.

An investigation of the "natural mounds" of Oklahoma by J. B. Thoburn and Dr. Irving Perrine, of the University of Oklahoma, indicates that each of the thousands of tumuli is really the ruin of a dome-shaped, timber-framed habitation built by a race that passed away at least 600 years ago without leaving even a tradition, a people distinct from the cave-dwellers and the mound-builders, energetic, and skilled in making stone implements and in the manufacture of pottery. The population was denser than that of any of the later aboriginal tribes.

The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey announced the completion in May, 1916, of the work at the Rio Grande, west of Brownsville, Texas, and Matamoros, Mexico, which connects the triangulation system of the United States and Mexico.

Dr. J. W. Fewkes, of the Bureau of American Ethnology, is engaged in research northeast of the Hopi villages of Northern Arizona.

Discovery of an immense archaeological field hitherto unknown to science, in the San Juan region of New Mexico, was reported by Professor Earl H. Morris, of the University of Colorado.

G. Allen Hancock gave the City of Los Angeles thirty-two acres of La Brea ranch. This area contains ancient deposits of asphalt, embedded in which some of the richest finds known to palaeontological science have been discovered.

The Columbia University Physiographic excursion to the West, led by Prof. Douglas W. Johnson, did field work for some months.

A successful exploration and archaeological study of the prehistoric Iroquoian site near Roebuck, Ontario, was completed by W. J. Wintemberg, of the Geological Survey of Canada.

After a second attempt to reach the summit of Mount Kitchi in the Canadian Rockies, in which she approached to within 200 feet of the top, Miss Mary L. Jobe returned through unmapped areas along Sheep Creek, Sulphur and Big Smoky Rivers.

Prof. T. P. Savage and Dr. F. M. Van Tuyl, of the Department of Geology of the University of Illinois, are on an expedition to Hudson Bay.

The discovery of new vegetation at the extreme end of Alacran Reef, in the Gulf of Mexico of Yucatan, was announced, March 22, 1916, by Prof. Charles F. Millspaugh, of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. When charted by the British Admiralty in 1842 it was marked devoid of vegetation. Three species of vegetation, entirely new to science, were discovered.

As evidence of the increasing interest of Americans in geographic research, it is interesting to note that during the year the National Geographic Society's membership crossed the half million mark and is now climbing up toward 600,000.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The reports of the National Geographic Society-Yale University expedition of 1915 to Peru, Dr. Hiram Bingham, director, were published. These reports throw much new light on the ancient civilization of Peru, and bring out much new botanical, zoological and ethnological data. A large number of ancient highways and buried towns are described, showing that Machu Picchu was the centre of what was perhaps the most densely populated region of the pre-Columbian New World; that these ancient people made pottery strikingly like that of ancient Greece; that the trepanning of skulls was general among them; that they were a peace-loving people who had only one word to designate soldier and enemy. Careful topographic, ethnographic, botanical and zoological surveys were also reported of the Apurimac-Urubambu region of high Peru. Naturalist Edmund Heller found vampire bats which have lost the power of swallowing solids through their sucking of the blood of animals for so many generations. Botanist O. F. Cook shows how, when our ancestors in Europe were still dressed in skins and diving by the chase, settled agricultural conditions must have existed in Peru. He shows how most of the land of the Incas had a soil that was brought long distances; how our reclamation projects sink into insignificance measured by those of these ancient Peruvians; how the hanging gardens of Babylon were a mere transient toy compared to the staircase farms of the Incas; how these people laid stones weighing tons with such nicety that a lens is still required to locate their joints; how they domesticated some eighty species of plants, one of them, the potato, becoming the most nearly universal crop in the world, with the largest yield of any food plant civilization uses; how a single world crop of potatoes is more valuable than all the gold the conquerors took from the Incas. He also concludes that we owe our corn, the chief source of America's agricultural supremacy, to the Incas.

The University Museum, Philadelphia, received an account, in October, 1915, of Dr. W. C. Farrabee's journey between the Tapajoz and Xingu Rivers.

Dr. Emilia Snethlaga, of the Museu Goeldi, Para, Brazil, conducted an expedition to the region between the middle reaches of the Xingu and Tapajoz and brought back important ethnological collections from the Indians living along those water courses.

Dr. J. N. Rose returned in October, 1915, from his second South American exploration trip, where he was sent by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The chief object of the trip was to study the cacti of the great desert regions.

The Brazilian expedition of Lieut. de Souza, despatched under orders of Col. Rondon, of the Roosevelt-Rondon expedition, after several disasters, including the loss of the leader, proved the Ananaz River to be the Cordoza of Col. Roosevelt's map.

Early in 1916 Capt. A. G. Noble, in command of the SS. Falstaff, visited the port of Puerto Madryn, of the Welsh colony in Chubut Valley, Patagonia. The vegetation and weather conditions were observed.

George and Stephen Gester, engineers of Berkeley, Cal., returned from an expedition into the eastern Andes early in January. They had reached the headwaters of Rio Dubina. The river was described as having its source among the glaciers high in the Andes and running 900 miles from the boundary of Bolivia into Brazil and emptying into the Madeira River near latitude 5.

Capt. Fritz Joubert Duquesne, of New York, who was in command of an expedition into the Bolivian wilds, was found, it was reported May 7, by troops at Rio Pilcomayo in a wounded state after a battle in which the expedition had defeated a band of Indians on the Bolivian frontier. Capt. Duquesne was expected to recover.

Dr. K. T. Preuss engaged in an ethnological expedition to the Arduaco Indians in Colombia.

Dr. Frank M. Chapman, of the American Museum of Natural History and the National Geographic Society, has left on an expedition to the Andes to secure the setting for habitat groups of several birds of South America. He will carry to a conclusion the work of Naturalist Heller, of the recent National Geographic Society-Yale University expedition.

T. A. Bendrat, in July, started an expedition to explore the Orinoco River's sources and the surrounding region.

AFRICA.

A discovery important to archaeologists of a large statue of Jupiter was made at Cyrene, in the Barca region, Africa.

Herbert Lang, who was in charge of the Congo expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, returned to New York in November, 1915, after an absence of several years.

G. J. F. Tomlinson, an official of British Nigeria, made the journey from Mongonu to Seyoram, on the shores of Lake Chad, and secured an account of the territory, vegetation and people.

ASIA.

The joint expedition of the University Museum of Philadelphia and the University Museum of Oxford from Warsaw to the mouth of the Yenesei for the study of the primitive races within the Arctic Circle gave the University of Pennsylvania Museum a valuable collection of weapons, costumes, instruments and ornaments of copper and iron. The Samoyeds, Tungus and Tartars were studied, and the scientific world enriched by much data about a branch of the Mongolian race of which hitherto virtually nothing has been known.

Sir Aurel Stein travelled through the Alai region, across the Russian Pamirs and down the whole length of the Oxus. Remains of a large Buddhist sanctuary were found on Koh-i-Khwaja Hill among the terminal marshes of the Helmand, and in the desert further south, once watered by a branch of the Helmand, prehistoric potsherds, stone implements, mainly of Neolithic Age, as well as some Bronze Age relics. Another interesting discovery was a close line of ancient watch stations stretching across the desert.

Jonas Lied demonstrated that the mouth of the Obi can be entered by vessels of considerable draught, in spite of the shoals that partially obstruct it.

The Chinese Government and the Nanking forestry school have undertaken important work of reforestation in China.

The Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews, left on March 17, 1916, to explore the province of Kwei-chau, China.

An expedition sent out by the Russian Department of Agriculture to study the supply of furbearing animals returned in March after covering 7,450 miles along the Yenesei. Three additional years were recommended for the period during which the killing of sable should be prohibited.

Dr. Wellington D. Jones, of the University of Chicago, is engaged in a study of the geography of Japan, Korea, Manchuria and North and Central China.

AUSTRALIA AND OCEANICA.

Prof. H. E. Gregory, of Yale University, spent the Winter of 1915-16 in the Australian deserts.

The survey vessel Carnegie, under the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution, arrived at Port Lyttelton in November, 1915. The Carnegie is engaged in the circumnavigation of the region between parallels 50 degrees and 60 degrees, where almost no magnetic data have been secured during the past seventy-five years. Observations concerning two doubtful groups of islands in the South Pacific seem to disprove their existence.

The Department of Commerce, through the Coast and Geodetic Survey, announced January 20, 1916, that it had surveyed a safe passage through the Sulu Sea. The steamer Pathfinder made some remarkable soundings in the neighborhood of the Philippines. From these it appears that the Cagayanes, Cavilli and Arena Islands are coral-capped summits of a submerged mountain range which divides the Sulu Sea into two basins. The peaks rise, from depths of 6,000 to 12,000 feet, with stupendous submarine slopes.

Since the Australian occupation of Kaiser-Wilhelmsland, the new authorities have made some effort to penetrate inland from the coast near Friedrich Wilhelmshafen. Lieut. Ogilvy made a short journey from Madang inland among the Hansemann ranges. Separate explorations by German travellers, Dr. R. Thurnwald and a missionary named Pilhofer, during and before the Australian occupation, were of unusual interest.

The Scoresby Routledge expedition to Easter Island returned to England, June 24, 1916. The antiquities of the island were studied, detail surveys made of the parts most important from an archaeological point of view, and the exact positions of all the larger mountains laid down. On the return, Pitcairn, Tahiti and the Sandwich Islands were visited. A valuable collection of stone implements was made at Pitcairn.

EUROPE.

The Archangel Society has issued an appeal for subscriptions to finance a search for the two lost Russian Arctic expeditions which went out in 1912.

Observations of the little-known Island of Imbros, in the Aegean, were made between August, 1915, and January, 1916, by A. G. Ogilvie, while doing military duty connected with the operations on Gallipoli.

POLAR RESEARCH.

Capt. French, nephew of Sir John French; two non-commissioned officers and four constables of the Northwest Mounted Police sailed from Montreal, July 29, 1916, to the Arctic to arrest the Esquimau murderers of Harry V. Radford, an American explorer, and George T. Street, of Ottawa, who were murdered at Bathurst, Canada, June, 1912, when Esquimau guides mutinied.

The work of the expedition led by Dr. W. S. Bruce to Spitzbergen in the Summer of 1915 was curtailed by abnormal ice conditions and difficulties arising out of the war. Dr. Bruce later in the year went to the Seychelles.

A party headed by Birger Johnsson left Sweden with the project of working the coal deposits at the head of Bell Sound and Isiford, Spitzbergen. Various plants were taken along by the botanist of the expedition, which he hoped might be acclimatized.

Capt. Roald Amundsen is proceeding with the North Polar expedition plans which were suspended at the outbreak of the war. The Storthing had previously voted $12,000 toward the expenses of the expedition, but Capt. Amundsen did not accept the money lest it might be needed for more pressing things.

The Vilhjalmour Stefaussen expedition spent the Winter of 1915-16 exploring the new land which was discovered north of Prince Patrick Island. It was planned in the Summer of 1916 to penetrate further into the region between Alaska and the North Pole where no ship has ever gone. Stefansson was to return this Autumn, and, on July 25, Capt. L. L. Lane and John Borden, of Chicago, sailed in the Great Bear to join him at Banks Land. The Great Bear was wrecked at Pinnacle Rock in Bering Sea, and the members of the relief expedition were marooned on St. Matthew's Island until picked up by the United States Coast Guard cutter McCulloch. The Borden party landed at Nome, August 27, 1916. The records found by Stefansson on Prince Patrick Island, left by Sir Francis Leopold McClintock in 1853, have been received by the Naval Service Department at Ottawa.
